ALMANAC FOR 1905

THE SUN

DAILY

SUNDAY

BALTIMORE, JANUARY 1, 1905

To the Subscribers of
THE SUN,
with compliments of
A. S. ABELL COMPANY,
BALTIMORE, MD.

FROM THE PRESS OF THE SUN BOOK AND JOB PRINTING OFFICE, CALVERT AND SARATOGA STREETS.

THE SUN ALMANAC.

The Sun Almanac for 1905 contains 224 pages—32 more than in the issue of 1904.

The past year was one of the most eventful years to the City of Baltimore in all its history, as it was the year of the great fire. Considerable space is therefore devoted to that calamity, and to the steps taken to recover promptly from its effects. The story of the fire is succinctly told, and the narrative is accompanied by a map of the burnt district, on which various of the landmarks swept away, or involved in the fire, are located.

The year 1904 was also presidential election year and the year of the bloody struggle of Russia and Japan in Manchuria, both leading events, claiming attention from a chronicle of the standard character of The Sun Almanac.

This, too, is the 30th issue of the "Blue Book of Maryland," and it will be found to contain nearly everything desirable to be known about the State, its government and its advantages. In addition to close attention to local needs, a comprehensive view of things pertaining to the country at large, and to the world in general, is not ignored.

The Sun Almanac is not sold, but given to all subscribers.

A. S. ABELL COMPANY.

SAND FOR MAKING GLASS.

Sand that is adapted for the manufacture of glass contains little else than silica. As a rule, the nearer it approaches to pure quartz the more valuable it is. The presence of iron, copper, clay, manganese, or organic compounds, is obnoxious if the sand is to be used for making a fine quality of glass. In some cases the impurities may be removed by washing, or by burning when much organic matter is present.

The lunar year is the time required for the moon to travel around the earth twelve times. This is 354 days 8 hours 48 minutes long, and is the year of the Jews. It is 11 days shorter than the solar year. To make good this defect the Hebrews add a thirteenth month of 30 days every third year, but even then they are still three days behind solar time.

The solar year is the time in which the earth completes one journey around the sun. This is 365 days 5 hours 48 minutes 49 seconds long.

RAILROAD FREIGHT AVERAGES.

The average cost of moving freight in various countries has recently been stated to be: Great Britain, $2.30 per 100 ton-miles; Austria, $2.05; France, $2; Germany, $1.88; Russia, $1.75; the United States, 72 cents. These figures place the American railroads so far in advance of their European counterparts that "there is no second." The London & Northwestern is one of the best operated of the English roads, and here the cost is placed at $1.49, the average trainload being 72 tons. With an average trainload of 387 tons, the New York Central exhibits a cost of 41.5 cents, while the Pennsylvania, with 518 tons, operates at a cost of 40 cents.

MOUNT AIRY FIRE IN 1903.

February 25, 1903, a destructive fire wiped out the town of Mount Airy, on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, in Carroll county, and twenty miles east of Frederick City. The total loss was between $75,000 and $100,000; insurance, $50,000. In all, seventeen buildings were burned, which, with the destruction by fire of a large store on January 29th of the same year, left but very few stores in Mt. Airy, as the fire of February 25th destroyed eight stores, including the postoffice in W. R. Rudy's drug store, two hotels, two dwelling houses, one bakery and four other buildings. The town was without protection from fire or adequate water supply. The "bucket brigade" proved inadequate for the emergency, but fire apparatus was quickly run down from Frederick City in time to save the place from total destruction. Five Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight engines were pressed into service to furnish water. The tender of each engine holds 7,000 gallons. One engine at a time was drawn up to a gondola, on which the steam fire engine from Frederick was stationed, and the steamer thus got its supply and sent it through the hose to the burning houses. The freight engines obtained the water from Batholows, some four miles west of Mount Airy, and each engine made five trips.

The normal population of Mount Airy is less than 500, but at the time of the fires in 1903 it had gained business importance from extensive improvements then in progress on the main stem of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. The stores were accustomed to do an extensive business, supplying the needs of the hundreds of workmen employed on the tunnel and other works. It is also a distributing point for rural free delivery in a large part of Carroll and Frederick counties.

ECLIPSES ON THE KINGLY PLANET

Whilst the largest of eclipses possible on the earth is seven, five of which would be solar and two lunar, a spectator on Jupiter, who could move about at will, might witness, during the Jovian year, 4,500 lunar eclipses, and about as many of the sun. A Jovian year is tantamount to very nearly 12 terrestial years.

Vast as is the quantity of sand and other land debris brought into the Gulf of Mexico by the Mississippi and other rivers, it is insignificant in comparison with the amount of limestone which the lower forms of life are creating through absorption of calcium carbonate from the waters of the Gulf.

SLAG FOR BUILDINGS AND ROADS.

The 6,000 tons of slag produced daily by the Carnegie Steel Works is used principally as railroad ballast, and a small quantity is made in concrete and fire-proofing material. For concrete work the crushed slag brings about 10c. per ton at furnace. Slag sand, employed to a large extent to replace river sand at the steel works, sells at 40 to 50c. per ton.

It is proposed to use the slag produced at the Sparrows Point Steel Works for road making in the counties of Maryland where stone is not available.

SPECIAL LEGAL HOLIDAYS IN 1904.

In view of the general derangement of business in the city of Baltimore, resulting from the great fire of February 7-8, the General Assembly of Maryland on recommendation of Governor Edwin Warfield, passed a law, the first act of the session of 1904, approved February 8, declaring that February 8 to February 15, both inclusive, should be legal holidays, so far as payment of maturing notes, drafts, &c., were concerned. Power was also conferred on the Governor to still further extend the time, which he did by proclamation from the 15th to the 22nd of February. The suspension was to afford the banks opportunity to seek temporary quarters and get ready to resume business. The resumption actually began February 15, though the legal holiday period continued until February 22, which being Washington's birthday is of itself a bank holiday.

FLAG DAY.

June 14 is not a national or legal holiday, but the anniversary of the creation of the United States flag by the Continental Congress June 14, 1777. At the same time and in the same act of Congress Capt. Paul Jones was appointed to command the ship Ranger. He was the first to carry the flag into European waters and it went down on the Bonhomme Richard after he captured the British man-of-war Seraphis.

RAISING AND REMOVING BRICK BUILDINGS.

In Brooklyn, N. Y., a four-story public school building at Covert street and Evergreen avenue, weighing 7,500 tons, 84 by 150 feet in size, was raised 34 inches in order to have the basement above flood water level. Preparatory work began June 4, 1904; the actual raising began July 15 and it was completed July 23, the cost being $25,000.

A trench, 8 feet wide, was dug around the building to the depth of the foundation, and in this trench were placed yellow pine timbers running parallel with the walls. Above the entrenched timbers, and on each side of the foundation, cribbing blocks were built up upon which jack-screws were placed, and resting thereon were the "screwing timbers" upon which were placed the cross timbers and top-sticks, the last named carrying the beams of the building. Seventy-five men were sent into the foundation and were there distributed into small gangs upon the different sections of cribbing, each gang patrolling its own section. In single file the men followed each other, giving each of the 1,200 jack-screws a quarter turn. In this manner the massive structure was lifted safely to the desired height and securely held until the foundation was built under it. This is said to be the heaviest building ever raised in Greater New York. In any case it is a feat of engineering well worthy of being placed on record.

A still more notable performance took place in Baltimore city in the year 1892, when the two-story brick house of the Johns Hopkins University known as "Levering Hall" was removed 130 feet from the southeast corner of Ross and Garden streets to the northeast corner of Eutaw and Ross streets, the work having been begun in August and completed by the end of the year. The building was finally moved into position directly over the new foundation at the northeast corner of Eutaw and Ross streets November 25. The work included the lifting of the building, turning it around so that the end which faced the south was made to front the west, and pushing it up hill, so that it stood on ground 13 feet higher than before. To raise the building with jack-screws 4 feet 7 inches from the old foundation took eleven days. The turning, which was also done by "the jack," took 19 days. The building was then pushed forward thirty-six and a half feet in six days and raised five feet higher. This took nine days. On November 14 the last push, which ended November 25, was begun, and eighty-nine feet ten inches were made. No injury was done to the building by the removal. Levering Hall was displaced to make room for McCoy Hall, extending from Monument to Ross street along Garden street, five stories high. McCoy Hall is a memorial to the late John W. McCoy, who made liberal bequests to the University. The foundations of McCoy Hall were laid in December, 1892.

TAKE TO THE WOODS.

"If thou art worn and hard beset
With sorrow that thou wouldst forget;
If thou wouldst read a lesson that will keep
Thy heart from fainting and thy soul from sleep,
Go to the woods and hills!—No tears
Dim the sweet looks that Nature wears."

TRADE SECRETS.

The two oldest secret trade processes now in existence are considered to be the manufacture of Chinese red, or vermilion, and that method of inlaying the hardest steel with gold and silver which seems to have been practiced at Damascus ages ago, and is known only to the Syrian smiths and their pupils even to this day.

TO MAKE GOOD BREAD.

Formula of the Samuel Ready School—Cookery Branch.

The prize for breadmaking at the Samuel Ready School in Baltimore, July 2, 1904, was awarded to Miss Edith Harbaugh, who was one of a class of fifteen members in advanced cookery. All fifteen were tested in breadmaking, and the four whose loaves turned out the best—Misses Bessie Shimp, Florence Melvin, Edith Harbaugh and Helen Hennick—were selected to enter the finals, where Miss Harbaugh was the winner. Her recipe is as follows:

One pint of water or of one-half water and one-half milk.

One rounded teaspoonful of sugar.

Three level teaspoonfuls of salt.

Three-quarters of a tablespoonful of lard.

One-eighth of a yeast cake dissolved in one-quarter cup of lukewarm water.

Six or seven cups of flour.

The directions for mixing, given by Miss M. M. Hood, the teacher of domestic science in the school, one of the "Ready" girls herself, and the director of the classes in cookery since her graduation, is as follows:

"To make three small loaves of bread, we always take a pint of liquid, either all water, or half milk and half water, or all milk—of course, all milk will make the bread very nutritious, but it is too expensive to be used regularly. Ordinarily, we use simply water. If we use milk we are careful to heat it to the boiling point, otherwise it might sour. If we use water, we heat a portion of it, so that the whole quantity is lukewarm. Then we mix a rounded teaspoonful of sugar, three level teaspoonfuls of salt, and three-quarters of a tablespoonful of lard, in a bread-raiser, either of tin or granite iron, or a crockery bowl; and we pour the heated liquid on the mixture to dissolve it. Next we dissolve an eighth of a cake of yeast in a quarter of a cup of lukewarm water, and add that to the mixture. Then we add enough sifted flour to make rather a stiff batter; beat that well; add more flour and knead it. The quantity of flour varies somewhat according to the quality, but we use ordinarily from six to seven cups of flour to a pint of liquid.

"You have to learn from experience how much to knead it. Sometimes the girls take a knife and cut across the dough to see if it is full of large air bubbles. If it is, it hasn't been kneaded thoroughly. Sometimes, too, if they want their bread to be very fine grained, the girls hold the dough some distance above the bread board and drop it down lightly on the board. If this is repeated several times it will drive out all the air bubbles and give a close-grained bread. This is the way the French cooks do, and you know they are noted for their breadmaking. I remember hearing a lady say:

"After the bread has been kneaded thoroughly we put it away over night to lighten. Of course, in very warm weather, bread should not be made up until late in the evening. In the morning the bread is kneaded a little more, and then we put it in the pans and leave it there until it is raised sufficiently to bake. The loaves are ready to bake when they have raised to twice the size they were when first molded. Small loaves, the size the girls make, must be baked about three-quarters of an hour. When the bread comes out we put it on a rack, where the air can circulate around it; then cook it in a draft."

Close attention to the baking and the heat of the oven are also very important factors in the success of breadmaking. The "Ready" bread, firmly grained loaves were done a light crusty brown, and gave out the delicate fragrance.

STEAL NOT THIS BOOK.

The practice of considering an Almanac "common property," is so general, that the following bits of schoolboy judgment of the enormity of appropriating books are considered appropriate to the crime of stealing a Sun Almanac:

Steal not this book, my honest friend,
For fear the gallows be your end;
For if you do the Lord will say:
"Where is that book you stole away?"

Who prigs a book that isn't his'n
When he's caught gets sent to pri'n.

Small is the wren;
Black is the rook;
Great is the sinner
That steals this book.

Steal not this book, for if you do,
I'll send the devil after you.

Who steals this book
Will end the strife
With name erased
From Book of Life.

NATURAL SODA IN ARID REGIONS.

Deposits of natural soda are found in arid regions in many parts of the world. They owe their formation to the drying up of lakes, the waters of which gradually become concentrated through the long-continued processes of influx and evaporation. In the Libyan Desert, 40 miles northwest of Cairo, there is a series of small lakes all of which are strongly alkaline, and have deposited great quantities of soda on the shores and beds. The soda is extracted in the summer season when the waters are lowered by evaporation.

THE AGE FOR GIRLS TO MARRY.

Governor Edwin Warfield, of Maryland, in an address to the young ladies of a high school, said: "My advice to you is not to marry too early. If asked the age when you should marry, I should say 26 years. That was the age of Mrs. Warfield when I married her, and I have said to my daughters that I should not give my consent to their marrying until they arrive at that age." The remark was on the spur of the moment, still, as he afterwards said in all seriousness: "I do think that many lives are made failures by persons marrying before their characters have been formed. You know 'whom first we love we rarely wed.' This is a very true saying. Young people are impressionable and romantic, and, if left to their own free will, are apt to rush into matrimony without properly considering the grave responsibility of married life. Many cases have come under my observation where youthful and hasty marriages have resulted in unhappiness, discontent and lives of drudgery. The old saying, 'Marry in haste and repent at leisure,' proves too often true. Young men and women should remember that the romantic attachments of youth are not generally lasting.

"I would not wish to be regarded as laying down iron-clad rules concerning the exact age when a girl should marry; it might be at 22, 24, 25 or 26 years—it all depends upon the physical and mental development of the girl. I meant rather to indicate that a girl should not marry until she was over 21 and of an age to comprehend the responsibility of the marriage state and to make an intelligent choice of the man whose companionship will be either a help or a hindrance to her life.

"There are many serious questions to be considered in deciding upon this most important step. Health, heredity, environment, taste, social tendencies, all should be carefully weighed if a happy married life is desired. Girls should not be carried away with the good looks and fascinating manners of men. The man a girl would marry when she leaves school is usually not the man she would select after she has seen more of the world."

"Marriage for the purpose of settling a daughter in life is, as a rule, a failure and an unhappy one. No parent, and especially no true and loving mother, will wish to push her daughter into matrimony before she is fully matured and fitted for the grave responsibilities of married life. Young girls just out of school are not equipped for the ordinary household duties of wives and for the cares and trials of motherhood. They should, after leaving school, spend some time with their parents, giving those parents the pleasure of their companionship and learning something of the everyday work that will be theirs as wives.

"The girl who marries too early misses many of the pleasures of life. She is doomed to spend her youthful days in the trying and taxing cares of motherhood and household duties, with broken health and rundown nerves before she has passed out of her teens. Such marriages are unfortunate. They are entered into without due consideration, and, frequently, before the husband has fully established his business ability and the earning capacity that will enable him to provide for the increasing wants of married life. Girls should be taught that there is more in life than getting married; that when they leave school they owe some service to their parents and that they should spend some of their days in making the lives of their fathers and mothers easier and brighter.

"The same advice pertains to young men. I have known of cases where young men, because they married too soon and before they had established themselves in permanent positions, were compelled to give up good opportunities for advancement because family ties and environmnets kept them down to one locality. The realization of the mistakes of marrying too early has discouraged many a young man, blasted his future, brought disappointment to himself and deprivation and suffering to his family.

"I believe in marriage and would like to see every man and woman mated in congenial companionship for life, but I am opposed to early and thoughtless marriages.

"I do not undertake to fix any age limit as the period for marriage, though the proper period in my judgment is between 21 and 26 years. I only speak from my own experience. I was 38 years old when I married and my wife 12 years my junior. We are happy and contented with our lot and have four children—three girls and one boy—all vigorous and healthy physically and mentally. Hence my reasons for advocating a mature age before marriage."

In 1803 the United States coined $258,377.50 gold, and $87,118 silver. One hundred years later, in 1903, the coinage was $43,683,970.50 gold, and $19,874,440 silver.

A LIGHT ALLOY.

The new alloy magnalium is being used largely in the manufacture of scientific instruments, for which it is adapted on account of its low specific gravity and the ease with which it can be worked. An alloy containing 86 per cent. aluminium and 13 per cent. magnesium is about 2.5 density.

THE GREAT PLANET JUPITER.

The greatest of all the planets that revolve about our sun, Jupiter, presents besides its colossal size some features that render it especially interesting. In size it is 1,200 times larger than the earth, but in mass only 310 times. This is a remarkable fact, proving that Jupiter must be a world of a kind very different from that on which we stand. The earth is made up of rocks and minerals, largely also of iron, and all these materials together produce a globe of very high density—between five and six times the weight of a globe of water of equal dimensions.

In regard to Jupiter, the case is widely different and from this it follows at once that the great planet cannot be organized on anything like the same plan as our own globe. That Jupiter weighs only one and one-fourth as much as a globe of water of the same size proves conclusively that it is—on its exterior, at all events—largely made up of great oceans of clouds and vapors, which weigh but little in comparison with their bulk, and it proves, furthermore, that if the materials now in vapor were condensed into more liquid or solid form the size of Jupiter would be considerably diminished.

Now the interesting question arises to what those immense clouds enveloping Jupiter are due. Clouds cannot exist without heat, for without the latter they would take the liquid state. The great distance of the planet from the sun precludes the assumption that the amount of heat received by reflection from the sun could produce quantities of vapor so copious and continuously impenetrable as they are on Jupiter. There is no comparison between the clouds in the terrestrial atmosphere and the thick and massive vapors around Jupiter, and consequently we are compelled to suppose that the heat by which the vapors to form clouds are manufactured must be much more abundant and intense on Jupiter than it is on our own globe. Now if Jupiter cannot receive enough heat from the sun to produce this effect the question is: Whence does it derive this heat? This question puzzled astronomers for a considerable time, but it is now generally conceded that Jupiter still retains vast stores of internal heat which are sufficient to preserve in the vaporous state the oceans that shall one day roll upon its surface.

No longer need the dense clouds of the giant planet be a mystery, for they are merely an indication of a certain stage in the process of cooling through which Jupiter, like every other planet in our system, has to pass. In other words, Jupiter is a sort of semi-sunhot, though not so hot as to be sensibly self-luminous.

PAUL KRUGER.

At Clarens, Switzerland, July 14, 1904, Paul Kruger, ex-president of the Transvaal Republic of South Africa, died of pneumonia and supervening heart weakness in the 79th year of his age. Mr. Kruger was one of the conspicuous men of his time. He was born October 10, 1825, at Colesburg, Cape Colony, of German parents. In 1836, with his parents he was in the great "trek" northward from Cape Colony to found the new Dutch Republic. In the same year he killed his first lion. In 1838 he was fighting, with his father, against the negroes. He became a leader among the Boers early in life and at the age of 17 was made a magistrate.

Taking part in the conflicts among the Boers themselves he became noted for his great strength and prowess. In 1860 he headed the movement against President Schoeman. In 1863 he was chosen commandant-general of the republic. He put down civil strife and defeated negro tribes.

As vice-president under President Burger's administration Kruger in 1877 led the protest against annexation to Cape Colony. In 1880 he was chosen vice-president of the reorganized republic, and was prominent in the war that followed, in which the Boers won back their independence under a British suzereignty.

In 1883 Kruger was elected president of the Transvaal over General Joubert, being re-elected in 1888, 1893 and 1898. Kruger became practically dictator, so great was his influence over his countrymen, and stoutly opposed British aggression.

In 1895, when the Jameson raid occurred, President Kruger turned over Dr. Jameson to the British for punishment, but for four years thereafter he was busy preparing for war with Great Britain and placed the Transvaal in splendid condition for defense.

In 1899 war was declared against Great Britain. On June 5, 1900, Pretoria fell, and President Kruger fled to Portuguese territory, and on October 19 sailed for Europe. In 1901 took up his residence in Holland. In October, 1902, he published a volume of memoirs bitterly assailing Cecil Rhodes and other Englishmen of South Africa. For several years he lived at Mentone, France, where he went for his health. He died July 14, 1904. On October 31 his remains were put on shipboard at Rotterdam to be conveyed to South Africa for burial.

SIZE OF HUMAN HAIR.

ctual measurements have shown the size of a hair depends upon olor and that such filaments of the n head vary from the two hun- and fiftieth to the six-hundredth of an inch, blonde hair being finest and red coarsest. Dr. Zung, a German specialist, says that the average number of hairs on a blonde head is 140,000, on the red not more than 90,000.

MR. ROCKEFELLER'S GIFTS.

The Sum of $500,000 to Johns Hopkins Hospital, Baltimore, Md.

About 70 warehouses belonging to the Johns Hopkins Hospital were destroyed by the great fire in Baltimore of February 7-8, 1904. The value of this property was about $1,300,000, and the net loss $500,000. The loss was made good by a gift of $500,000 from Mr. John D. Rockefeller, of New York, May 4, 1904. The money was given without conditions of any kind. About half the sum was in the shape of a check payable to the order of Mr. John C. Thomas, treasurer of the hospital, and the balance was made up of securities sent to the hospital by express, in care of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland. Mr. Rockefeller did even better than he had promised, as he allowed the hospital interest on the money from the date of his promise to pay: viz. April 4 to May 4.

In his letter stating that he would give the hospital $500,000 to make good losses in the great fire, Mr. Rockefeller expressed his willingness to pay the sum in cash, in securities, or partly in cash and partly in securities, as the hospital trustees should elect. The trustees asked for half cash and half in securities, and Mr. Rockefeller sent the sum as they desired.

An appeal was made to him for the aid, and he sent his agent to Baltimore to investigate the affairs of the institution. The inquiry was made as thorough as if he had contemplated investing in the hospital for the purpose of gain. The result was the receipt by Dr. William Osler of a letter dated "29 Broadway, New York, April 4, 1904, from Mr. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.," as follows:

"As a result of your letter to Mr. Gates, written several months since, and a letter at the same time from Dr. Wm. H. Welch to me, both setting forth the losses sustained by the endowment fund of the Johns Hopkins Hospital on account of the recent fire in Baltimore, Mr. Murphy has, as you know, made a careful study of the situation, and from his report I learn that the losses, as nearly as can be estimated at present, are about $499,187. In view of the high character of work which the hospital and medical school are doing in medical instruction and research, including the training of nurses, which work he understands will otherwise be materially curtailed because of the losses, my father will give five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000) to Johns Hopkins Hospital. This he will pay in securities or cash, as the trustees may elect."

CEMENT AND CONCRETE BUILDING.

The cement trade in this country last year was over $30,000,000 in value. Reinforced and strengthened by steel rods, cement has caused something of a revolution in building. Concrete minimizes the danger from fire, from imperfect insulation of electric wires or other causes and the material itself, being fireproof and susceptible of withstanding intense heat, suggests itself as thoroughly safe and satisfactory. But, perhaps the most important of the illustrations of adaptability of cement is its use in the manufacture of artificial stone. It is far cheaper than natural stone; it may be produced in any form even to the most ornate mouldings; it hardens with age, consequently is more durable; it is unaffected by changes of temperature and the action of frost or corrosion; it is absolutely fireproof and will withstand any degree of heat.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.

Cream or lemon juice rubbed in well at night will soon remove sunburn from the face.

To clean brass gas fixtures, rub them with cut lemons and then wash them off in hot water.

Onion juice and white soap will usually remove stains made by scorching.

Gilt furniture can be cleaned with sifted whiting made into a cream with alcohol. Cover a small space at a time and rub before it hardens.

ELECTION OF POPE PIUS X.

On the 4th of August, 1903, Cardinal Giuseppe Sarto, Patriarch of Venice, was elected Pope by the conclave of cardinals assembled in Rome on the death, July 20, 1903, of Pope Leo XIII. at the Vatican. The newly-elected Pope took the title of Pius X. Sixty-two cardinals entered the conclave July 31.

The Diary of the Roman Curia, written by Mgr. Felix Cardene, editor of the Analecta Ecclesiastica of Rome and covering the period from the death of Leo XIII. to August 9, the date of the coronation of Pius X., gives a summary of the votes cast in the conclave and the definite statement that Austria did enter a veto against the election of Cardinal Rampolla, who was Leo's secretary of state.

Austria, France and Spain claimed the right to veto any cardinal who might prove a personna non grata to any of these powers. The veto was acknowledged by the Sacred College, but it was held by canonists that it was a "privilege" rather than a "right." Now when all governments professed pure secularism, and when the spirit of religion seemed to be completely absent from the councils of the three powers in question, the "veto" was regarded as an intolerable anachronism. The cardinals concluded by asking the Holy Father to put an end forever to the usurpation.

Pius X. lost no time in complying with a petition which appealed directly to his resolution "to restore all things in Christ," and at once drew up a document in which sentence of excommunication is pronounced ipso facto against anybody, no matter what his dignity, who presumed to act as intermediary of any power in proposing a veto against any cardinal during a conclave. At the same time Pius X. declared that the "veto" has never become a right, and that no attention will be paid to it in the future.

The vote of the Conclave as recorded in the Diary of the Roman Curia was as follows:

First scrutiny, Saturday morning, August 1:

Cardinal Rampolla	24
Cardinal Gotti	17
Cardinal Sarto	5
Cardinal Serafino Vannutelli	4
Cardinal Oreglia	2
Cardinal Capecelatro	2
Cardinal Di Pietro	2

Second scrutiny, Saturday evening, August 1:

Cardinal Rampolla	29
Cardinal Gotti	16
Cardinal Sarto	10
Others	7

Third scrutiny, Sunday morning, August 2:

[At the beginning of this scrutiny his Eminence Cardinal Puzyna declared it to be the wish of the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria that Cardinal Rampolla should not be elected to the Roman Pontificate. Cardinal Rampolla declared that nothing could have happened more pleasing to himself or more worthy of honor (Sibi nihil jucundius, nihil honorabilius accidere potuisse), but that the interference of lay people with the unrestricted freedom of the electors grieved him exceedingly. Cardinals Oreglia and Perraud also protested most forcibly. At the evening scrutiny Cardinal Rampolla received an additional vote.]

Cardinal Rampolla	29
Cardinal Sarto	21
Cardinal Gotti	9
	62

Fourth scrutiny, Sunday evening, August 2:

Cardinal Rampolla	30
Cardinal Sarto	24

THINKERS, NOT DOERS.

To invent a new process and perfect it technically is one thing—to make it financially a success is an entirely different affair. Inventors are too often deficient in qualifications for managing their own business.

LAW TO REGULATE BARBERS IN MARYLAND.

An Act of the Legislature, Chapter 226, approved April 1, 1904, regulates barbers in the State of Maryland; establishes a State Board of Barber Examiners, appointed every two years by the Governor, and provides for the sanitary inspection of all barber shops, with penalties of fine or imprisonment for violations. The State Board of Examiners is empowered to appoint subboards of examiners in cities, towns and villages in Maryland where they may be deemed necessary, in the judgment of the State board.

The pay of $5 each day on actual duty, with 3 cents mileage added for travelling is the compensation for the members of the State board.

Every barber practicing the business must have a certificate. No one can be refused a certificate if he meets the requirements of the law, but certificates may be revoked for violations, or the following disqualifications: Conviction of felony, habitual drunkenness six months immediately preceding a charge duly made, gross incompetence, or the use of unclean towels, cups, or any other unclean utensils used by barbers, which are liable to spread contagious or infectious diseases.

On November 1, Judge Phelps in Baltimore decided that the law does not apply to any person working as a barber at the time it went into operation in April, 1904.

Under the law the rules enforced for all barber shops may be summarized as follows:

REGULATIONS.

The use of powder puff is prohibited.

The use of sponges is prohibited.

A wash stand with running water must be supplied for each two barbers in a shop.

No finger bowls will be allowed.

No towels shall be used for more than one person without being washed.

Mugs and shaving brushes shall be thoroughly washed with hot water after being used on a person.

No barber, unless he is a licensed physician, shall prescribe for skin diseases.

Barbers must wash hands thoroughly with soap and hot water before attending to any person.

No hair must be allowed to remain on the floor, and furniture must be kept free from dust.

No astringent shall be used in stick form if used to stop bleeding. It must be in powdered or liquid form.

All utensils must be sterilized by steam or antiseptic solution before using.

Clean paper must be used for head rests. No towels will be permissible. One sheet for each customer.

Shaving paper must be clean, without printing or marking.

Cuspidors must be cleaned daily and kept one-fourth filled with antiseptic water.

There are 1200 white and colored barbers in Baltimore city. The sanitary law went into effect July 1, 1904.

SUSQUEHANNA RIVER FRESHET 1904.

A freshet in the Susquehanna river March 5, 1904, caused great damage at Port Deposit, Md., York Haven, Pa., and other points along the course of the stream. On March 7 there was a general movement of the ice in the river for the first time since February 14, and it was followed by a rapid rise of the water. About one hundred families were driven from their homes in Port Deposit. Some outbuildings were crushed by masses of ice, and the main street of the town and the railroad tracks were blocked with large ice cakes piled up high. The large electric plant of the York Haven Water and Power Company was badly damaged. This plant furnished electric power to Harrisburg, Pa., York, Pa., and other places. The flood interfered with the operations of paper mills and other industrial works; it filled the river with floating lumber, masses of ice and much debris. Two spans of Conowingo bridge were carried away. The water rose very high at Perryville and Havre de Grace, Md., and the flood reached a higher water mark than for ten years previously.

The Susquehanna is one of the notable rivers of this country. Its longer branch, flowing from Lake Otsego, in New York, rises at an elevation of 1,300 feet; the western branch, rising in Cambria county, Pennsylvania, has a very tortuous course, and the main stream reaches the head of the Chesapeake Bay below Havre de Grace, Md., while Port Deposit, Md., is the head of tidewater and of navigation. The length of the main stream is 150 miles; of the western branch, 200 miles, and of the eastern, or northern branch, 250 miles. The current is swift and strong at all times, but with all its tributaries and its branches swollen by the melting snows of wide area, the river pours down into the Chesapeake a flood of water, with vast fields of broken ice, choking the narrow waterways between the many islands, rocks and natural dams along its course, to say nothing of the artificial obstructions in the way of bridges and other works of engineers and builders which tend to bar free passageway through the wide mouth of the river below Havre de Grace.

Port Deposit, from its situation on the eastern bank of the river, under the lofty ridge which overhangs the town, is peculiarly liable to disaster whenever the stream is up.

When the ice reached York Haven, Pa., March 7, it finished the demolition of the York Haven power plant and also destroyed the York Haven paper mills. The water and ice never reached such a height in the history of this section.

The electric power plant destroyed was the most elaborate of all the schemes to "harness" the Susquehanna river, and was intended to supply York, Harrisburg, Columbia and other places with electricity. The plant was situated on an island in the river and is said to have cost $1,500,000. It was almost ready to open, and a movement was on foot to increase the capital stock of the company owning it to $3,500,000. The plan was to utilize the falls at Conewago, and a protective wall 35 feet high was constructed. This wall, it was believed, would give full protection to the plant from the biggest flood. The ice badly damaged the plant, and what was left of the buildings collapsed.

During the first days of the month of February, 1904, the Chesapeake was nearly full of drifting ice and traffic was greatly impeded. Shifting winds drove the immense ice fields alternately from shore to shore, and navigation was extremely hazardous except for the largest vessels. It was not until the 7th that shipping became comparatively free. It was practically unobstructed from that date until the 16th, when the service of ice boats was again necessary. Conditions became steadily worse until the 20th and 21st, when the tie-up in Baltimore shipping was the most complete of the winter. The bay boats made no efforts to leave port, and the arrivals were few and late. Oystermen were forced to abandon their work from the 20th to the 24th. On the 21st the harbor was reported "dead," not even the largest steamers venturing out. After the 23d large vessels were able to ply the regular channels without serious difficulty; but heavy drift ice continued to give trouble to most craft during the remainder of the month. Navigation opened in the Delaware and Chesapeake Canal the last week of the month of February.

ELECTRIC MAGNETIC TELEGRAPH.

May 1, 1904 was the sixtieth anniversary of the electro-magnetic telegraph, it being May 1, 1844, when Professor Morse was able to demonstrate the use of his invention in reporting at Washington the proceedings of the Whig convention at Baltimore.

GENERAL SLOCUM STEAMBOAT DISASTER.

The steamer General Slocum of the Knickerbocker Steamboat Company, carrying 1,358 passengers on the annual excursion of St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran Church, New York City, was burned in East river at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, June 15, 1904, and 955 persons lost their lives, burned to death on board or drowned after leaping into the water.

Of the total of passengers, not over 10 per cent. were men—the rest were women and children—more children than women. The fire started in a forward compartment which was filled with inflammable material. The vessel itself, allowed by law to carry 2,000 passengers on excursions was constructed with little consideration of safety against fire. The fire extinguishing apparatus was wholly inefficient and the life-saving appliances defective.

The fire broke out when the vessel was off the Sunken Meadows, just east of Randall's Island in East river, and the flames spread with great rapidity. Hundreds of persons, their clothing ablaze jumped into the water, most of them to drown; others were carried down into the blazing furnace below by the collapse of the hurricane deck, when its supports were burned away.

William H. Van Shaick, the commander of the vessel headed the steamer for North Brother Island, half a mile distant, and beached her a total wreck. No pen can adequately describe the agonizing scenes on board the ill-fated vessel as the flames swept from stem to stern, through the different decks, driving the crowds of men, women and children, all panic-stricken before the flames to the guards, the pressure from behind forcing hundreds over the rail into the water. The speed of the boat supplied draught to the fire, increasing the rapidity with which everything on board was consumed.

From the master down, all the crew except the two engineers, Brandou and Conklin, who stuck to their posts in the burning ship and did their duty, were pronounced delinquent in every way during the emergency. Sweeping condemnation was visited upon the company, the officers and crew of the vessel and the government inspectors, by the coroner's jury and a commission appointed by the Department of Commerce and Labor to investigate the disaster. The coroner's jury pronounced Capt. Van Shaick "criminally responsible;" and that the mate Edward Flannagan acted in a cowardly manner. The report of the Government Commission published October 17, 1904, declared that the master made no attempt whatsoever to control the fire or to aid the passengers in anyway. The pilots, after beaching the boat, and while there were still many passengers on board, failed in their duty to assist in rescuing passengers. The report also declared that "Pilot Van Wart showed bad judgment and lack of skill in beaching the vessel." President Roosevelt on the report of the Commission directed the discharge of Supervising Inspector Robert S. Brodie and Local Inspectors James A. Dumont and Thos. H. Barrett for laxity in discharge of duty.

The Commission suggested punitive laws for making and selling defective life-saving apparatus; that action be taken against certain of the Slocum employes: that a searching investigation be made of every inspection subdivision outside of New York.

The Government Commission appointed by George B. Cortelyou, then Secretary of Commerce and Labor, was constituted as follows: Chairman, Lawrence O. Murray, Assistant Secretary of Commerce and Labor Secretary.

Herbert Knox Smith, Deputy commissioner of Corporations.

George Uhler, Supervisor Inspector-General of the Steamboat Inspection Service.

Brig-Gen. John M. Wilson, United States Army (retired), Commander Cameron McR. Winslow, United States Navy.

An official revised list of the dead, injured, missing and of those who escaped from the disaster, finally made up July 13, showed the following figures:

Identified dead, 897.
Unidentified dead, 58.
Missing, 62.
Injured, 180.
Escaped without injury, 235.
Dead—Identified adults, 421; children, 476.
Total dead, 955.
Total dead and missing, 1,020.

NEAR APPROACHES OF COMETS.

The nearest approach known is that of the comet of 1843, whose perihelion distance was but 30,000 miles from the surface of the sun; in fact, it doubled around the sun in the brief time of two hours. The greatest aphelion distance yet calculated is that of the comet of 1844, which is over 400 billion miles. The velocity varied, of course, with the position in the orbit. The comet of 1680 moved in perihelion at the rate of over 277 miles per second, while in aphelion its velocity is only 6 miles per hour. In 1861 the earth passed through the tail of a comet, its presence being indicated only by a peculiar phosphorescent mist. So that, even should our earth run full-tilt against a comet, the shock might be quite imperceptible.

REHOBOTH, DELAWARE FIRE.

At Rehoboth, Delaware, October 18, 1904, twenty-six buildings were burned, the damge being estimated at $18,000. For a time the fire threatened the destruction of the entire village, which is situated by the seaside. This was prevented by firemen of Lewes, Del., who drove from Lewes and checked the flames. The losses were as follows:

Cottage of the late Mrs. Comfort A. King destroyed, loss $2,000; partly insured.

House of D. C. Townsend, of Fairmount, destroyed, loss $4,000; no insurance.

Cottage of Dr. J. T. Thompson, of Lewes, destroyed, loss $4,000; partly insured.

House of Mrs. Annie McKee, of Middletown, loss $300; partly insured.

House of J. T. Waters, of Baltimore, loss slight, probably $300.

House of J. Dallas Marvel, of Laurel, Del., damaged by water and outbuildings burned, loss $600.

House of J. T. Ritchie, of Wilmington, loss $1,000; partly insured.

The fire started in the house of the late Mrs. King, on Railroad avenue, from an overheated stove.

The only means of fighting the flames was by a bucket brigade, which was formed. Water was dipped out of the ocean and passed along the line of men and thrown upon the fire, and kept up with little or no effect in staying the progress of the fire until the Lewes firemen came on the scene and the prevailing stiff breeze died down.

Word was also sent to Georgetown, Del., for assistance, and the firemen of that place were sent on a special train, which arrived shortly after 1 o'clock, but the Lewes firemen already had the flames under control.

The communion-service vessels, brass cross and other property of All Saints' Episcopal Church were in the Ritchie residence, which is occupied by Charles S. Horn, but all were taken out to a place of safety.

WRECK OF THE STEAMSHIP NORGE.

The Danish emigrant steamer Norge, bound from Copenhagen to New York was wrecked June 28, 1904, on "Rock Wall," a dangerous reef in the North sea, 290 miles from the West Coast of Scotland. The ship was carrying 774 Danes, Norwegians, Swedes and Fins to America. When the ship struck the reef she soon went down and the boats saved in the aggragate 158 persons and 616 lost their lives.

Total number on board, 774, including crew.

Landed at Stornaway, Scotland, from two boats, 102.

Landed at Grimsby, England, one boatload, 26.

Landed on the Faroe and Shetland Islands two boatloads with 30 survivors.

Total rescued, 158.

Total lost, 616.

Most of the ship's boats were smashed by the heavy sea. No cowardice or inefficiency by officers of ship was reported.

No recorded wreck of the sea ever had a greater death list. The passengers were suddenly aroused from their sleep, terrified by the contact of the bows of the ship with the soli granite of the reef, followed by a grinding, rasping sound as if the hull was being sheered over huge rocks. Then silence, as the clanging bells brought the engines to a stop.

Those of the passengers who were standing at the time the steamer struck the rock were thrown against the bulkheads or on the decks and had not recovered their feet when a voice gave the terrifying order: "All hands on deck! Hurry or you may sink!"

Immediately there was a rush for the narrow companionways, and men, women and children pushed and struggled and made every effort to reach the deck where the boats swung from the davits. But most of the boats, filled with women and children were dashed to pieces by the waves against the side of the ship, and their occupants thrown into the angry waters and drowned. Many frantic passengers leaped into the sea and were swallowed up; with Captain Gundell on the bridge, the ship went down.

There were on board 694 steerage passengers. Of these 79 were Danes, 68 Swedes, 296 Norwegians, 15 Finns and 236 Russians.

There were 9 second cabin passengers and the crew numbered 71—total 774.

1895—Elbe, in the Atlantic; lost, 300.

MILLINGTON, KENT COUNTY FIRE.

A conflagration in the town of Millington, Kent county, Md., July 12, 1904, burned over ten acres in the principal part of the town, destroying 60 buildings and causing a loss of $100,000 only a tenth of which was covered by insurance. Over two hundred of the residents, including men women and children were rendered utterly homeless, and very many of them were destitute. Aid was promptly and generously extended from Baltimore, Philadelphia and from the various towns of the Eastern Shore. Fire engines from Wilmington, Del., aided in extinguishing the flames.

A complete list of those who lost their all was as follows:

The Millington National Bank, a new structure which had been occupied only two months, was wrecked, but the vault was uninjured and the contents were preserved.

Millington is in the center of a very thrifty and fertile section of Kent county. The population numbers about 500 persons. There are several canning houses and other industries in the town, and several school-houses, churches, etc. It is near the center of the county and about 12 miles from Chestertown.

THE ZODIAC.

The apparent path of the sun in the heavens is along an ecliptic, which is inclined 23° 27′ to the celestial equator. A belt 16° wide, 8° on each side of the ecliptic, within which are comprised the path of the moon and all of the planets known to the ancients, is known as the zodiac. This belt is divided into the twelve signs of the zodiac, each 30° in length. The first of these signs begins at the point when the sun's path crosses the equator (when moving north in the spring) and is known as the sign of Aries, and the point of crossing is known as the vernal or spring equinox. The point when the sun's path crosses the equator when returning south in the fall is known as the autumnal equinox, and is the beginning of the sign Libra.

The zodiacal signs and the times when the sun enters each are as follows:

FIRES OF BERLIN, WORCESTER COUNTY.

Saturday, October 1, 1904, the town of Berlin, Worcester county, situated seven miles from the Atlantic coast, was visited by a conflagration, originating in the Veneer Works of the Berlin Improvement Company, which destroyed sixteen dwelling houses, two churches and three industrial establishments, causing a loss of about $60,000, with only partial insurance. The fire broke out in the afternoon, and the only force to fight it was the bucket brigade without the aid of fire engines or water works. Being so near the Atlantic coast, Berlin is peculiarly liable to strong gales and high winds, very quickly spread the flames under such conditions. On this occasion there was a very high wind and sparks were showered on houses a mile from the spot where the fire originated. St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, which was half a mile from where the fire started, was the second building to burn. The streets and grounds about the houses in the town are plentifully supplied with wide-spreading shade trees, and these in full foliage were a good protection against the showers of sparks and fire brands carried swiftly on the current of the gale.

The corporate limits of Berlin are comprised within an area of about one mile square, and the population is about 1,500—perhaps 1,800. The population is energetic and the seat of some of the most extensive horticultural nurseries in the United States.

Sunday night, August 4, 1895, Berlin was swept by a fire which destroyed most of the business portion of the town. The conflagration swept over eight acres of territory in the heart of the town and destroyed pretty nearly all the business houses in the place. More than sixty buildings were destroyed and the total loss was upward of $85,000, offset only by $20,000 insurance. This fire started in the hay loft of a livery stable at 8 o'clock P. M., and by 1 o'clock next morning the destruction was complete. The population at that time was about 1,200.

Berlin also experienced a disastrous fire March 21, 1895, but it was nothing in comparison with the disaster of August, 1895. On both occasions the houses were mostly of wood. But after these experiences the citizens realized the importance of rebuilding with brick, and on the sites of the old wooden structures many creditable and well-built buildings arose.

The losses incurred by the fire of October 1, 1904, and the insurances were as follows:

INDUSTRIAL WORKS.

Berlin Veneer Works and Factory, G. G. McCurkey, New York city, engaged in making fruit baskets and butter trays, $30,000; no insurance.

Thomas J. Whaley, mill and lumber, $5,000; no insurance.

Dilworth's mill and lumber, $2,500; no insurance.

DWELLINGS.

Noah Bradford, $800; insurance, $750.

Lucy Purnell, $300; insurance, $150.

St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, $5,000; insurance, $3,900.

SEXTONVILLE FIRE.

Early Saturday morning, October 8, 1904, eight frame dwelling houses were destroyed by fire in Sextonville, Baltimore county, a mile from the southwestern limits of Baltimore city. The houses were part of a row of fourteen frame buildings, the other six being saved by volunteer fire-fighters, who secured a hose and attached it to a water tank at the stock yards. The houses were occupied by laboring men and their families; and, while some of them lost all of their earthly possessions, the total loss by the fire did not exceed $7,000 or $8,000. The houses destroyed were occupied by the families of Frederick Schultz, George E. Smith, Henry Miller, Frederick Heinacker, John Grace, William H. Henderson, J. G. Carter and Mrs. Barbara Mafzer. These families, including 40 persons, were all rendered destitute and homeless.

MARYLAND AND THE NORTHWEST TERRITORY.

The following concise statement of the history of the decision of the Northwest Territory question by the firm stand taken by Maryland in the formation of the American Union is by Hon. Stevenson A. Williams, of Belair, Harford county, Md. The boundaries of the original colonies under their charters from Great Britain were very indefinite toward the West. For many years nobody had thought much of lands farther west than the Blue Ridge; those beyond were claimed and occupied by the Indians and French; but the peace of 1763 gave them to Great Britain; the soldiers of the colonies had contributed to their conquest; the colonies demanded them from England and secured them when peace was made. It was then that these indefinite Western boundaries led to the conflicting claims of Virginia, New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts to those rich and fertile lands which lay between the Ohio and Mississippi, out of which in later days the great States of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin were carved.

While the war was still raging Congress was endeavoring to secure a union of the colonies by the Articles of Confederation, and the great difficulty was the jealousy of the larger colonies on the part of the smaller ones, and the pretentious claims of the larger ones to this vast and fertile territory were a source of trouble and seemed to be a bar to that union which patriots looked upon as so necessary for the future of the colonies.

In October, 1777, about the time the Articles of Confederation were proposed to the Legislatures of the several colonies for ratification, it was moved by the members of Congress from Maryland "that the United States in Congress assembled shall have the sole and exclusive right and power to ascertain and fix the western boundary of such States as claim to the Mississippi or South sea, and lay out the land beyond the boundary so ascertained into separate and independent States from time to time, as the numbers and circumstances of the people may require." Only Maryland voted in the affirmative.

No further notice seems to have been taken of this resolution for some time, though kindred resolutions were once or twice offered by Maryland; the Articles of Confederation were ratified by all the colonies except Maryland, and in 1779 Maryland instructed her delegation in Congress not to ratify the Articles of Confederation until the land claims had been placed on a different basis; and thus the matter of the union of the colonies remained until March 1, 1781, when, after the larger colonies had agreed to waive their pretensions so that the Northwest Territory might be held for the benefit of the Union, Maryland ratified the Articles of Confederation, and the first legal union of the United States was completed. Then came the Acts of 1784 and 1787, whereby this great territory was finally set apart for the benefit of the Union to be erected later into free and independent States.

Undoubtedly the surrender by the larger colonies of their claims to this territory under the initiative and pressure of Maryland secured the Union and cemented it by the erection of a common territory which would inure for the benefit of all. Its vastness and wealth certainly drew to it many of the best and hardiest yeomen and forged them into creators of new empires, and when that great and ever impending contest came at last, those mighty sovereignties stood majestically for that Union and saved and preserved it, and today the real seat of imperial power in this vast country of ours may almost be said to be vested in the citizens of those great States.

LEGALIZED FLAG OF MARYLAND.

An act of the General Assembly of Maryland, of 1904, Ch. 48, was approved March 9, legalizing the Flag of Maryland and requiring that it be displayed from the State House at Annapolis continuously during the sessions of the legislature, and on such other public occasions as the Governor may direct. It is set forth in the law that the Flag designed and used as the Flag of Maryland under the Proprietary Government, and which is still known as the Maryland Flag, had never been formally adopted by Maryland as a State, its use having been continued by common consent only.

The coloring and arrangement of the Maryland State Flag thus legalized, is described in the law as follows: "Quartered, the first and fourth quarters being paly of six pieces, or and sable, a bend dexter countercharged; the second and third, quarterly, argent and gules, a cross bottony countercharged; that is to say, the first and fourth quarters consist of six vertical bars alternately gold and black, with a diagonal band on which the colors are reversed, the second and third consisting of a quartered field of red and white charged with a Greek Cross, its arms terminating in trefoils, with the colorings transposed, red being on the white ground and white on the red, and all being as represented upon the escutcheon of the present Great Seal of Maryland."

AREAS AND ALTITUDES OF MARYLAND.

The gross area of the State of Maryland, including that part of Chesapeake Bay in its borders, the broad estuaries at the mouths of the rivers and the lagoons on the Atlantic coast, is 12,210 square miles, of which 9,860 square miles are land area and the water surface 2,350 square miles.

The Chesapeake Bay divides the State into two parts, and extends from the capes up into Cecil and Harford counties, where the Susquehanna river empties into it at the north. On the eastern side the rivers emptying into the bay are the Elk, Sassafras, Chester, Third Haven, Choptank, Nanticoke, Wicomico and Pocomoke. The rivers on the west side of the bay are the Bush, Gunpowder, Patapsco, South, West, Severn, Patuxent and Potomac.

The topography of the State is extremely varied, ranging from level lands, but slightly elevated above the sea, to mountains and plateaus in the western part of the State 3,000 feet in altitude.

The peninsula east of Chesapeake Bay and a narrow strip west of that body of water constitute what is known as the Coastal Plain. This has an area of 5,000 square miles, or more than one-half of the land area of the State. The peninsula is very low and level, nowhere rising, 100 feet above tide and much of it, especially near the shore of the Atlantic Ocean and Chesapeake Bay, is marshy. The Atlantic coast is bordered by sand bars, including broad lagoons of shallow water on their landward side.

On the west side of Chesapeake Bay the Coastal Plain reaches an altitude of 300 feet in places, and shows much relief. Of the twenty-three counties of the State the following are comprised in the Coastal Plain: Worcester, Somerset, Wicomico, Dorchester, Caroline, Talbot, Queen Anne's, Kent, Cecil, on the peninsula, and Prince George's, Charles, Calvert, St. Mary's and Anne Arundel, west of Chesapeake Bay.

Along a line running through Havre de Grace, Baltimore and Washington the granite rocks rise to the surface. This is called the "fall line," from the fact that streams have rapids or falls where they flow across the first hard ledges. West of this line granite or allied rocks predominate, while east of it, on the Coastal Plain, are soft cretaceous and tertiary formations. This region extends from the fall line to the Blue Ridge, and has an area of about 2,500 square miles. It is known as the Piedmont Plateau, and comprises the following counties: Montgomery, Howard, Baltimore, Harford, Carroll and Frederick. This region presents much more relief, and is higher than the Coastal Plain.

The third zone, that of the Appalachain Mountains, extends from the Blue Ridge to the west boundary of the State, and has an area of about 2,000 square miles. It includes the counties of Washington and Garrett. In the main, this region consists of an alternation of valleys and mountain ridges, the mountains rising to altitudes of 2,000 and 3,000 feet. In the western part, mainly in Garrett county, is a plateau with a rolling surface 2,500 feet above sea level.

The mean elevation of the State is estimated at 350 feet. The areas in different zones of altitude are as follows:

	Square Miles.
Sea level to 100 feet.....	7,400
100 to 500 feet.....	2,000
500 to 1,000 feet.....	1,700
1,000 to 1,500 feet.....	300
1,500 to 2,000 feet.....	410
2,000 to 3,000 feet.....	400

This comprehensive description of the physical proportions of Maryland is mainly from the Gazetteer of Maryland, issued by the U. S. Geological Survey, and prepared by Mr. Henry Gannett, geographer.

POPULATION STATISTICS OF MARYLAND.

The Population of Maryland in 1900 by Federal Census was 1,188,044.

In 1730 Maryland was the sixth State in the Union in population. In 1900, although its inhabitants were 3.7 times as numerous, it had dropped to the twenty-sixth in rank, owing to the rapid growth of the newer States in the Mississippi Valley. In 1900 the average density of population was 120 persons to the square mile. It has five cities which exceed 6,000 inhabitants, of which Baltimore has over half a million. The other four are as follows: Cumberland, 17,128; Hagerstown, 13,591; Frederick, 9,296; and Annapolis, the capital, 8,525. These five cities contain 46.9 per cent. of the population of the entire State. In cities of more than 2,500 inhabitants live 48.8 per cent., or nearly one-half the population of the State, while the remainder, 51.2 per cent., may be regarded as rural. In 1900 the population was divided almost equally between the two sexes, 49.6 per cent. being males and 50.4 per cent. being females. In 1900 the whites formed 80.2 per cent. and the negroes 19.8 per cent., or nearly one-fifth of the population.

EDWIN F. ABELL.

Edwin Franklin Abell, president of the A. S. Abell Company, publishers of The Sun, died February 28, 1904, at his residence, northeast corner of Charles and Preston streets, in Baltimore city. He was born in Baltimore, May 15, 1840, and was in the 64th year of his age. He was the eldest of twelve children, and with him passed away the last of the sons of the late A. S. Abell, the founder of The Sun.

His brothers were: Charles S. Abell, who died December 3, 1875; Walter R. Abell January 3, 1891, and George W. Abell May 1, 1894.

Edwin F. Abell was educated in the public schools of Baltimore and also in Harford county and at Dalrymple's old University School of Maryland in Baltimore city where many prominent men of Baltimore were educated.

At the age of 16 Mr. Abell entered the counting-room of The Sun, and from that time had been almost continuously in business. Although always identified with the publishing of The Sun, he gave his attention more closely to the management of his father's estate, and not until the death of George W. Abell did he assume direct control of the paper.

With duties and responsibilities thus almost doubled by reason of his brother's death he was the directing head of the paper's politics and views on national questions and local affairs. With what success his efforts have been rewarded and esteemed by the entire State is best indicated by the respect and confidence with which The Sun is regarded in the thousands of homes it enters each day. There is probably no man occupying as commanding a position as he did whose personal identity was kept so carefully from public gaze as Mr. Abell studiously kept his. On public questions he was absolutely fearless in matters he thought right, and with calmness and judgment in arriving at his conclusions he made his ideas felt and respected by reason of their force and common sense.

With no personal wishes to be gratified in the political world, with no friends to reward or punish politically, he directed the columns of The Sun for what he believed to be the best interests of the community, irrespective of party or men; his only wish being to serve the State as he honestly thought it should be served by proper recommendations in legislation and in the conduct of public servants.

Aside from the public welfare, but three thoughts engaged his attention: those of The Sun, his father's estate and his home. Beyond the surroundings of his home he cared little or nothing for society and club life, preferring to have his friends at home, where as host he could entertain them free from conventionalities, just as his big and generous heart bade them welcome.

His charity, his kindness and his thoughtfulness of others, knew no bounds. No trouble was too great, no inconvenience too much of a tax upon his personal efforts to relieve those who were in need.

The shock of the great fire which visited Baltimore on February 7, 1904 was a great grief to him, aside from personal loss, as many of the improvements and recommendations that other property owners had made in years gone by resulted from his good and sound advice. As a judge of real estate he had few equals, and his long experience in the management of his father's estate gave him opportunities to display his excellent judgment in purchases and improvements. Believing that Baltimore, like other cities, would be visited by a great conflagration, he advocated and had erected The Sun's emergency building, at the southwest corner of Calvert and Saratoga streets, which has proven a refuge in time of distress. This building was one of the greatest benefits to The Sun in every particular and its creation was due to the wise foresight of Edwin F. Abell.

Mr. Abell was twice married, his first wife being the daughter of the late Henry R. Curley, and his widow a daughter of the late Francis B. Laurenson. He leaves by his former marriage two sons, Arunah S. Abell and W. W. Abell, who had been associated with him in business for some years, and a daughter, Mrs. James Dudley Morgan, of Washington.

Both branches of the City Council of Baltimore adopted resolutions February 29 in honor of Mr. Abell. In the Second Branch, the then President, Hon. E. Clay Timanus, offered the resolution declaring that Mr. Abell's death was a distinct loss to the city, especially at a time when his clear judgment, his ripe experience and distinguished patriotism were demanded for the restoration of Baltimore.

In the First Branch Hon. Stephen C. Little offered the resolution declaring full appreciation of Mr. Abell's efforts in behalf of the city, as evidenced by the course of The Sun under him.

The General Assembly of Maryland March 1, ordered resolutions to be spread on its journals and the Senate adjourned as a mark of respect. The Senate resolution by Hon. Thomas H. Robinson, of Harford county, declared that in Mr. Abell's course, in connection with The Sun, he labored effectively for the uplifting of the State.

Hon. Joshua H. Cockey, of Baltimore county, presented the resolutions in the House of Delegates declaring that the State had lost one of its foremost citizens.

ROBERT M. McLANE, MAYOR OF BALTIMORE.

Hon. Robert Milligan McLane, Mayor of Baltimore, died May 30, 1904, from the bullet of a pistol in his own hands in his room at his residence, No. 29 West Preston street. The bullet entered the right temple and came out above and behind the left ear. The occurrance created a profound impression in the city, second only to that of the disastrous fire of February 7-8, and like the fire was viewed as a calamity, because at the head of municipal affairs, Mr. McLane had exhibited qualities of mind and resourcefulness much needed in such an emergency. Indeed, he was well through with the burthen of executive work devolving upon the Mayor in this crisis. He had also gotten through with the pressure of office-seekers incident to entering upon the responsible office of Mayor. Beside all this he was but newly married with bright prospects before him on every side, and conscious of having won a large measure the increased respect of his fellow-citizens. He was remarkable for his equipoise of character and courteousness of manner. He never allowed himself to become excited, even under criticism, and always showed remarkable self-control and calmness.

He was born in Baltimore November 20, 1867, and was therefore in the 37th year of his age when he died. He was the youngest man ever chosen by the people of Baltimore for the office of Mayor. He was the son of Mr. James L. McLane and the nephew of Governor Robt. M. McLane, who was Minister to France during President Cleveland's first administration, and was named for this distinguished kinsman. He entered Johns Hopkins University at the age of 16 years. He took the classical course, and was graduated when 19 years old, but having earned a post-graduate scholarship, he remained at the University another year. Toward the close of 1888 he entered the law school of the University of Maryland and headed his class. In 1891 he began the practice of the law with his brother Allan McLane. He became assistant State's attorney of Baltimore city under the late Charles G. Kerr. In 1895, under Henry Duffy, he was promoted to the position of Deputy State's Attorney. He resigned in 1897 and spent some time in Europe. In 1899 he was elected State's Attorney, serving with brilliant success.

May 5, 1903, he was elected Mayor by 624 majority over Frank C. Wachter, the Republican candidate. The closeness of the vote gave rise to a contest, which was prolonged in the courts, raising doubt as to the lawfulness of the title and anxiety of mind for the incumbent; but was finally decided in his favor with convincing certainty. He took office May 19, 1903, and was consequently the chief municipal executive for one year and twenty days when he died. But this brief period was full of eventful local history and requirements on the energies of the Mayor, well calculated to strain and test the strongest character.

On May 14, 1904, Mr. McLane and Mrs. Mary Van Bibber were privately married in Washington, D. C., by Rev. George C. Carter, his personal friend. This step, taken in this way, was quite in accord with the Mayor's characteristic of always desiring to avoid unnecessary show or ostentation. His death occurred sixteen days after marriage, cutting off a promising career, just as its usefulness and importance to the community had begun to be developed and to be generally recognized.

Under the City Charter, providing that in case of vacancy in the office of Mayor, by death, resignation or permanent disqualification, the President of the Second Branch of the City Council shall be Mayor for the residue of the term for which the Mayor was elected, Hon. E. Clay Timanus, Republican, succeeded to the office, and took the oath of office, May 31, 1904.

HENRY M. STANLEY.

Henry M. Stanley the great explorer of Africa, died at his home, Richmond Terrace, Whitehall, London, England, May 10, 1904, aged 63 years. He was born at Denbigh, Wales, in 1841. His name was originally John Rowland. He was the son of a Welsh carpenter of the same name, but changed it in gratitude for the kindness shown him by Henry M. Stanley, a merchant of New Orleans who adopted him after Stanley came to America as a cabin boy on a ship out of Liverpool for New Orleans. He was well educated in Wales, but being high-spirited and adventurous, left his relatives and at Liverpool served for a time as a clerk in a butcher shop. During the Civil War in America he fought in the Confederate army and then enlisted in the U. S. navy, where he became an acting ensign on the ironclad Ticonderoga. After the Civil War he went to Abyssinia with the British expedition against King Theodore and distinguished himself as a war correspondent. He wrote letters from Spain during the Carlist uprising. He made the famous and successful search in the heart of Africa for the explorer Dr. Livingstone, and explored the lake sources of the Nile, making many important discoveries. On returning to England in 1872, honors were showered upon him, and from that time he devoted himself to African exploration. In these labors he placed himself at the head of a long list of adventurous explorers, who, from time to time contributed to the civilized world, important details concerning the dark continent. He took service from the King of Belgians in founding the Congo Free State in Africa. This work occupied him, from 1879 to 1882. He refused the Governorship of the Congo, and in 1886 undertook his expedition for the relief of the long-lost Emin Pasha. It was successful, as Stanley finally rescued Emin, but this was performed only at a terrible loss of life. Stanley was afterward in 1887, presented the freedom of the city of London and otherwise honored by British officials, but during the reaction that followed the Emin expedition, on account of the difficulty he had with Major Bartlett, commander of the military on the Emin expedition, he was reviled and hooted in the streets of the English capital. But he survived both adulation and revilings.

Stanley's popularity was not permanently lost, and in 1890 he revived it by marrying Miss Dorothy Tennant, an eminent artist, whose ambition was not wholly gratified until her husband had been elected to Parliament. It was in 1895 that he became an M. P., and four years later that he was knighted. It is said that Stanley was not a success in Parliament, being heavy and dull. He soon tired of the irksome life there. At the age of 61 he settled down to the life of the eminently respectable English gentleman, with a charming wife, a handsome competency, and honors thick upon him.

Among his books of travel are: "How I Found Livingstone," "Coomassie and Magdala," "In Darkest Africa," "Through the Dark Continent" and "Through South Africa."

AVALON, TILGHMAN'S ISLAND FIRE.

The village of Avalon, on Tilghman's Island, Talbot county, Md., was destroyed by fire March 16, 1904, every house with one single exception being burned. The explosion of a coal oil stove in the oyster packing house of Harrison Bros., started the fire. A strong northwest gale was blowing, and in an hour from the beginning of the fire four large oyster packing houses, one store, the postoffice, two private offices and five dwelling houses were swept away. All the buildings were wooden structures. The losses were estimated as follows:

Harrison Bros., $3,000; Howeth & Co., $1,800; Covington Bros., $2,500; James A. Roe, $2,000; W. S. Covington, store and goods, $2,500; Baltimore, Chesapeake and Atlantic pier, damaged, $500—total, $12,500, with but small insurance.

At Avalon, the largest oyster and crab packing business was carried on in Talbot county, and the fire threw many persons out of employment. About 200 colored persons were living at the wharf, employed as shuckers. All these were rendered homeless, many barely escaping with their lives.

W. Ruley Covington & Bro. saved their store by keeping water on the roof, and this was the only place saved.

MISSOURI BATTLESHIP DISASTER.

By the explosion at Pensacola, Florida, April 13, 1904, of 2,000 pounds of powder in the after 12-inch turret and the handling-room of the battleship Missouri, Capt. William S. Cowles commanding, 25 persons including 5 commissioned officers were instantly killed and five injured. The battleship was engaged in target practice.

The commissioned officers killed were:

Lieut. W. C. Davidson, in charge of the 12-inch turret.

Ensign E. A. Weichert, of the cruiser Cleveland, gun umpire.

Midshipman W. T. Neumann.

COURT OF ARBITRATION.

Judge—Arthur George Brown.
Clerk—Wm. H. Love.

Mr. Joseph R. Foard, the president, in his annual report, referred to the great fire in Baltimore and the rebuilding of the burnt district with wider streets and modern docks. The report says:

A better lighted and buoyed 35-foot channel must be secured.

Baltimore's differentials must be maintained.

The construction of a modern sewerage system must be started as soon as possible.

The widening of Light street must be continued on between Pratt and Lee streets, to make Light Street wharf conform to the general plan of improved docks and piers.

The suggested system of park extension must not be too long postponed.

Oyster legislation must be secured.

Manufacturers must be encouraged to locate in Baltimore. In years past the principal fortunes of Baltimore were accumulated "on the wharf." It is not so today. Baltimore consumes over 750 barrels of refined sugar a day and would be the best possible distributing point for the districts to the south and west of us. Under such circumstances, why should the Sugar-Trust refinery at Curtis Bay stand idle, or why cannot an independent one be constructed and operated?

WARRANT FOR $40,000,000.

The Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, Hon. Leslie M. Shaw, signed a Treasury warrant for $40,000,000, which he delivered in person May 9, 1904 to J. P. Morgan & Co., of New York, as disbursing agents of this Government, on account of the Panama Canal purchase.

The warrant was dated May 9, and was many times larger than any warrant ever before issued by this Government. The largest sum previously covered by a single Government warrant was for $7,200,000, paid to Russia in 1868 on account of the Alaskan purchase. The next largest sum was $5,500,000, paid in 1876 to the British Government on account of the Halifax award under the treaty of Washington for infringement of fisheries rights in Nova Scotian waters.

In 1899 this Government paid Spain, through the French Ambassador, $20,000,000 for the Philippine Islands, but this sum was represented by four warrants of $5,000,000 each. The $15,000,000 agreed upon as the purchase price for the Louisiana Territory was paid in 1803 by the assumption by the United States of the claims of citizens of this country against France, amounting to $3,750,000, and the issue to France of certificates of stock in the sum of $11,250,000.

NEW YORK SUBWAY SYSTEM.

October 27, 1904, the New York Subway or Underground Railway System of 35 miles was opened for public travel. The system cost for construction and equipment more than $75,000,000. Three years and 7 months were consumed by an army of nearly ten thousand men to construct the Subway. It was necessary to excavate about 3,212,000 cubic yards of material, of which 1,900,000 cubic yards was earth, and 1,312,000 cubic yards of rock had to be blasted. The total length of track laid is 305,000 feet, of which 245,000 feet is underground and 60,000 feet is on elevated structures.

BARTHOLDI, THE FRENCH SCULPTOR.

Frederick Auguste Bartholdi, the French Sculptor, died of tuberculosis in Paris, October 4, 1904, aged 70 years. He left uncompleted a group intended to be erected in Paris in honor of the aeronauts who distinguished themselves at the siege of Paris.

Bartholdi was born at Colmar, Alsace, in 1834, and at first studied painting under Ary Scheffer, but soon abandoned it for sculpture, and produced a number of statues, allegorical groups and monuments in bronze and in marble. Among them the best known are the colossal figure of "Liberty Enlightening the World," a colossal group presented by France to Switzerland, the Lafayette Statue in New York, the equestrian statue of Vercingetorix in Paris, and the "Lion of Belfort," which is generally considered his masterpiece.

The Statue of Liberty was presented to the people of the United States by the people of France. It stands on Bedloe's Island, in New York harbor. The gift was designed to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of American independence. It was, however, not placed in position until 1885, and it was dedicated on October 23, 1886. The statue represents a female figure holding a torch aloft. It is the loftiest statue in the world. The figure measures 111 feet in height, and to the extremity of the torch 151.41 feet. The torch is 305 feet 11 inches above mean tide. Forty persons can stand within the head, to which there is access by staircase inside of the statue; a branch staircase leads into the extended arm. The torch is equipped with an electric light. The foundation was contributed by subscription among the American people.

WILD DUCK SHOOTING.

The Maryland State Law allows the shooting of wild ducks from November 1 to April 10, and prohibits shooting at any other time.

The shooting on what is known as the "Susquehanna Flats," from November 1 to March 31, is restricted to an area of not less than a quarter of a mile from shore, northward of a line beginning at Turkey Point lighthouse, Cecil county, and drawn westward to a point half a mile north of the most northern part of Spesutia Island; thence westward half mile north of the adjacent mainland to the shore of Harford county, at or near Oakington, and south of a line drawn east from Concord Point lighthouse, in Harford county, to Carpenter's Point, Cecil county.

The shooting days, until January 1, within the lines above described, are Monday, Wednesday and Friday of each week. After January 1, shooting is allowed on Saturday also. The law prohibits night shooting and anchoring of boats on any but gunning days, or going over the waters on gunning days before five o'clock A. M.

Persons desiring to shoot ducks on the flats of the Susquehanna must do so from licensed sink-boxes or sneak boats. These licenses are issued only to actual residents of Harford and Cecil counties.

On the Susquehanna Flats it is lawful to shoot teal, mallards, black ducks, baldpate, and other wild ducks, known as "marsh ducks," from one hour before sunrise to one hour after sunset every day from August 15 to October 1.

The law prohibits the shooting of waterfowl while bedded in flocks on their roosting or feeding grounds; the use of a booby blind or artificial point more than one hundred yards from the shore, and the use of big guns or swivel guns from any boat in any part of the State.

Bona-fide citizens of Cecil and Kent counties may shoot from sink-boxes in Sassafras river, upon obtaining a license, on Mondays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, between November 1 and March 31.

The same shooting days are allowed for Elk and Bohemia rivers in Cecil county.

Shooting at night or with "big guns" is prohibited, and there are other restrictions, but in spite of the numerous regulations the ducks have steadily decreased, largely on account of the long open seasons, market hunting, and battery shooting, although the diminution of the birds is sometimes assigned to failure of their favorite food at certain points in the bay, and to the increase in fishing. The general decrease of ducks throughout the East is doubtless also largely responsible for the diminished numbers that annually visit the flats.

DAN PATCH'S PACING RECORD.

At Memphis, Tenn., October 26, 1904, Dan Patch, the bay stallion by Joe Patchen, driven by Hersey, paced a mile in 1 minute and 56 seconds, making the fastest mile ever gone by any harness horse in the world.

The previous record was 1 minute 56¼ seconds, made by Dan Patch, driven by Myron J. McHenry, on October 22, 1903, at Memphis, and the best previous record was 1.57, made by Prince Alert on the Empire City track on September 23, 1903.

Dan Patch is owned by M. W. Savage, of Minneapolis; foiled in 1896.

His time by quarters in the race against time at Memphis, October 26, 1904, behind a wind-shield, was:

Quarter Mile—29 seconds.
Half Mile—57½ seconds.
Three-quarters—1 minute 26½ sec.
Mile—1 minute 56 seconds.

SUFFRAGE IN MARYLAND.

Proposed Amendment to the Constitution of the State.

The General Assembly of Maryland, at the session of 1904, passed an Act, three-fifths of all the members of each house concurring, to submit to the legal and qualified voters of the State, at the next general election, November 7, 1905, the following as an amendment of Section 1 of Article 1 of the Constitution of the State:

"Section 1. All elections by the people shall be by ballot. Every male citizen of the United States, whether native born or naturalized, of the age of 21 years or upward, who has resided in this State for one year and in the Legislative district of Baltimore city or in the county in which he may offer to vote for six months next preceding the election, and who moreover, is duly registered as a qualified voter, as provided in this article, shall be entitled to vote in the ward or election district in which he resides at all elections hereafter to be held in this State, and in case any county or city shall be so divided as to form portions of different electoral districts for the election of Representatives in Congress, Senators, Delegates or other officers, he must have been a resident of that part of the county or city which shall form a part of the electoral district in which he offers to vote for six months next preceding the election; but a person who shall have acquired a residence in such county or city, entitling him to vote at any such election, shall be entitled to vote in the election district from which he removed until he shall have acquired a residence in the part of the county or city to which he has removed. Every such male citizen of the United States having the above-prescribed qualifications of age and residence shall be entitled to be registered so as to become a qualified voter if he be—

THE TEST.

First—A person able to read any section of the Constitution of this State submitted to him by the officers of registration and to give a reasonable explanation of the same; or, if unable from physical disability to read such section, but able to understand and give a reasonable explanation thereof when read to him by the registration officers; or

Second—A person who on the first day of January, 1869, or prior thereto, was entitled to vote under the laws of this State or of any other State of the United States wherein he then resided; or,

Third—Any male lineal descendant of such last mentioned persons. No person not thus qualified by coming under some one of the above descriptions shall be entitled to be registered as a qualified voter nor be entitled to vote.

The General Assembly decided that it was not necessary to send this act to the Governor for his approval as it is an Act for an amendment to the Constitution passed in conformity with existing constitutional requirements—namely a three-fifths vote of all the members of each house. The Act was therefore filed with the Clerk of the Court of Appeals; it was not published in the volume of the laws of the State for 1904, and its legal and binding force may be contested before its requirements are carried out at the polls on November 7, 1905.

BALTIMORE SCHOOL SYSTEM.

The School Commissioners of Baltimore City are appointed by the Mayor. The Mayor designates the president of the School Board. The term of the Commissioners is six years, and three of the nine will retire at the end of everey two years.

The Board of School Commissioners appoints the City Superintendent of Public Instruction and Assistant Superintendents; also, one or more visitors to each school, the visitors to serve without pay.

The school teachers are selected by the Superintendent and his assistants, in accordance with the merit system and subject to confirmation by the School Board. The Commissioners appoint the faculty of the City College and the teachers of the Polytechnic Institute and the high schools, as well as various subordinate officers in the department.

Church and party ties shall not be regarded by the Mayor in making his selections, the intention being to keep the public schools entirely out of the field of political and religious differences. Ward lines are also abolished in making selections.

A Compulsory Education Act was passed by the General Assembly of 1902, which was limited in its operations to Baltimore City and Allegany county. The Act requires children between eight and twelve years of age to attend school. Attendance officers were authorized and appointed to enforce the law, and penalties are provided for violations.

MARYLAND STATE SCHOOL LAW OF 1904.

The following is a summary of the provisions of the Maryland State School Law, as revised by the General Assembly of 1904, and promulgated by State Superintendent of Education M. Bates Stephens for the information of the county school boards:

1. The office of the State Board of Education and State Superintendent of Education will be transferred from Baltimore to Annapolis. You will be notified when this transfer is made.

2. The State Board of Education is now composed of eight members, consisting of six appointed by the Governor, and the Governor and the State Superintendent of Education. The terms of the members of the State board correspond to those of the County School Commissioners, and minority representation is provided.

3. The State Superintendent of Public Education is Secretary of the State Board of Education.

4. The official title of the secretary of the county school board is "secretary, treasurer and county superintendent." The name "examiner" does not occur in the new law.

5. The secretary, treasurer and county school superintendent is appointed in the month of May, when the board is organized, but does not enter upon his new duties until the beginning of the scholastic year, August first.

Schools where the average is less than 15 are in the control of the county school board, who determine the school year and the amount of salary to be paid the teacher.

16. Where the school board fails to provide a school year of nine months, and the minimum salary of $300, to white teachers whose schools average 15, the Comptroller will withhold the March installment of the school tax.

HEALTH BOARD FUNCTIONS.

The State Board of Health has general supervision of sanitary matters in the State. It has the power of investigation into all causes of disease, and under certain conditions can make rules which, for the time being, have the force of law. The right to local self-government in sanitary matters is fully provided for in the public health laws, and the local unit is the county.

The county commissioners of the several counties are local boards of health, and are required to appoint a health officer, who must be a physician, and within his jurisdiction operates the laws upon vital statistics, nuisances, and infectious diseases. The county health officers has recourse for advice and assistance to the State Board of Health and to the chemical and bacteriological laboratories maintained by the State Board of Health. The State Board of Health cannot exercise any authority against the will of the local board of health except in regard to matters affecting more than one local sanitary jurisdiction, or upon proof that the safety of the locality is imperiled by neglect or incompetence of the local board.

County health officers are local registrars of vital statistics and must execute the provisions of the law which forbids the burial of a human body before a proper certificate of death has been filed and a permit to bury has been granted. For public convenience there are sub-registrars in each election district, whose duty is to receive certificates and issue permits. Wherever a physician was in attendance, the cause of death must be certified by the physician. Penalties are provided for neglect on the part of either physician or undertaker.

Physicians and midwives are required also to report births occurring under their care.

The certificates of birth and death thus coming into the hands of the local registrar are returned each month to the State Board of Health.

Physicians are required to notify the local health officer of each case of infectious disease coming under observation. The local health officer must in turn notify the school boards and must become responsible for restrictive measures, including isolation, disinfection, quarantine, vaccination, &c.

Practicing physicians throughout the State have recourse to the bacteriological laboratory of the State Board of Health for aid in the diagnosis of certain infectious diseases, as typhoid fever, tuberculosis, diptheria and malaria. For this purpose, mailing stations are established at convenient points, enabling physicians to transmit their specimens with speed and safety.

The State Board of Health has also power to inspect all articles of food and drink, to prevent the sale of unsound or diseased meats, to expose fraudulent or adulterated food materials, and to punish wilful violations of the food laws.

Chapter 412 of the Acts of 1904, requires the State Board of Health to keep a register of all persons affected with tuberculosis, the information being supplied by physicians and by the responsible officials of public institutions. The contents of the register are not open to inspection, nor may they be disclosed except to certain officials.

The same act makes it a misdemeanor to let for hire a house or apartment previously occupied by a consumptive before such a house or apartment has been properly disinfected by a board of health.

Chapter 399 of the Acts of 1904, authorizes the State Board of Health to furnish through physicians certain necessary articles and materials with definite instructions to each citizen of the State known to be suffering with consumption. These supplies are furnished by the State Board of Health to each local board of health, and these in turn supply the physicians. Each physician delivering such supplies, and giving detailed advice concerning the prevention of tuberculosis, to an infected household is entitled, on approval of his written report, to a fee of one dollar and a half.

POLICE APPOINTING POWER.

The General Assembly of Maryland in 1900 changed the method of appointing the three police commissioners for Baltimore City, which was, up to that time, made by the Legislature, for terms of six years, and vested the appointing power in the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The term of each commissioner was fixed at two years, beginning on the first Monday of May, 1900. The law requires that two of the commissioners shall always be adherents of the two leading political parties of the State—one from each of those parties. No restriction of this kind applies to the third member of the board. The oath of office requires that political considerations shall not influence the commissioners in appointing, promoting, reducing in rank or discharging any member of the police or detective force.

Three police examiners, also appointed by the Governor, with the advice and consent of the Senate, for two-year terms, were authorized, the selections to be made as in the case of the commissioners, one from each of the two leading parties in the State and one without such restriction. The examiners were required to make rules for carrying the law into effect. Their duties are to ascertain the qualifications, by competitive examination, of every candidate for appointment to or promotion in the police force, except the marshal of police, captain of detectives, counsel of the board and police surgeons. They are required to make up graded lists of the candidates examined by them. These lists are reported to the commissioners, who may accept or reject any or all the nominees, from time to time, but all appointments must be made from graded lists. The examinations must be open, public and practical competitive examinations. Church and party ties are not to be regarded in the selections, "so that the police department may be entirely out of the field of political and religious differences, controversies and influences." The oath of office of the examiners is to the same effect, in this particular, as that for the commissioners.

Chief Justices.

The list of Chief Justices of the Court of Appeals of Maryland since the date of its organization, in 1778, is as follows:

Benjamin Rumsey	1778—1806	Richard John Bowie	1861—1867
Jeremiah Townley Chase	1806—1824	James Lawrence Bartol	1867—1883
John Buchanan	1824—1845	Richard Henry Alvey	1883—1893
Stephenson Archer	1845—1851	John Mitchell Robinson	1893—1896
John Carroll Le Grand	1851—1861	James McSherry	1896—

The Court of Appeals as at first organized, in 1778, was composed of five judges, who did no circuit duty. In 1806 it was reorganized upon the plan which now prevails. This system was changed to an independent court in 1851, but it was found to be unsatisfactory, and the old method of the judges doing circuit duty was resumed in 1867.

THE JUDICIARY SYSTEM.

The judges of the courts in Maryland, except the Orphans' Court, are elected for 15 years. They are required to be not less than 30 years of age at the time of election, and are re-eligible until the age of 70 years, but not thereafter, though the Legislature, by joint resolution, may enable any judge already in office to fill out an unexpired term beyond the limit. The counties are grouped into seven circuits, and the City of Baltimore is designated as the eighth circuit. A chief judge and two associate judges are provided for each circuit in the counties. The chief judges of the county circuits and a judge specially elected in Baltimore City constitute the Court of Appeals. The Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, designates the member of the Court of Appeals who shall be the chief or presiding judge of that tribunal. A court is required to be held in each county of the State, to be styled the Circuit Court for the county in which it may be held. No two of the associate judges shall reside in the same county. Baltimore City, the eighth Judicial Circuit, is provided with a Supreme Bench—a chief and eight associate judges, in addition to one associate judge of the Court of Appeals. The total number of judges is 31.

The salaries of judges are as follows: Court of Appeals, $4,500; Associate of the Circuit Courts, $3,600; Supreme Bench, Baltimore City, $5.000, of which $4,500 is paid by the State and $500 by the City of Baltimore.

COURT FOR JUVENILES.

The General Assembly of 1902 passed an Act, Ch. 611, for the appointment by the Governor of an additional Justice of the Peace in Baltimore City, to be known as "The Magistrate for Juvenile Causes," who shall be a member of the bar of the city, and be paid $2,100 a year by the city. To this magistrate is committed "all cases of trial or commitment for trial, or of commitment to any reformatory or other institution of all minors under 16 years of age, in all cases where jurisdiction thereof is given by law to any justice of the peace in Baltimore City." In commitments to reformatory institutions the wishes of parents and guardians are to have due consideration.

Probation officers, persons of either sex, appointed by the Supreme Bench of Baltimore City, and serving without pay, are charged with the duty of investigating cases of crime or incorrigible and vicious conduct. The probation officer is required to be present at the hearing of the case, to represent the interests of the child; to furnish the court with such information and assistance as may be required, and, in the discretion of the court, to have control and custody of the child before and after trial. The court, either before trial, with the consent of the child or its parents or guardian, or after conviction, may, in its discretion, suspend further proceedings during the good behavior of the child, and place it in the care of any of the probation officers for such time and upon such conditions as may seem proper. The probation officer may bring such child before the court at any time during the period for which it was committed to his care.

Charles W. Heuisler, of the Bar of Baltimore City, is the Justice of the Peace for the Court of Juveniles.

MORTALITY FROM TUBERCULOSIS.

In the United States to each 10,000 population 13.09 white people die annually of tuberculosis (consumption) and 24.97 negroes; in Maryland the white race loses from this disease 21.75 in each 10,000 population, while the negro race loses 38.86. In the city of Baltimore tuberculosis carries off 17.84 whites per 10,000 and 45.04 negroes.

STEAMBOAT INVENTORS.

August 26, 1791, patents were simultaneously granted to four men—Fitch, Read, Rumsey and Stevens for water craft to be propelled by steam.

Of these James Rumsey, a native of Cecil county, Md., undoubtedly was the first man to successfully apply steam to water navigation. As early as 1784 he secured from the Maryland Legislature the passage of an act granting him "an exclusive privilege and benefit of making and selling new invented boats on a model by him invented." The next year Rumsey successfully employed steam power in a boat he built upon the Potomac and brought down from Sheperdstown to Harper's Ferry. Thus Rumsey was the first pioneer to pave the way for Fulton.

METHOD OF APPOINTING SUPERVISORS.

Three supervisors of elections are appointed for each county of Maryland and for the City of Baltimore every two years by the Governor, "by and with the advice and consent of the Senate," if in session, and if not in session then by the Governor alone.

Four names are required to be submitted to the Executive for each county and the City of Baltimore, by the State Central Committees representing each of the two leading political parties of the State, from each of which lists the Governor will select one person to be a supervisor for each party. In case all of the four persons first named by a party committee are deemed "unfit" by the Governor or "incompetent" for the position, he is empowered to file a written statement to that effect with the Secretary of State, and then call upon the committee for another list of six names. From these and the original list he shall make the appointment. The third supervisor he selects without restriction, except as to locality.

The pay of supervisors in Baltimore City is $1,500 a year for each, and in the counties from $100 to $150 a year. Each board of supervisors in the counties may have clerks, with the consent of the County Commissioners, who fix the pay. In Baltimore City a clerk at a salary of $2,000 a year and a messenger at $800 a year are authorized, with such other temporary assistance as the supervisors may consider necessary from time to time within the limit of $2,000 a year. The supervisors' office is in the Court House.

CARNEGIE HERO FUND.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, in addition to his many previous gifts for the endowment of public libraries and various educational agencies, made known on April 15, 1904, a plan he had formulated to create a fund of $5,000,000 for the benefit of "the dependents of those losing their lives in heroic effort to save their fellowmen, or for the heroes themselves if injured only."

The endowment is to be known as "The Hero Fund," and consists of $5,000,000 of first collateral 5 per cent. bonds of the United States Steel Corporation. The trust was placed in the hands of a commission.

"First—To place those following peaceful vocations who have been injured in heroic efforts to save human life in somewhat better positions pecuniarily than before, until again able to work. In case of death, the widow and children or other dependents to be provided for until she remarries, and the children until they are of self-supporting age. For exceptional children exceptional grants may be made for exceptional educations. Grants of sums of money may also be made to heroes or heroines, as the commission thinks advisable, each case to be judged on its merit.

"Second—No grant is to be continued unless it be soberly and properly used, and the recipients remain respectable, well-behaved members of the community, but the hero, heroes or heroine to be given a fair trial, no matter what their antecedents. Heroes deserve pardon and a fresh start.

"Third—A medal shall be given to the hero or widow or next of kin, which shall recite the deed it commemorates, that descendants may know and be proud of their descent. The medal shall be given for the heroic act, even if the doer be uninjured, and also a sum of money, should the commission deem such gift desirable.

"Fourth—Many cities provide pensions for policemen, firemen, teachers and others, and some may give rewards for acts of heroism. All these and other facts the commission will take into account and act accordingly in making grants.

"Nothing could be further from my intention than to deaden or interfere with these last creditable provisions, doubly precious as showing public and municipal appreciation of faithful and heroic service. I ask from the commission most careful guard against this danger. The medal can, of course, be offered in such cases. Whether something more cannot judiciously be done at the request of or with the approval of the city authorities, the commission shall determine. I hope there can be.

"Fifth—The claims upon the fund for some years cannot exhaust it. After years, however, pensioners will become numerous. Should the commission find, after allowing liberally for this, that a surplus will remain, it has the power to make grants in case of accidents (preferably where a hero has appeared) to those injured.

"The action taken in the recent Harwick mine accident, where Heroes Taylor and Lyle lost their lives, is an illustration.

"The community first raised a fund of $40,000, which was duplicated by me after waiting until the generosity of the community had full scope. Here again the commission should be exceedingly careful, as in this case, not to deaden, but to stimulate, employers or communities to do their part, for such action benefits givers themselves as well as recipients.

"Sixth—It seems probable that cities and employes on this continent will ultimately be placed under similar conditions to those of Great Britain, Germany and other European states, and required to provide against accidents to employes. Therefore, the commission, by a two-thirds vote, may devote any surplus that accrues beyond providing for heroes and their dependents (which provision must never be abandoned) to such other modes of benefiting those in want, chiefly caused through no fault of their own (such as drunkenness, laziness, crime, etc.), but through exceptional circumstances, in which manner and to such extent as the commission thinks advisable and likely to do more good than if such funds were given to those injured by accident, where the latter may be suitably provided for by law or otherwise.

"Seventh—The field embraced by the fund is Canada and the United States and waters thereof. The sea is the scene of many heroic acts. No action is more heroic than that of doctors and nurses volunteering their services in the case of epidemics. Railroad employes are remarkable for heroism. All those and similar cases are embraced. Whenever heroism is displayed by man or woman in saving human life the fund applies."

Mr. Carnegie's gifts so far foot up a total of $72,212,923, of which $52,270,173 went to the United States, the balance to Scotland, England, Ireland, Canada and a small part to Cuba.

NEW HOME FOR JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY.

On the opposite page is given a map of the ground-work plans for developing Homewood, which in time is to become the site of the Johns Hopkins University buildings.

The main entrances to the grounds are on Charles street at what will be Thirty-third and Thirty-fourth streets. From these entrances avenues in semi-circular form will meet about 300 feet from Charles street, forming one principal avenue, which will run straight through Homewood to Wyman Park on the west. About 600 feet from Charles street and facing on the principal avenue will be located the administration building. Directly across the avenue on the south will be the assembly hall, which will have a capacity of at least 2,000. Proceeding along the main avenue about 200 feet farther, a circle about 250 feet in diameter, is formed. From the circle, running almost directly south, is a wide mall, about 700 feet long. At the end of this mall on the south a museum is to be located, while just north of the circle at the head of the mall is to be the library building. On either side of the mall are to be three laboratories, while at the head are to be two class-room buildings. West of the circle and facing one another on the main avenue will be two more museum buildings, while a little further in the center of the main avenue will be the chapel. North of the main entrance and about 250 feet from Charles street will be a line of dormitory buildings and a dining-hall.

The gymnasium is to be located near Merryman's lane, not far from Charles street, while the athletic field will be northwest of this structure, facing on Merryman's lane, from which there will be an entrance to the grounds.

In the plans provision is made for an increase in the size of the buildings and for new edifices to be erected as necessity demands.

The present needs of the University are as follows:

Library.
Administration building.
Class rooms.
Laboratories.
Levering Hall (Y. M. C. A.).
Dining hall.
Dormitory.
Gymnasium.
Athletic field.
Tennis courts.

The future needs are:

Assembly hall.
Museums.
Chapel.
Laboratories.
Dormitories.
President's house.

The State Geological and Economic Survey is established for the purpose of examining the geological formations and mineral resources of the State of Maryland with special reference to their economic products and for the preparation of reports and maps illustrating the character and distribution of the mineral resources. The Survey maintains a Highway Division under special Acts of the General Assembly. It likewise carries on work in hydrography, forestry, terrestrial magnetism, and the mapping of the agricultural soils in co-operation with the National Government. The most important feature of this joint work is the preparation and publication by counties of a topographic map of the State on the scale of 1 mile to 1 inch.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition or World's Fair at St. Louis, Mo., opened May 1 and closed December 1.

The last day was called Francis Day, in honor of David R. Francis, the president, and it was declared a holiday by Governor Dockery in recognition of the splendid work of the Exposition's chief executive.

Ex-President Cleveland and President Roosevelt attended the opening ceremonies, and President Roosevelt visited the Fair again November 26.

The Exposition commemorated the one hundredth anniversary of the purchase of Louisiana Territory from France by President Thomas Jefferson in 1803.

The work of planning and building the Exposition lasted seven years.

The Fair received $5,000,000 from the Government, $5,000,000 from the city and $5,000,000 from individual stockholders. In addition it obtained a loan of $4,600,000 from the Government, which was repaid.

At the close it was thought that the stockholders would receive a dividend of about 6 per cent., which would make the Fair a financial success beyond expectations.

Vice-President and Secretary—Robert H. Smith.
Treasurer—Robt. K. Waring.

Julian LeRoy White. R. Brent Keyser.
E. Stanley Gary. Dr. J. M. T. Finney.

Principal of the School—S. T. Moreland.

The qualifications of candidates for admission into this free school for boys, founded by John McDonogh, born in Baltimore, December 29, 1779, and died in New Orleans, October 26, 1850, are as follows:

1. They must be poor boys, of good character, of respectable associations in life, residents of the City of Baltimore.

2. They must be sound and healthy in mind and body.

3. They must be between 10 and 14 years of age.

4. They must pass a competitive examination.

Applications for admission should be made to German H. Hunt, president of the Board of Trustees at any time of the year. Applications, however, are so numerous that admission is determined by competitive examinations held early in June at some convenient place in Baltimore, of which candidates are notified. The examinations are in simple arithmetic, reading, writing and elementary geography. The regular term at the school ends when the boy is 16 years of age, but the earning of a scholarship may enable him to continue there one year longer.

Students get military training, instruction in farm and shop work, surveying, short-hand and type writing, in machinery, woodwork, typesetting and other industries.

The property of the foundation consists of 835 acres of land in a beautiful and healthy region, 12 miles northwest of Baltimore City, with commodious buildings; an endowment fund of $725,600 from John McDonogh invested in Baltimore City bonds; bequest of Dr. Zenus Barnum of $80,000 to promote mechanical instruction and manual training; bequest of Saml. H. Tagart of $175,000.

The value of this property aggregated about $1,300,000 and the net loss to the great institution about $500,000, which was made good, as stated elsewhere, by Mr. John D. Rockefeller, of New York. In a statement given to the public immediately after the fire the hospital officials said:

"The money derived from the rental of these buildings, which is estimated at $100,000 a year, was devoted to the free work of the Hospital, with about $35,000 derived from the rental of other property in control of the trustees."

STORY OF THE BALTIMORE FIRE, FEBRUARY, 1904.

The Baltimore Fire of February, 1904, may very properly be ranked among the great conflagrations of modern times. The fire originated in the dry goods warehouse of the John E. Hurst Company, at the corner of German and Sharp streets, between 10 and 11 o'clock on Sunday morning, February 7. The fire began in the cellar, underneath the vault-lights of the building fronting on German street and was announced by automatic fire alarm. When the firemen arrived and broke in the doors they found smoke on the first floor coming up from the basement. "Shortly afterwards," according to the insurance adjustment committee's report, "an explosion occurred, followed by a second explosion, and in a short time the fire passed beyond the control of the fire department." No watchman was employed on the premises and the adjustment committee assumed, after thorough investigation, that the high wind which prevailed Saturday night must have carried the stump of a lighted cigar, cigarette or match through a hole in the "deadeyes" of the pavement into the basement, where "directly under the vault-lights" of the pavement "were stored blankets and cotton goods in cases with the covers removed."

It is assumed that the fire thus dropping into one or more of these cases of goods smouldered until the alarm was given, filling the building with smoke, and that "directly the doors were opened by the firemen, the flames rushed up to the top shaft and caused the explosion of the compressed smoke and vapor."

A strong wind was blowing from the southwest, and within about an hour, eight or ten buildings on Hopkins Place in the neighborhood were in flames. A box filled with cartridges or gunpowder on the sidewalk in front of a hardware store on the northeast corner of Hopkins Place and German street, exploded, damaging several buildings to such an extent that they became an easy prey to the flames. The fire spread to the north and east, rapidly devouring block after block of buildings. As many as ten blocks were in flames by nightfall, notwithstanding the extreme exertions of the firemen. By eight o'clock the wind shifted and blew the fire, which had at that time acquired a volume of its own, straight down Lombard, German, Baltimore and Fayette streets. Overhead the sky was filled with flying fire—borne from the west toward the east.

In the effort to stay the progress of the flames, dynamite was used in ten places or more. It was used at Charles street, near Lombard street; at Baltimore street, near Charles street; at Charles and Fayette street; at Frederick street and at Cheapside. But the blowing up of houses had no good effect; on the contrary it helped the progress of the fire according to the opinion of experienced firemen. At least dynamite was not used on a scale extensive enough to create a wide vacancy between the houses which were in direct line of the conflagration.

Those who watched the advance of the fire down Baltimore street were greatly impressed by the deliberate progress of the "devouring element," as it involved building after building on both sides of the street, while the dynamiters in front were clearing the way and ropes were stretched to keep back the crowds of spectators, and the firemen were stubbornly retreating before the enemy, step by step, stopping here and there to play upon houses showered with flying embers. It was an heroic but fruitless struggle. Landmark after landmark went down. The lofty "skyscrapers" on Charles, St. Paul, Calvert and Baltimore streets and the solid brick structure, the B. & O. Central Building, and the Equitable and Calvert Buildings burned like great torches high up in the air.

It was the same old experience of Boston, of Portland, Me., of Chicago, under similar circumstances. Nothing but burnt clay—bricks and cement could stand against a conflagration which had developed 2,500 degrees of heat and was carrying itself along by its own volume—perfectly irresistable, and against which no water supply or fire apparatus—no human effort could be effective.

Extreme exertion helped to save the magnificent row of public buildings on the north side of Fayette street, from St. Paul street to Holliday street—the Court House, the Postoffice and the City Hall. But it was more by a fortunate change of the wind about midnight, that saved these structures, than any human effort. While the fire was marching with stately progress eastward, the wind chopped around and blew strongly from the northwest. But before the change occurred flying embers set fire to blocks on the south side of Baltimore street below Gay street, and to the Maryland Institute and the Marsh Market. The change carried the flames towards the water and the docks on the south, while on Baltimore street the fire stopped at Jones Falls.

The public buildings were saved, though not without heavy damage to the St. Paul street front of the Court House, but devastation was carried down Calvert street, down South street, and Holliday street and Gay street, wiping out hotels, newspaper offices, bank buildings, warehouses and nearly everything in the way, clear to the water-front of the inner harbor or "Basin" as it is called.

It was a great struggle between the northwest wind and the volume of caloric which had been generated at 2,500 degrees of heat and trending towards the eastward, but the gale prevailed. Overhead, high in the air, the swirl of flying embers could be seen slowly circling toward the southward in obedience to the direction of the wind.

It was shortly after midnight when the American newspaper office on the southwest corner of Baltimore and South streets was enveloped in flames which quickly spread down South street and across to its opposite neighbor, The Sun Iron Building, involving all in common ruin. Dawn came, and still the fire swept onward, crippling the business and industrial energies of the city. It broke up nearly all the banks, burnt out the telegraph and telephone lines, crippled the street-car service, destroyed most of the insurance offices, wiped out a number of hotels and many eating houses, swept away the Chamber of Commerce, Stock Exchange and the Merchants' Club, and on Gay and Fayette streets left standing only the square tower of the Church of the Messiah—the only church involved in the disaster.

Occurring on Sunday, there were few or no employes of the various industrial establishments on duty, and the fire is remarkable therefore for the absence of any casualties. Not a life was lost. But few homes were broken up. A few families residing in the burnt district were rendered homeless, but no destitution followed the fire. Generous offers of pecuniary assistance were made from various cities, but they were not accepted. The legislature of Maryland granted a relief fund of $250,000, but less than $24,000 of it was used. About 30,000 wage-earners were temporarily thrown out of employment, but in most cases for a few days only and the work of clearing away the ruins and rebuilding speedily furnished employment for many thousands of men.

While the fire was still burning the General Assembly of Maryland on the recommendation of Gov. Edwin Warfield, passed a law making February 8 to February 15, both inclusive, a legal holiday, so far as the payment of drafts, notes and bills of exchange were concerned, with power to the executive to still further extend the time, which he did to February 22. This suspension was to afford the banks time to seek temporary quarters and get ready to resume business. Another thing the Governor did while the fire was still burning was to call the State militia into service as an aid to the police force, and thus insure the preservation of order. The militia was placed under the order and direction of the Police Commissioners, and thus formed part of the constabulary of the city, rendering effective service during the weeks they were on duty.

Throughout the whole period of acute distress there was no looting and no undue excitement; perfect order was maintained and the business firms and companies resumed operations in temporary quarters with comparatively little or no interruption, while the city and State governments addressed themselves, actively and intelligently to the ways and means of speedy rehabilitation.

The blow was staggering, but it was received with equanimity.

While no charge of inefficiency was brought against the City Fire Department, the general loss committee of the insurance companies, in their final report declared that "it is apparent that Baltimore has not kept pace in her water supply and fire-fighting defenses with the largely increasing area and heights of modern buildings, and consequent concentration of values in congested districts." This criticism was based on the fact, perhaps, that in the whole of the area of the burned district there was no fire station and not a fire engine.

The fire continued its ravages for upwards of 36 hours, or until about 10.30 o'clock Monday night, when having burned itself out, it submitted to control. All the 24 fire companies in the city were in continuous service with the fire boat and the police boat operating on the water-front. In addition to the local fire-fighting force, companies from other cities came to their aid as follows:

Washington, D. C.	5
Baltimore Co.	4
Sparrows Point	1
Annapolis	1
Philadelphia	7
York, Pa.	2
Harrisburg, Pa.	1
Chester, Pa.	2
Altoona, Pa.	1
New York City	10
Wilmington, Del.	4

There was thus engaged in fighting the Baltimore fire an average of 62 well equipped modern fire organizations and they all had abundant water from the city's sources of supply.

The response from other cities was prompt, but before their apparatus arrived the conflagration had developed to such a degree, that neither water nor dynamite could prove effective in stopping it.

Among the buildings destroyed were many so-called fire-proof structures, including some of the latest patterns of office buildings. After the fire these loftly buildings stood amidst the ruins of lesser buildings, like gaunt skeletons —burned out interiorally but still "structurally fire-proof" with from 40 to 60 per cent. salvage credited to their construction. But the only really fire-proof structures, or those at least which came out of the fiery ordeal wholly intact, or nearly so, were several low buildings constructed of bricks. The most notable of these was the building of the Baltimore Safe Deposit Company on South street next to the site of The Sun Iron Building. The Safe Deposit building was in the very midst of the fiercest heat of the fire and it stood the test perfectly, coming out practically unscathed, while every building about it was in ruins.

In the banking and financial centres of the fire-swept area the greatest anxiety prevailed for several days in regard to the safety of the securities and books in the vaults of these institutions. Time-locks prevented the opening of the vault doors on Sunday night and the next morning when the bank buildings were in ruins it was known that in ten of the National banks and in one other, there were values of $53,000,000 including loans and discounts, securities, clearing-house exchanges and cash. These banks represented about $50,000,000 of deposits. In addition to this, the Savings Bank of Baltimore, at the corner of Gay and Second streets had in its vaults in jeopardy about $25,000,000; the Hopkins Savings Bank, $6,000,000, and others, equally large sums. But the vaults stood the fire test for which in part they were designed. As one by one they were opened it was found that their contents were preserved and this fortunate circumstance encouraged them all around, and enabled them to give the necessary aid in the great work of rehabilitation plans which were immediately begun.

The bank buildings destroyed were as follows:

National Exchange Bank.
National Union Bank.
National Bank of Baltimore.
National Mechanics' Bank.
National Bank of Commerce.
Farmers and Merchants National Bank.
Merchants' National Bank.
First National Bank.
Third National Bank.
National Marine Bank.
German Bank of Baltimore.

Besides these banks were the following financial institutions:

Savings Bank of Baltimore.
Hopkins Place Savings Bank.
Maryland Savings Bank.
Mercantile Trust and Deposit Co.
Continental Trust Co.
Maryland Trust Co.
Baltimore Trust and Guarantee Co.
International Trust Co.
Union Trust Co.

There were also a number of private banking houses and many brokers involved in the fire, but in all cases it is believed, the fire did not reach their valuables. There were thousands of depositors in the savings banks, and financial anxiety extended to nearly every home in the city until the glad news was spread abroad that the bank vaults held good. This was also the case with many safes in commercial and business houses, though for weeks after the fire the streets were strewn with wrecks that failed in the fire and were valueless even as scrap-iron.

At the hour on Sunday afternoon when the fire had assumed threatening proportions, the people were just about leaving the churches and many business men hastened from worship to their places of business and began the removal of account books, securities and other valuables. Carriages, wagons and other vehicles were employed in this work and continued throughout the night. Hundreds of men and vehicles were busily engaged in saving counting-room effects, and their industry was equalled only by that of the firemen, trying to stop the progress of the flames.

In studying the ruins, no one could deny that the building materials that best stood the fire test were bricks, terra cotta, and porous and semi-porous tiles—all burnt clay. Granite and marble cracked and spalled off. Wire glass stood the severest tests and resisted the hottest flames. Structural steel is credited by insurance investigators with having suffered not over 5 per cent. damage. The marble fronts had to be replaced in structures, otherwise of brick, which stood the test perfectly. The marble work of the new Custom House, then in course of construction, was badly damaged wherever exposed to the heat, and the Court House.

The Sun on March 12, 1904, published a directory of about 1,500 individuals, firms, companies, etc., in temporary quarters. Scarcely a day was lost in the exercise of the recuperative energies of the people. These efforts were greatly assisted by the work of the late Robt. M. McLane, Mayor of Baltimore and the business sagacity of the Governor of the State, Hon. Edwin Warfield, with the cooperation of the City Council of Baltimore and the General Assembly of Maryland at Annapolis. Trade continued normal throughout the year with promise—assurance in fact, of future enlargements.

THE SUN AND THE FIRE.

In the Baltimore fire of February 7-8, 1904, which laid waste the business section of the city and destroyed The Sun building and all the other newspaper offices except one. The Sun with characteristic enterprise, did not omit a single issue, but kept on regularly every day without a break, serving its subscribers by mail and carriers, and its advertisers, who, in that emergency needed its services more than ever before.

Realizing the possibility that the disaster would involve the Sun building at the S. E. corner of Baltimore and South streets, preparations were begun early in the forenoon of Sunday to seek a place for the safe storage of the valuable files of the paper in bound volumes from May 17, 1837 to date; of the mailing lists of subscribers; of the books of the counting-room and such other appurtenances as could be saved.

The moving began at 4 P. M., and was hastened by the nearer and nearer approach of the flames, until shortly after midnight when the building was enveloped in flames. Some of the effects saved in the later hours of the night, were charred.

The directing manager of the paper and business manager took personal supervision of all the details necessary for continued publication, and saving valuable effects. In good time, before the wires were burned, negotiations were made with The Washington Evening Star for printing the Monday morning edition and for temporary service until the effects of the disaster could be mastered fully. A special train of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad was engaged to wait for transferring at a moment's notice a sufficient force of the staff of The Sun from one city to the other, to finish the work of getting out the edition. At the same time everything was kept in readiness, with steam up and lights burning to go ahead in Baltimore if The Sun building should escape.

By eleven o'clock, however, all hope was abandoned, and the order was given to proceed to Washington. A detail from the editorial staff, and the forces of the composing room, of the mailing department, the stereotypers and several clerks of the counting-room were transferred from Baltimore to Washington in 45 minutes by the B. & O. railroad. Regular work on the edition did not cease in Baltimore until the very moment of departure. There was no excitement or hurry. Everybody knew his place, and the direction was cool and methodical.

In Washington City The Evening Star office was found ready in all its departments, with lights burning, steam up, and telegraph wires ready for use. The staff of The Sun went to work in the different departments, just as if they were at home in their own quarters. The Monday morning edition was printed on The Evening Star presses and distributed on regular time. A special train of the B. & O. brought the papers to Camden Station where the Baltimore City carriers received them and distributed them over their routes. The mail edition was dispatched from the postoffice in Washington City, so that all subscribers were supplied on Monday morning while The Sun office was a heap of scrap iron and the conflagration was not yet under control. It was the first and only Baltimore paper to get out an early edition that day. A still later edition supplied further details of the fire and other news.

While operations were going on in Washington, the home contingent of the editorial and reporting staff, and the clerical force of the counting-room, took possession of The Sun Job Printing House, at the S. W. corner of Calvert and Saratoga streets, which was a veritable house of refuge in an emergency. Here the details of the fire and other local news were collected and forwarded by wire or by special messenger every hour of the day to the section of the staff operating in Washington. Here, too, the needs of the crippled business interests of Baltimore were promptly and uninterruptedly attended to. The wants of these interests were manifold and it was a great thing for them to have at hand an effective agency to carry their wishes into effect. It is gratifying to record that the confidence of the business public was so great in the resources and capacity of The Sun to deal with this trying emergency, that all business interests turned to it, and they realized that their confidence was not misplaced.

By degrees the necessary machinery was secured and installed in the temporary quarters at Calvert and Saratoga streets. Two quadruple presses, rescued from the vaults of the Sun Iron building in damaged condition, were repaired and put to work. All the linotype machines, stereotype equipment, engines, boilers, dynamos, etc., were destroyed in the old establishment, together with one of the latest Hoe Quadruple Presses, the parts of which were melted in the heat, or crushed into scrap steel by the falling in of the superstructure upon it.

The work devolving upon the A. S. Abell Co. was practically that of creating a new plant on the costly lines of modern newspaper printing office equipment, in the temporary quarters, which had been fortunately provided as an emergency building by the foresight of the late president of the company, Mr.

THE SUN AND THE FIRE—Continued.

Edwin F. Abell, whose death occurred February 28.

All facilities for doing business at Saratoga and Calvert streets were fully completed in two months, when on April 7, the whole Sun force was reunited in the temporary home in Baltimore.

On the close of the period of The Sun's tenancy The Evening Star of April 7, gave warm expression to the feeling of kindness which marked the relations of the two organizations throughout, and said: "The Evening Star could not wish for more agreeable or welcome guests, for more considerate transient occupants of its establishment, for more thoughtful or careful employes of all grades and classes. If The Evening Star was in a position by reason of its mechanical equipment to render The Sun this service, The Sun, on its part, was in a position to make the best and most thoughtful use of every facility placed at its disposal."

In announcing its home-coming The Sun of April 7, said: "It felt under every obligation of friendship and gratitude to put on record publicly its appreciation of the sacrifices made by The Washington Evening Star in its willingness to go to the limit of its resources to help a newspaper friend in the day of adversity. The Evening Star has given the journalistic world an exhibition of practical friendship and good-fellowship which is almost without parallel."

The publishers of The Sun also expressed "their deep appreciation of the loyal services of its own corps and staff in every department, who in an hour of need so earnestly and intelligently mastered the difficulties which none but newspaper men can properly estimate and which to those not newspaper men would have seemed insurmountable obstacles. To The Sun's employes, however, there is no such word as fail, and to this is due the fact that The Sun was the only newspaper in the city which published its regular editions Monday, February 8, delivering by mail and carrier almost on the same schedule time as if no catastrophe had occurred."

In addition to the great labor of creating the new plant and setting it into harmonious working order, the question of rebuilding the future permanent home of The Sun was settled by determining to locate at the southwest corner of Baltimore and Charles streets, where on the other three corners will be the new B. & O. Central Building, the Savings Bank of Baltimore and "The Hub" Clothing House.

The old Sun Iron building at the S. E. corner of Baltimore and South streets, was a landmark in the city. It was the first iron building to be erected in the United States. It was completed and occupied in 1851. Previous to that The Sun was located at the S. E. corner of Baltimore and Gay streets, and the paper was first printed in 1837 on Light street. All the buildings on these old sites were swept away in the conflagration of February, 1904.

In its new home at the southwest corner of Baltimore and Charles street, the dividing line of the city between west and east, The Sun will generate its own power, and every piece of machinery will be driven by electricity. The construction will be fireproof throughout and as little wood as is possible will be used.

In order that the reader may form some idea of the size of The Sun's new home, it can best be understood by comparing it with the old historic Sun Iron Building, which every Baltimorean knew not by name alone, but by sight as well.

The new building will be four stories, instead of five, as compared with the old structure, one floor of which was not used, and will be about 72 feet from the street to the cornice. The globe, or set-piece (the design of which has not been finally selected, several having been submitted), will be 15 or 20 feet above the cornice, so that the building may be said to be about 86 feet high. This is, roughly speaking, 10 or 12 feet taller than the old building. On the Baltimore street side the new building will have a frontage of 52 feet 9 inches, as compared with 56 feet of its same front on the old site, or 3 feet 3 inches less; while on the Charles street side it will have a depth of 115 feet, as compared with 73 feet 8 inches on South street, or 41 feet 4 inches greater depth.

The approximate area of the old site was 4,125 square feet a floor, while in its new home The Sun will have a floor area of 6,066 square feet, or an increased area of over 1,940 square feet on each floor. With this increased floor space of about 7,760 square feet it was not necessary to erect a tall building, as it is recognized in every manufacturing plant (and to a certain extent the mechanical branch of a newspaper is not unlike a manufacturing establishment) that the less handling from floor to floor, the greater the efficiency and the quicker the time made in the processes of publication.

The first story is 22 feet high, the second 18 feet, the third 19 feet and the fourth 12 feet high.

The columns are 3 feet in diameter and are 30 feet tall—almost as high as the average three-story dwelling. The windows are over nine feet wide, and in the matters of light and ventilation the building will be inferior to none in this country.

BURNT DISTRICT COMMISSION.

Appointed by Mayor Robt. M. McLane, March 11, 1904.

Chairman—Sherlock Swann.
Mayor Robt. M. McLane, ex-officio.
Charles K. Lord, Reuben Foster, John T. Graham.
Secretary—James R. Brewer, Jr.

On the death of Mayor McLane, May 30, and the resignation of Reuben Foster, the commission was reorganized as follows:

Chairman—Sherlock Swann.
Mayor E. Clay Timanus, ex-officio.
Charles K. Lord,
John T. Graham,
John W. Snyder.

Authority for the creation of the Commission was granted by Act of Assembly approved March 10, 1904, under which the necessary ordinances of the Mayor and City Council were passed. Power was conferred on the commission to make all improvements within the fire lines established by law, which are well outside of the actual fire lines. The Commission have the power of acquiring property either by private purchase or condemnation.

The record of the work of the Commission shows first review May 16 and last review closed November 23. The period of 6 months and 7 days was taken for the condemnation proceedings for widening 12 streets or an average of about 2 weeks to each street. Although entrusted with the disbursements of about $8,500,000, with full power to spend it, no bond whatever was required of any member of the Commission.

STREETS WIDENED AND EXTENDED.

By Direction of the Burnt District Commission.

Hopkins place, from Lombard street to Liberty, extended and widened to 70 feet. Former width, 52 to 55 feet.

Hanover street, extended from Baltimore to Fayette, to a width of 66 feet, the same as below Baltimore street (old width).

Charles street widened to 76 feet, from Lombard to Fayette. Former width 49½ feet.

Light street, widened to 108 feet at Pratt street and tapering down to 105 feet and 8-10 feet at Baltimore street. Former width, 41 to 45 feet.

STREETS WIDENED AND EXTENDED—Continued:

St. Paul street, widened to 66 feet, between Baltimore and Fayette streets. Former width, 30 feet.

Plaza, west front of the Courthouse, St. Paul street, 120 feet in width. Former width of St. Paul street, between Fayette and Lexington, 30 feet.

Calvert street, 80 feet, between Baltimore and Fayette streets. Former width, 64 feet.

Commerce street, 60 feet between Exchange Place and Pratt street. Former width, 40 feet.

West Falls avenue extended from Baltimore to Lombard street, to a width of 50 feet.

German street, 80 feet wide between Hopkins place and Light street. Former width, 38½ feet between Hopkins place and Charles street, and 57 7-10 feet between Charles and Light.

Lombard street, 66 feet wide between Charles and South streets, and 66 feet wide from Gay street to Centre Market Space. Former width between these points, 49½ feet.

Pratt street, 120 feet wide from Light street to Jones Falls. Former width, from 55 to 62 feet.

The territory bounded by Baltimore street on the north, Lombard street on the south, Centre Market Space on the west, and West Falls avenue on the east, condemned and laid out for public market purposes and improved at a cost of about $435,000.

A new grade was established for almost every street in the burnt district. Some changes of grade are slight; others radical.

DOCK IMPROVEMENTS.

The territory south of Pratt street, between Bowly's wharf and West Falls avenue, constructed into modern docks and piers, as follows:

Pier 1, foot of South street—150 feet wide; average length, 550 feet.

Pier 2, foot of Commerce street—200 feet wide; average length, 640 feet.

Pier 3, foot of Gay street—200 feet wide; average length, 767 feet.

Pier 4, foot of Frederick street, to be the public dock—beginning at Wood street, 210 4-10 feet wide; average length, 925 feet.

Pier 5, rear of Centre Market Space—205 feet wide; average length, 1,150 feet.

Pier 6, along West Falls avenue and Jones Falls—from 88 to 100 feet wide; average length, 1,450 feet.

Space between each pier (width of docks) 150 feet.

The total amount appropriated by the city for improvements in the burnt district was $6,575,500. This was for the acquisition of property necessary to carry out all the improvement plans finally settled upon. For the dock improvement a loan of $6,000,000 was authorized.

Chairman Sherlock Swann, of the Burnt District Commission, estimated that all the improvements contemplated, including docks and widening Light street from Pratt to Lee streets, would cost $8,500,000.

At the close of the year, 377 buildings were completed or in course of construction in the Burnt District, covering ground occupied before the fire by 505 buildings. There were still unimproved 457 lots, exclusive of 424 lots taken for public uses.

The Burnt District Commission will ask for authority to widen Light street from Pratt street to Lee street on the west side to 126 feet 2 inches. This is a line running south from Pratt street on the west side of Calhoun alley. It will make a complete street system, together with the widened Pratt street, taking in the whole inside harbor and will probably be the last recommendation of the Commission.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, 1904.

Held in the Coliseum at Chicago, Ills., June 21-23 Inclusive.

NOMINEES.

For President of the United States, Theodore Roosevelt, of New York.
For Vice-President of the United States, Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana.
Temporary Chairman of the Convention—Elihu Root, of New York.
Permanent Chairman—Joseph G. Cannon, of Illinois.
Sergeant-at-Arms—William F. Stone, of Maryland.

On the first day, June 21, the convention completed its temporary organization and appointed the various committees.

On the second day the permanent chairman was elected and the platform was adopted.

Senator Louis E. McComas, of Maryland, as chairman of the Committee on Credentials, read the report on the contests, which was sustained by an overwhelming vote. He pronounced false the charge of the La Follette contestants from Wisconsin that the committee had been "approached." Maryland voted for the amendment reducing the representation of Hawaii to two votes. In this connection Mr. Stevenson A. Williams recalled how the vote of Hawaii shaped the financial plank adopted by the Democratic National Convention of 1900. Each of the other Territories was given six votes.

On the third day, the convention ended its session after unanimously nominating the following candidates:

For President—Theodore Roosevelt, of New York.

For Vice-President—Charles Warren Fairbanks, of Indiana.

The nomination of Mr. Roosevelt was made on a roll-call of States, every vote being recorded for him. Mr. Fairbanks was chosen by acclamation, the roll call being dispensed with.

The speech placing Mr. Roosevelt before the convention was made by ex-Gov. Frank S. Black, of New York. Seconding speeches were by Senator Albert J. Beveridge, of Indiana; George A. Knight, of California; Harry Stillwell Edwards, of Georgia; ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley, of Kentucky; Joseph B. Cotton, of Minnesota, and Harry S. Cummings, the negro delegate from Maryland.

Cumming's speech was the star performance of the day for the Maryland delegation. Chairman Cannon introduced him as "the gentleman from Maryland," and paid him some glowing compliments. His speech was well received, the other negro delegates going wild in their enthusiasm.

Senator Fairbanks was put in nomination by Senator Jonathan P. Dolliver, of Iowa. The seconding speeches were by Senators Chauncey M. Depew, of New York, and Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, and ex-Senator Thomas H. Carter, of Montana.

After the adjournment, the new National Committee appointed by the convention, met and unanimously elected George B. Cortelyou, chairman.

Judson W. Lyon, Register of the United States Treasury at Washington, and a Republican national committeeman, was one of the four delegates-at-large from Georgia. There were sixty negro delegates in the convention. Negroes in the different delegations were as follows:

Alabama, 6 out of 22.
Arkansas, 2 out of 18.
Florida, 5 out of 10.
Georgia, 13 out of 26.
Louisiana—Contesting delegations. One made up largely of negroes; the other of the "Lily White" faction.
Maryland, 1 out of 16.
Mississippi, 11 out of 20.
North Carolina, 2 out of 24.
South Carolina, 11 out of 18.
Tennessee, 1 out of 24.
Texas, 2 out of 36, with several others contesting.
Virginia, 2 out of 24.

Among the leading negro delegates were the following:

Dr. Wm. D. Crum, collector of the port of Charleston, S. C.

H. P. Cheatham, former Recorder of Deeds of the District of Columbia, who was a member of the Fifty-first and Fifty-second Congresses.

James H. Hays, who instituted the cases which were lost before the Supreme Court of the United States testing the validity of the negro franchise clause of the new Virginia's Constitution.

J. C. Napier, of Nashville, the leading negro in Tennessee.

Joseph E. Lee, collector of internal revenue for the district of Florida.

H. A. Rucker, collector of internal revenue for the district of Savannah, Ga.

J. H. Deveaux, collector of customs for the district of Savannah, Ga., who is a colonel of negro troops in Georgia, having been made a colonel for life by the Legislature of the State for his services during the yellow-fever epidemic at Brunswick some years ago.

J. W. Gibbs, a lawyer and orator of Arkansas, who was on the bench in the reconstruction period.

H. V. Cashin, receiver of public money at Huntsville, Ala.

Harry S. Cummings, negro lawyer of Baltimore and former member of the City Council, who made the seconding speech for Maryland on the nomination of President Roosevelt.

Mrs. J. B. West, representing Idaho, was the only woman whose privilege it was to sit as a delegate.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL PLATFORM, 1904.

Adopted by the National Convention at Chicago, June 22, 1904.

Fifty years ago the Republican party came into existence dedicated among other purposes to the great task of arresting the extension of human slavery. In 1860 it elected its first Vice-President. During 24 of the 44 years which have elapsed since the election of Lincoln the Republican party has held complete control of the government. For 18 more of the 44 years it has held partial control through the possession of one or two branches of the government, while the Democratic party during the same period has had complete control for only two years. This long tenure of power by the Republican party is not due to chance. It is a demonstration that the Republican party has commanded the confidence of the American people for nearly two generations to a degree never equaled in our history, and has displayed a high capacity for rule and government which has been made even more conspicuous by the incapacity and infirmity of purpose shown by its opponents.

CONDITIONS IN 1897.

The Republican party entered upon its present period of complete supremacy in 1897. We have every right to congratulate ourselves upon the work since then accomplished, for it has added lustre even to the traditions of the party which carried the government through the storms of civil war.

We then found the country after four years of Democratic rule in evil plight, oppressed with misfortune and doubtful of the future. Public credit had been lowered, the revenues were declining, the debt was growing, the administration's attitude toward Spain was feeble and mortifying, the standard of values was threatened and uncertain, labor was unemployed, business was sunk in the depression which had succeeded the panic of 1893, hope was faint and confidence was gone.

We met these unhappy conditions vigorously, effectively, and at once.

THE TARIFF LAW.

We replaced a Democratic tariff law based on free trade principles and garnished with sectional protection by a consistent protective tariff, and industry, freed from oppression and stimulated by the encouragement of wise laws, has expanded to a degree never before known, has conquered new markets, and has created a volume of exports which has surpassed imagination. Under the Dingley tariff, labor has been fully employed, wages have risen, and all industries have revived and prospered.

We firmly established the gold standard which was then menaced with destruction. Confidence returned to business, and with confidence an unexampled prosperity.

REVENUES.

For deficient revenues, supplemented by improvident issues of bonds, we gave the country an income which produced a large surplus and which enabled us only four years after the Spanish war had closed to remove over $100,000,000 of annual war taxes, reduce the public debt, and lower the interest charges of the government.

THE PUBLIC CREDIT RESTORED.

The public credit, which had been so lowered that in time of peace a Democratic administration made large loans at extravagant rates of interest in order to pay current expenditures, rose under Republican administration to its highest point and enabled us to borrow at 2 per cent. even in time of war.

CUBA.

We refused to palter longer with the miseries of Cuba. We fought a quick and victorious war with Spain. We set Cuba free, governed the island for three years, and then gave it to the Cuban people with order restored, with ample revenues, with education and public health established, free from debt, and connected with the United States by wise provisions for our mutual interests.

PORTO RICO.

We have organized the government of Porto Rico, and its people now enjoy peace, freedom, order and prosperity.

THE PHILIPPINES.

In the Philippines we have suppressed insurrection, established order, and given to life and property a security never known there before. We have organized civil government, made it effective and strong in administration, and have conferred upon the people of those islands the largest civil liberty they have ever enjoyed.

By our possession of the Philippines we were enabled to take prompt and effective action in the relief of the legations at Pekin and a decisive part in preventing the partition and preserving the integrity of China.

THE ISTHMIAN CANAL.

The possession of a route for an isthmian canal, so long the dream of American statesmanship, is now an accomplished fact. The great work of connecting the Pacific and Atlantic by a canal is at last begun, and it is due to the Republican party.

THE ARID LANDS.

We have passed the laws which will bring the arid lands of the United States within the area of cultivation.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL PLATFORM—Continued.

THE ARMY AND NAVY.

We have reorganized the army and ut it in the highest state of efficiency.

We have passed laws for the improvement and support of the militia.

We have pushed forward the building of the navy, the defense and protection of our honor and our interests.

Our administration of the great departments of the government has been honest and efficient, and wherever wrongdoing has been discovered the Republican administration has not hesitated to probe the evil and bring offenders to justice without regard to party or political ties.

THE GREAT CORPORATIONS.

Laws enacted by the Republican party which the Democratic party failed to enforce and which were intended for the protection of the public against the unjust discrimination or the illegal encroachment of vast aggregations of capital, have been fearlessly enforced by a Republican President and new laws insuring reasonable publicity as to the operations of great corporations, and providing additional remedies for the prevention of discrimination in freight rates, have been passed by a Republican Congress.

In this record of achievement during the past eight years may be read the pledges which the Republican party has fulfilled. We promise to continue these policies, and we declare our constant adherance to the following principles:

PROTECTION TO AMERICAN INDUSTRIES.

Protection which guards and develops our industries, is a cardinal policy of the Republican party. The measure of protection should always at least equal the difference in the cost of production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principle of protection, and, therefore, rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, but this work cannot safely be committed to any other hands than those of the Republican party. To intrust it to the Democratic party is to invite disaster. Whether, as in 1892, the Democratic party declares the protective tariff unconstitutional, or whether it demands tariff reform or tariff revision, its real object is always the destruction of the protective system. However specious the name the purpose is ever the same. A Democratic tariff has always been followed by business adversity; a Republican tariff by business prosperity. To a Republican Congress and a Republican President this great question can be safely intrusted. When the only free trade country among the great nations agitates a return to protection the chief protective country should not falter in maintaining it.

FOREIGN MARKETS EXTENDED.

We have extended widely our foreign markets, and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension, including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor, or any American industry.

THE GOLD STANDARD.

We believe it to be the duty of the Republican party to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our national currency. The maintenance of the gold standard, established by the Republican party, cannot safely be committed to the Democratic party, which resisted its adoption and has never given any proof since that time of belief in it or fidelity to it.

AMERICAN SHIPPING.

While every other industry has prospered under the fostering aid of Republican legislation. American shipping engaged in foreign trade in competition with the low cost of construction, low wages, and heavy subsides of foreign governments, has not for many years received from the government of the United States adequate encouragement of any kind. We therefore favor legislation which will encourage and build up the American merchant marine, and we cordially approve the legislation of the last Congress which created the Merchant Marine Commission to investigate and report upon this subject.

A navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack, to uphold the Monroe doctrine, and watch over our commerce, is essential for the safety and the welfare of the American people. To maintain such a navy is the fixed policy of the Republican party.

CHINESE LABOR.

We cordially approve the attitude of President Roosevelt and Congress in regard to the exclusion of Chinese labor, and promise a continuance of the Republican policy in that direction.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The civil-service law was placed on the statute books by the Republican party, which has always sustained it, and we renew our former declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced.

THE SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

We are always mindful of the country's debt to the soldiers and sailors of the United States, and we believe in making ample provision for them and in the liberal administration of the pension laws.

ARBITRATION.

We favor the peaceful settlement of international differences by arbitration.

PROTECTION OF CITIZENS ABROAD.

We commend the vigorous efforts made by the administration to protect American citizens in foreign lands, and pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and equal protection of all our citizens abroad. It is the unquestioned duty of the government to procure for all our citizens, without distinction, the rights of travel and sojourn in friendly countries, and we declare ourselves in favor of all proper efforts tending to that end.

THE ORIENT.

Our great interests and our growing commerce in the Orient render the condition of China of high importance to the United States. We cordially commend the policy pursued in that direction by the administrations of President McKinley and President Roosevelt.

THE ELECTIVE FRANCHISE.

We favor such Congressional action as shall determine whether by special discriminations the elective franchise in any State has been unconstitutionally limited, and, if such is the case, we demand that representation in Congress and in the electoral colleges shall be proportionally reduced as directed by the Constitution of the United States.

COMBINATIONS OF CAPITAL AND OF LABOR.

Combinations of capital and of labor are the results of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon the rights and interests of the people. Such combinations, when lawfully formed for lawful purposes, are alike entitled to the protection of the laws, but both are subject to the laws and neither can be permitted to break them.

OUR LAMENTED PRESIDENT.

The great statesman and patriotic American, William McKinley, who was re-elected by the Republican party to the Presidency four years ago, was assassinated just at the threshold of his second term. The entire nation mourned his untimely death and did that justice to his great qualities of mind and character which history will confirm and repeat.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT.

The American people were fortunate in his successor, to whom they turned with a trust and confidence which have been fully justified. President Roosevelt brought to the great responsibilities, thus sadly forced upon him, a clear head, a brave heart, and earnest patriotism, and high ideals of public duty and public service. True to the principles of the Republican party and to the policies which that party had declared, he has also shown himself ready for every emergency and has met new and vital questions with ability and with success.

The confidence of the people in his justice, inspired by his public career, enabled him to render personally an inestimable service to the country by bringing about a settlement of the coal strike, which threatened such disastrous results at the opening of winter in 1902.

Our foreign policy under his administration has not only been able, vigorous, and dignified, but in the highest degree successful.

The complicated questions which arose in Venezuela were settled in such a way by President Roosevelt that the Monroe doctrine was signally vindicated and the cause of peace and arbitration greatly advanced.

His prompt and vigorous action in Panama, which we commend in the highest terms, not only secured to us the canal route, but avoided foreign complications which might have been of a very serious character.

He has continued the policy of President McKinley in the Orient, and our position in China, signalized by our recent commercial treaty with that empire, has never been so high.

He secured the tribunal by which the vexed and perilous question of the Alaskan boundary was finally settled.

Whenever crimes against humanity have been perpetrated which have shocked our people, his protest has been made, and our good offices have been tendered, but always with due regard to international obligations.

Under his guidance we find ourselves at peace with all the world, and never were we more respected or our wishes more regarded by foreign nations.

Pre-eminently successful in regard to our foreign relations, he has been equally fortunate in dealing with domestic questions. The country has known that the public credit and the national currency were absolutely safe in the hands of his administration. In the enforcement of the laws he has shown not only courage, but the wisdom which understands that to permit laws to be violated or disregarded opens the door to anarchy, while the just enforcement of the law is the soundest conservatism. He has held firmly to the fundamental American doctrine that all men must obey the law; that there must be no distinction between rich and poor, between strong and weak, but that justice and equal protection under the law must be secured to every citizen without regard to race, creed, or condition.

His administration has been throughout vigorous and honorable, high-minded and patriotic. We commend it without reservation to the considerate judgment of the American people.

By far the most important obstacle to very deep mining is the certain and proportionate increase of temperature. At the Parnischowitz borehole, in Silesia, 6,573 feet deep, the increase in temperature with depth has been 1° Fahr. for 62.1 feet.

MARYLAND REPUBLICAN PLATFORM, 1904.

Adopted at the Academy of Music in Baltimore, May 11, 1904.

Louis E. McComas, Chairman of the State Convention.

We indorse the administration of President Roosevelt. We approve the reciprocity treaty with Cuba. We approve the President's promptness in guarding imperiled American interests upon the Isthmus of Panama in recognizing that new republic and in securing by treaty out national control of the canal zone. We congratulate the country that the Panama canal—the dream of four centuries—has been actually begun under President Roosevelt, and will soon unite both oceans and the gulf, our eastern and western shores, and the commerce of the Occident and the Orient. We commend the Executive and the Congress which have thus assured new markets in the East for our ever-growing products of agriculture and manufacture. The Panama canal is to be an industrial boon to the world in time of peace, an American bulwark in time of war.

We commend President Roosevelt for his faithful enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, passed under a Republican administration, which law the Democratic administration refused to enforce, and we commend the additional legislation by the last Republican Congress for the more effectual suppression of combinations of capital in restraint of healthy trade and commerce. We applaud the firmness of President Roosevelt in successfully testing and enforcing this constitutional legislation.

We pledge anew our fidelity to the protective tariff. This great Republican policy has justified itself. Our unexampled prosperity has vindicated the Dingley tariff. Whenever tariff changes are required by changing conditions, the Republican party only can make such changes without injury to the business and labor of the nation. Democratic tariff tinkering brought one panic. The people, thus warned, will not again invite by Democratic success a return of industrial depression.

We congratulate the country that under McKinley, Roosevelt and Secretary John Hay American diplomacy has advanced the prestige of our great Republic and the interests of humanity and civilization. International arbitration, the vitalizing of The Hague tribunal, the open door to trade in Asia, our commercial treaties with American republics and with China, and finally the procuring of the assent by Russia and Japan, with the approval of the world, to the restriction of the zone of warfare to narrow limits, thereby protecting our rapidly growing trade in Asia—all these are triumphs of Christian statesmanship.

We deplore the absence of the American flag from the high seas and the lack of American shipping in the foreign trade, a condition whereby American bottoms decrease as foreign trade increases, due to the lack of protection for a once great and powerful industry that shed lustre upon the nation and helped to save it from destruction in its earlier days of national peril. We favor legislation which will give to American-built ships, officered and manned by American citizens, the carrying of the larger part of our foreign commerce, in order that the nation shall have both the ships and the men as resources of defense in time of trouble and in order that American workingmen may have the building and the handling of the ships employed in our foreign trade.

By the first Republican triumph in Maryland under Lincoln our State was the first to free the slave by law. The last Democratic triumph in Maryland was followed by a semi-barbarous "Jim Crow" car law, already rebuked by Christian sentiment of citizens of all religious faiths.

We denounce the illegal and criminal election laws of the last Legislature which continue and intensify the trick-ballot frauds of the extra session legislation. Maryland Democracy is an organized conspiracy for disfranchisement of whites as well as blacks. We protest that our white State cannot be permanently classed with the black belt without injury to our commerce, to our trade and our State prestige and credit. Every section and amendment of our country's Constitution is binding in honor upon every American citizen. We denounce the Democratic State legislation designed to disfranchise citizens on account of race or color. In our white State all attempts to inflame race prejudice are a cloak for dishonest government and further outrages upon the elective franchise. The plan to cheat the blacks in a white State will ultimately cheat the whites. The permanence of a republican government rests upon a pure and free ballot. We oppose its corruption by money or its restriction by depriving any citizen of his right to vote except for causes permitted by the Federal Constitution. It is the duty of the Federal and State Government to safeguard all the rights and immunities of all our citizens. Nullifications of our Federal Constitution by State evasions are immoral, unpatriotic and will be resisted by the Republican party, inspired by Christian sentiment, until finally overcome.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION, 1904.

Held at St. Louis, Mo., July 6-10, Inclusive.

NOMINEES.

For President of the United States—Alton B. Parker, of New York.
For Vice-President of the United States—Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia.
Temporary Chairman of the Convention—John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi.
Permanent Chairman of the Convention—Champ Clark, of Missouri.
Sergeant-at-Arms—John I. Martin, of Missouri.

Temporary Chairman John Sharp Williams in his speech assuming the chair at the opening of the convention, July 6, declared that the gold standard was established by the "dogged persistency and indomitable will of Grover Cleveland" in forcing the repeal of the silver-purchase clause in the Sherman act. At the mention of Mr. Cleveland's name the convention went wild. The demonstration lasted nearly 15 minutes. After the announcement of committees to form the permanent organization and prepare the platform, the convention adjourned for the day.

July 7th, the convention sustained the right of Porto Rico to six delegates, but not the Philippines, in accordance with Supreme Court decisions. Wm. Jennings Bryan made two speeches in favor of seating Harrison and Hearst delegates in Illinois contests, but the convention decided against him by a vote of 647 to 299.

The position of Senator A. P. Gorman, of Maryland, who did not go as a delegate at large to the convention, as stated by his friends in St. Louis, was that he stood ready to accept the Presidential nomination if it came to him from the proper quarters. But he found the Parker element in control of the convention and able to exercise at least a veto power. That being the case, he allied himself with the Parker leaders. There was no evidence at any time that he could command votes enough to win, and if he had come to the front as a candidate he would have been compelled to depend for most of his support upon money elements that could have held out no substantial prospect of success.

After a fruitless morning session, July 8, the convention met in the evening and adopted the platform as revised by the full committee on resolutions, omitting all reference to the money question.

Martin W. Littleton placed Judge Alton Brooks Parker, of New York, in nomination for the Presidency. A great demonstration lasting 25 minutes followed his address. Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, seconded the nomination. D. M. Delmas, of California, placed William R. Hearst in nomination. A Hearst demonstration was started and lasted 35 minutes, Mr. Bryan being one of the central figures in it.

E. J. O'Donnell, of Colorado, seconded the nomination of Parker.

When Delaware was called, L. Irving Handy, of that State, put Judge George Gray in nomination.

The convention remained in session all night, and at 5.45 A. M., Alton B. Parker was nominated for President. On the completion of the first ballot he received a total of 658 votes. Before the vote was announced Idaho changed her 6 votes, giving him 664 votes. West Virginia added 3 votes, giving him the 667 votes, or two-thirds necessary. Judge Parker's nomination was made unanimous, and the convention adjourned until 2 P. M. July 9.

It should be stated here that the committee on resolutions—platform—were in continuous session 16 hours, including all of Thursday night, July 7. Hon. Wm. Jennings Bryan, a member of the committee, made speech after speech, swaying the committee by the sheer force of his magnetic personality and oratory. Senator Daniel, the chairman; ex-Senator David B. Hill, and Mr. John P. Poe, of Maryland, measured swords with him. Mr. Daniel plainly declared that he questioned the propriety of a man who had twice led the party to defeat attempting to force his leadership on it again.

But in the excitement of the long committee meeting, when nerves were on edge, Mr. Bryan proved a giant in power and won command. It was supposed before the meeting began that the platform as framed by the sub-committee would be adopted, but it was changed in many material points, the gold-standard plank being stricken out and no reference being made to the money question in the revised draft. The vote on striking out the gold plank was 35 to 15.

Between the sessions of the convention Judge Parker was communicated with, and the statement was later made that he would write a letter declaring for the maintenance of the gold standard. When this report was circulated the anti-Parker men redoubled their efforts to defeat him.

The great majority of the Eastern delegates were thunderstruck when they learned the committee's action. W. Bourke Cockran declared that the party had thrown away all its chances of winning. Mr. Bryan, however, said: "We are all satisfied." David B. Hill said he thought Judge Parker could stand on the revised platform.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL CONVENTION—Continued.

It was stated that Senator Gorman's alliance with the Parker interests was made in the hope of forcing into the platform a gold-standard declaration.

When the convention resumed its session on the afternoon of July 9, one of the greatest sensations in American political history was produced by the reception from Judge Parker of a telegram saying:

"I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established and shall act accordingly if the action of the convention today shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent on the subject my views should be made known to the convention, and if they are proved to be unsatisfactory to the majority I request you to decline the nomination for me at once, so that another may be nominated before adjournment."

The telegram was addressed to ex-Lieutenant-Governor W. F. Sheehan, of New York, and the reading of it to the convention created a profound sensation.

Hon. William J. Bryan, who had been stricken with what was considered a light attack of pneumonia in the afternoon, rose from his sick-bed and entered the convention hall. He made a speech to the delegates, urging that if the question was brought up again it should be fully gone into. If the convention thought the gold standard was right, he said, it should adopt a gold plank, and he would not speak on the proposition, though he would vote against it.

The debate continued, Senators Daniel, Carmack and others speaking.

Joe Sharp Williams made a hot reply to Bryan, declaring that in spite of his protestation Mr. Bryan was the one man in the convention who was preventing harmony.

A reply to Judge Parker was adopted by a vote of 774 to 191. The text of the reply was as follows:

"The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of the monetary standard, because it is not regarded by us as a possible issue in this campaign, and only campaign issues were mentioned in the platform. Therefore, there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram just received which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting a nomination on said platform."

The convention was in session all of Saturday night, July 9, and until 1 A. M. Sunday morning, July 10.

The names placed before the convention for Vice-President were: Ex-Senators Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia; George Turner, of Washington State; William A. Harris, of Kansas, and Representative James R. Williams, of Illinois.

At 1.13 A. M. (2.13 Baltimore time), Sunday, July 10, Hon. Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia, was nominated for Vice-President by acclamation. The first ballot resulted in Davis receiving 652, being 15 less than the necessary two-thirds. Then the States began changing their votes, and in a burst of enthusiasm the nomination was made unanimous.

Chairman Clark, at 1.15 o'clock Sunday morning, declared the convention adjourned without date.

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL PLATFORM, 1904.

Adopted at St. Louis, July 8, 1904.

The Democratic Party of the United States, in National Convention assembled, declares its devotion to the essential principles of the Democratic faith which brings us together in party communion.

Under these principles local self-government and national unity and prosperity were alike established. They underlaid our independence, the structure of our free Republic and every Democratic expansion from Louisiana to California, and Texas to Oregon, which preserved faithfully in all the States the tie between taxation and representation. They yet inspirit the masses of our people, guarding jealously their rights and liberties, and cherishing their fraternity, peace, and orderly development. They remind us of our duties and responsibilities as citizens, and impress upon us, particularly at this time, the necessity of reform and the rescue of the administration of government from the headstrong, arbitrary, and spasmodic methods which distract business by uncertainty, and pervade the public mind with dread, distrust, and perturbation.

FUNDAMENTAL PRINCIPLES.

The application of these fundamental principles to the living issues of the day constitutes the first step toward the assured peace, safety, and progress of our nation. Freedom of the press, of conscience, and of speech; equality before the law of all citizens; right of trial by jury; freedom of the person defended by the writ of habeas corpus; liberty of personal contract untrammeled by sumptuary laws; supremacy of the civil over the military authority; a well-disciplined militia; separation of Church and State; economy in expenditures; low taxes, that labor may be lightly burdened; prompt and sacred fulfillment of public and private obligations; fidelity to treaties; peace and friendship with all nations, entangling alliance with none; absolute acquiescence in the will of the majority, the vital principle of Republics—these are doctrines which Democracy has established as proverbs of the nation, and they should be constantly invoked and enforced.

ECONOMY OF ADMINISTRATION.

Large reductions can easily be made in the annual expenditures of the Government, without impairing the efficiency of any branch of the public service, and we shall insist upon the strictest economy and frugality compatible with vigorous and efficient civil, military and naval administration, as a right of the people, too clear to be denied or withheld.

HONESTY IN PUBLIC SERVICE.

We favor the enforcement of honesty in the public service, and to that end a thorough legislative investigation of those executive departments of the Government already known to teem with corruption, as well as other departments suspected of harboring corruption, and the punishment of ascertained corruptionists, without fear or favor or regard to persons. The persistent and deliberate refusal of both the Senate and the House of Representatives to permit such investigation to be made demonstrates that only by a change in the executive and in the legislative departments can complete exposure, punishment, and correction be obtained.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS WITH TRUSTS.

We condemn the action of the Republican party in Congress in refusing to prohibit an executive department entering into contracts with convicted trusts or unlawful combinations in restraint of interstate trade. We believe that one of the best methods of procuring economy and honesty in the public service is to have public officials, from the occupant of the White House down to the lowest of them, return, as nearly as may be, to Jeffersonian simplicity of living.

EXECUTIVE USURPATION.

We favor the nomination and election of a President imbued with the principles of the Constitution, who will set his face sternly against executive usurpation of legislative and judicial functions, whether that usurpation be veiled under the guise of executive construction of existing laws, or whether it take refuge in the tyrant's pleas of necessity or superior wisdom.

IMPERIALISM.

We favor the preservation, so far as we can, of an open door for the world's commerce in the Orient without unnecessary entanglement in Oriental and European affairs, and without arbitrary, unlimited, irresponsible and absolute government anywhere within our jurisdiction. We oppose, as fervently as did George Washington, an indefinite, irresponsible, discretionary, and vague absolutism and a policy of colonial exploitation, no matter where or by whom invoked or exercised. We believe with Thomas Jefferson and John Adams, that no government has a right to make one set of laws for those "at home" and another and a different set of laws, absolute in their character, for those "in the colonies." All men under the American flag are entitled to the protection of the institutions whose emblem the flag is; if they are inherently unfit for those institutions, then they are inherently unfit to be members of the American body politic. Wherever there may exist a people incapable of being governed under American laws, in consonance with the American Constitution, the territory of that people ought not to be part of the American domain.

We insist that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have done already for the Cubans, and it is our duty to make that promise now, and upon suitable guarantees of protection to citizens of our own and other countries resident there at the time of our withdrawal to set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent, to work out their own destiny.

The endeavor of the Secretary of War, by pledging the Government's endorsement for "promoters" in the Philippine Islands to make the United States a partner in speculative exploitation of the archipelago, which was only temporarily held up by the opposition of Democratic Senators in the last session, will, if successful, lead to entanglements from which it will be difficult to escape.

TARIFF.

The Democratic party has been, and will continue to be, the consistent opponent of that class of tariff legislation by which certain interests have been permitted, through congressional favor, to draw a heavy tribute from the American people. This monstrous perversion of those equal opportunities which our political institutions were established to secure, has caused what may once have been infant industries to become the greatest combinations of capital that the world has ever known. These special favorites of the Government have, through trust methods, been converted into monopolies, thus bringing to an end domestic competition, which was the only alleged check upon the extravagant profits made possible by the protective system. These industrial combinations, by the financial assistance they can give, now control the policy of the Republican party.

We denounce protectionism as a robbery of the many to enrich the few, and we favor a tariff limited to the needs of the Government economically, effectively, and constitutionally administered, and so levied as not to discriminate against any industry, class or section, to the end that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

We favor a revision and a gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses and for the common weal, and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate end of "equality of burdens and equality of opportunities," and the constitutional purpose of raising a revenue by taxation, to wit, the support of the Federal Government in all its integrity and virility, but in simplicity.

TRUSTS AND UNLAWFUL COMBINATIONS.

We recognize that the gigantic trusts and combinations designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint product of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under Republican rule, are a menace to beneficial competition and an obstacle to permanent business prosperity.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable.

Individual equality of opportunity and free competition are essential to a healthy and permanent commercial prosperity; and any trust, combination or monopoly tending to destroy these by controlling production, restricting competition, or fixing prices and wages, should be prohibited and punished by law. We especially denounce rebates and discriminations by transportation companies as the most potent agency in promoting and strengthening these unlawful conspiracies against trade.

We demand an enlargement of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, to the end that the traveling public and shippers of this country may have prompt and adequate relief from the abuses to which they are subjected in the matter of transportation. We demand a strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all such trusts, combinations, and monopolies; and we demand the enactment of such further legislation as may be necessary effectually to suppress them.

Any trust or unlawful combination engaged in interstate commerce which is monopolizing any branch of business or production, should not be permitted to transact business outside of the State of its origin, whenever it shall be established in any court of competent jurisdiction that such monopolization exists. Such prohibition should be enforced through comprehensive laws to be enacted on the subject.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

We favor the enactment and administration of laws giving labor and capital impartially their just rights. Capital and labor ought not to be enemies. Each is necessary to the other. Each has its rights, but the rights of labor are certainly no less "vested," no less "sacred," and no less "inalienable" than the rights of capital.

We favor arbitration of differences between corporate employers and their employes, and a strict enforcement of the eight-hour law on all Government work.

We approve the measure which passed the United States Senate in 1896, but which a Republican Congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in Federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

CONSTITUTIONAL GUARANTEES.

Constitutional guarantees are violated whenever any citizen is denied the right to labor, acquire and enjoy property, or reside where interest or inclination may determine. Any denial thereof by individuals, organizations, or governments should be summarily rebuked and punished.

We deny the right of any executive to disregard or suspend any constitutional privilege or limitation. Obedience to the laws and respect for their requirements are alike the supreme duty of the citizen and the official.

The military should be used only to support and maintain the law. We unqualifiedly condemn its employment for the summary banishment of citizens without trial, or for the control of elections.

WATERWAYS.

We favor liberal appropriations for the care and improvement of the waterways of the country. When any waterway, like the Mississippi river, is of sufficient importance to demand the special aid of the Government, such aid should be extended with a definite plan of continuous work until permanent improvement is secured.

We oppose the Republican policy of starving home development in order to feed the greed for conquest and the appetite for national "prestige" and display of strength.

RECLAMATION OF ARID LANDS AND DOMESTIC DEVELOPMENT.

We congratulate our Western citizens upon the passage of the measure known as the Newlands Irrigation Act, for the irrigation and reclamation of the arid lands of the West—a measure framed by a Democrat, passed in the Senate by a non-partisan vote, and passed in the House against the opposition of almost all the Republican leaders by a vote the majority of which was Democratic. We call attention to this great Democratic measure, broad and comprehensive as it is, working automatically throughout all time without further action of Congress, until the reclamation of all the lands in the arid West capable of reclamation is accomplished, reserving the lands reclaimed for homeseekers, in small tracts, and rigidly guarding against land monopoly, as an evidence of the policy of domestic development contemplated by the Democratic party, should it be placed in power.

THE ISTHMIAN CANAL.

The Democracy when entrusted with power will construct the Panama Canal speedily, honestly and economically, thereby giving to our people what Democrats have always contended for—a great inter-ocean canal, furnishing shorter and cheaper lines of transportation, and broader and less trammeled trade relations with the other peoples of the world.

AMERICAN CITIZENSHIP.

We pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and lawful protection of our citizens at home and abroad, and to use all proper measures to secure for them, whether native-born or naturalized, and without distinction of race or creed, the equal protection of laws and the enjoyment of all rights and privileges open to them under the covenants of our treaties of friendship and commerce; and if under existing treaties the right of travel and sojourn is denied to American citizens or recognition is withheld from American passports by any countries on the ground of race or creed, we favor the beginning of negotiations with the governments of such countries to secure by new treaties the removal of these unjust discriminations.

We demand that all over the world a duly authenticated passport issued by the Government of the United States to an American citizen shall be proof of the fact that he is an American citizen, and shall entitle him to the treatment due him as such.

ELECTION OF SENATORS BY THE PEOPLE.

We favor the election of United States Senators by direct vote of the people.

STATEHOOD AND TERRITORIES.

We favor the admission of the Territory of Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. We also favor the immediate admission of Arizona and New Mexico, as separate States, and territorial governments for Alaska and Porto Rico.

We hold that the officials appointed to administer the government of any territory, as well as the District of Alaska, should be bona fide residents at the time of their appointment of the territory or district in which their duties are to be performed.

CONDEMNATION OF POLYGAMY.

We demand the extermination of polygamy within the jurisdiction of the United States, and the complete separation of Church and State in political affairs.

MERCHANT MARINE.

We denounce the ship subsidy bill recently passed by the United States Senate as an iniquitous appropriation of public funds for private purposes and a wasteful, illogical and useless attempt to overcome by subsidy the obstructions raised by Republican legislation to the growth and development of American commerce on the sea.

We favor the upbuilding of a merchant marine without new or additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury.

RECIPROCITY.

We favor liberal trade arrangements with Canada, and with peoples of other countries where they can be entered into with benefit to American agriculture, manufacture, mining or commerce.

MONROE DOCTRINE.

We favor the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine in its full integrity.

ARMY.

We favor the reduction of the army and of army expenditures to the point historically demonstrated to be safe and sufficient.

PENSIONS—OUR SOLDIERS AND SAILORS.

The Democracy would secure to the surviving soldiers and their dependents generous pensions, not by an arbitrary executive order, but by legislation which a grateful people stand ready to enact.

Our soldiers and sailors who defend with their lives the Constitution and the laws have a sacred interest in their just administration. They must, therefore, share with us the humiliation with which we have witnessed the exaltation of court favorites, without distinguished service, over the scarred heroes of many battles, or aggrandizement by executive appropriations out of the treasuries of prostrate peoples in violation of the act of Congress which fixes the compensation or allowances of the military officers.

CIVIL SERVICE.

The Democratic party stands committed to the principles of civil service reform, and we demand their honest, just and impartial enforcement.

We denounce the Republican party for its continuous and sinister encroachments upon the spirit and operation of civil service rules, whereby it has arbitrarily dispensed with examinations for office in the interest of favorites, and employed all manner of devices to overreach and set aside the principles upon which the Civil Service is based.

SECTIONAL AND RACE AGITATION.

The race question has brought countless woes to this country. The calm wisdom of the American people should see to it that it brings no more.

To revive the dead and hateful race and sectional animosities in any part of our common country means confusion, distraction of business, and the reopening of wounds now happily healed. North, South, East and West have but recently stood together in line of battle from the walls of Pekin to the hills of Santiago, and as sharers of a common glory and a common destiny, we should share fraternally the common burdens.

We therefore deprecate and condemn the Bourbon-like, selfish and narrow spirit of the recent Republican Convention at Chicago, which sought to kindle anew the embers of racial and sectional strife, and we appeal from it to the sober common sense and patriotic spirit of the American people.

THE REPUBLICAN ADMINISTRATION.

The existing Republican administration has been spasmodic, erratic, sensational, spectacular and arbitrary. It has made itself a satire upon the Congress, courts, and upon the settled practices and usages of national and international law.

It summoned the Congress in hasty and futile extra session and virtually adjourned it, leaving behind in its flight from Washington uncalled calendars and unaccomplished tasks.

It made war, which is the sole power of Congress, without its authority, thereby usurping one of its fundamental prerogatives. It violated a plain statute of the United States as well as plain treaty obligations, international usages and constitutional law; and has done so under pretense of executing a great public policy which could have been more easily effected lawfully, constitutionally and with honor.

It forced strained and unnatural constructions upon statutes, usurping judicial interpretation, and substituting for congressional enactment executive decree.

It withdrew from the Congress its customary duties of investigation which have heretofore made the representatives of the people and the States the terror of evil-doers.

It conducted a secretive investigation of its own, and boasting of a few sample convicts, it threw a broad coverlet over the bureaus which had been their chosen field of operative abuses, and kept in power the superior officers under whose administration the crimes had been committed.

It ordered assault upon some monopolies, but, paralyzed by a first victory, it flung out the flag of truce and cried out that it would not "run amuck"; leaving its future purposes beclouded by its vacillations.

APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE.

Conducting the campaign upon this declaration of our principles and purposes, we invoke for our candidates the support not only of our great and time-honored organization, but also the active assistance of all of our fellow-citizens who, disregarding past differences, desire the perpetuation of our constitutional Government as framed and established by the fathers of the Republic.

Subsequent to the adoption of the platform Judge Parker was nominated for President, receiving two-thirds of the votes cast on the first ballot, and the nomination was then made unanimous. The following telegram was sent by Judge Parker for communication to the convention:

"ESOPUS, N. Y., July 9, 1904.

"HON. WM. F. SHEEHAN, Hotel Jefferson:

"I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established, and shall act accordingly if the act of the convention today shall be ratified by the people.

"As the platform is silent on the subject, my view should be known to the convention; and if it is proved to be unsatisfactory to the majority, I request you to decline the nomination for me, so that another may be nominated before adjournment.

"(Signed) ALTON B. PARKER."

At the final session of the convention, after consideration of the telegram, the convention voted that the following reply should be sent to the candidate:

"The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of the monetary standard, because it is not regarded by us as a possible issue in this campaign, and only campaign issues were mentioned in the platform. Therefore, there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram just received which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting the nomination on said platform."

MARYLAND STATE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM, 1904.

ADOPTED AT FORD'S OPERA HOUSE, BALTIMORE, MAY 26, 1904.

Hon. Joshua W. Herring, of Carroll county, Chairman of the Convention. United States Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

We demand that at the earliest possible moment independence shall be granted to the Filipinos, with the same general relationship to this country as that now enjoyed by the people of Cuba.

The Democratic party has been foremost in advocating the construction of an inter-oceanic canal for the purposes of national defense and commerce between the States.

To obtain the cession of the required territory it has steadily aimed to cultivate friendly relations with our neighbors of the American Continent, whose destiny is so closely linked with our own.

While accepting the result of the negotiations conducted by President Roosevelt we cannot lose sight of the disturbing fact that the methods under which the territory was acquired were in defiant disregard of law and treaty obligations toward a sister republic too weak to resist the ungenerous action of our Government.

While struggling under the burden of a heavy national debt, sacredly bound to provide adequate pensions for our heroic soldiers and sailors, and compelled, for the purpose of meeting all our obligations, to demand large sacrifices from the people in the shape of custom-house duties and internal revenue taxation, which, but for these demands, would be in large degree unnecessary; it is manifestly the duty of the Government to practice in every department the strictest economy compatible with efficient civil, military and naval administration, and, pointing to the lavish and wasteful expenditure of the public revenue under Republican rule, we call for great and far-reaching retrenchment in every branch of the public service.

We are sure that such retrenchment can readily be made.

We profoundly feel that unnecessary taxation is unjust taxation, and at this time of excessive luxury, extravagance and imperial expansion we earnestly ask careful consideration by our countrymen of the impressive utterances of Andrew Jackson that "it is not in a splendid government supported by powerful monopolies and aristocratic establishments that the people will find happiness or protection of their liberties, but in a plain system void of pomp, protecting all and granting special favors to none, dispensing its blessings like the dews of heaven, unseen and unfelt save in the freshness and beauty they contribute to produce."

The recent painful and alarming disclosures of official malfeasance have created a universal and well-founded belief in the existence of wide-spread corruption and justify the most vigorous demand for a thorough investigation of all the departments, to the end that fraud and dishonesty may be promptly brought to light and punished and a pure and upright administration of public affairs be secured.

The persistent and deliberate refusal of both the Senate and House of Representatives to permit such investigation to be made by either branch of Congress demonstrates that only by a change in the Executive and in the House of Representatives can complete exposure, punishment and correction be obtained.

We charge the Republicans with establishing and maintaining an unnecessary, oppressive and unjust system of Federal taxation and we demand relief for the people from its burdens.

We charge them with great and reckless extravagance in the expenditure of the large sums needlessly collected from the people by their excessive protection of favored branches of industry beyond all precedent or reason and incapable of justification or excuse.

We charge them with the existence of fraud and corruption in the administration of many of their public trusts and with sheltering guilty incumbents from merited exposure and punishment.

We despair of amendment at their hands, and, going back to the ringing words of our honored Samuel J. Tilden, we declare that the reforms which are now so sadly needed in the mode and measures of taxation, in departmental administration, in lavish and indefensible appropriations, can only be had by a peaceful civic revolution.

We earnestly call upon the people to rise in their resistless power and give us this effectual remedy:

We demand a change of system—a change of administration—a change of parties, that we may have a change of measures and of men.

We realize that, under the domination of the corporate interests and mighty and dangerous trusts and monopolies which control the policy and shape the legislation of the Republican party, relief to the masses of the people from the glaring inequalities and gross injustice of our existing tariff is absolutely hopeless, and that only under the resistless pressure of Democratic triumph can any improvement whatever be obtained.

MARYLAND DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM—Continued.

With a Democratic President and House of Representatives our party can and will take the vigorous initiative toward the prompt, effective and just relief which the existing industrial situation of the country imperatively demands.

It is pledged to this wise and beneficent policy.

It will revise the tariff in a conservative spirit of fairness to all interests.

Its anxious purpose will be to legislate with such a due regard for the labor and capital involved in our industrial enterprises as to promote their healthy growth and to carefully guard against the infliction of injury upon established industries by abrupt, unjust and radical measures.

Odious and powerful monopolies may expect reduction of the excessive rates under which they have been enabled to extort oppressive tribute from the people.

The illegal combination of trusts, which within the last few years under the Republican tariff have grown so great and which in unlawful restraint of legitimate trade have crushed honest competition, must be stripped of the power which they have so mercilessly abused.

Appalled by the demoralization which Republican expansion and extravagance have generated, the Democratic party may also be relied on to dedicate itself to the indispensable task of purifying the administration from corruption.

It will resolutely restore economy, revive respect for law and enforce obedience from high and low, rich and poor alike.

Bearing in mind that one of the cardinal maxims of our constitutional system is that the legislative, executive and judicial powers of government ought to be forever separate and distinct from each other, and that each of these several departments should be wholly free from interference by the others, we call public attention to the repeated and unpardonable dictation of President Roosevelt to both branches of Congress.

We denounce his flagrant encroachments upon their rightful powers and independence, and, while amazed at the subserviency of a Republican Senate and a Republican House of Representatives to his orders and bald usurpation, we declare that his autocratic invasion of their freedom deserves and should receive the indignant rebuke and condemnation of the people.

PROHIBITION NATIONAL CONVENTION, 1904.

Held at Indianapolis June 29-30, 1904.

The Prohibition National Convention met June 29, 1904, at Indianapolis. Fifteen hundred persons were present, more than 400 of whom were delegates. Alonzo E. Wilson, the Illinois State chairman, presided. At the outset there was a decided drift towards General Nelson A. Miles for the nomination for President, and he was urged to take the first place on the ticket, but sent the following telegram, dated New York, to Mr. John G. Wooley:

"Appreciating the good-will of yourself and friends I must earnestly request that my name be not used in the convention and that my letter of June 20 be considered as final.

"NELSON A. MILES."

The telegram was read to the convention June 30 by A. A. Stevens, of Pennsylvania, who said:

"It was this telegram that stopped the movement today to nominate General Miles for the Presidency at a time when his nomination seemed probable."

The convention then, on June 30, nominated the ticket as follows:

For President—Rev. Dr. Silas C. Swallow, of Harrisburg, Pa.

For Vice-President—Dr. George W. Carroll, of Texas.

Rev. Dr. Swallow was nominated by acclamation.

For Vice-President, Dr. Carroll was nominated by J. B. Cranfill, of Texas.

R. W. Kelsey, of Oregon, nominated I. H. Amos, of Oregon.

E. W. Chafin, of Illinois, nominated Benj. F. Parker, of Milwaukee.

The vote for Vice-President was: Carroll, 626; Amos, 132; Parker, 1.

Mr. Carroll was declared the nominee.

The platform was adopted and the convention adjourned sine die.

PROHIBITION PARTY PLATFORM.

Adopted at Indianapolis June 30, 1904.

1. The widely-prevailing system of the licensed and legalized sale of alcoholic beverages is so ruinous to individual interests, so inimical to public welfare, so destructive to national wealth and so subversive to the rights of great masses of our citizenship, that the destruction of the traffic is and for years has been the most important question in American politics.

2. We denounce the lack of statesmanship exhibited by the leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties in their refusal to recognize the paramount importance of this question and the cowardice with which the leaders of these parties have courted the favor of those whose selfish interests are advanced by the continuation and augmentation of the traffic, until today the influence of the liquor traffic practically dominates national, State and local government throughout the nation.

3. We declare the truth, demonstrated by the experience of half a century, that all methods of dealing with the liquor traffic which recognize its right to exist in any form, under any system of license or tax or regulation, have proved powerless to remove its evils and useless as checks on its growth, while the insignificant public revenues which have accrued therefrom have seared the public conscience against a recognition of its iniquity.

4. We call public attention to the fact, proved by the experience of more than 50 years, that to secure the enactment and enforcement of prohibitory legislation, in which alone lies hope of the protection of the people from the liquor traffic, it is necessary that the legislative, executive and judicial branches of the Government should be in the hands of a political party in harmony with the prohibition principle and pledged to its embodiment in laws and to the execution of those laws.

5. We pledge the Prohibition party, wherever given power by the suffrage of the people, to the enactment and enforcement of laws prohibiting and abolishing the manufacture, importation, transportation and sale of alcoholic beverages.

6. We declare that there is not only no other issue of equal importance before the American people today, but that the so-called issues on which the Democratic and Republican parties seek to divide the electorate of the country are in large part subterfuges, under the cover of which they wrangle for the spoils of office.

7. Recognizing that the intelligent voters of the country may properly ask our attitude on other questions of public concern, we declare ourselves in favor of:

"The impartial enforcement of all law.

"The safeguarding of the people's rights by a rigid application of the principles of justice to all combinations and organizations of capital and labor.

"A more intimate relation between the people and Government and by a wise adaptation of the principle of the initiative and referendum.

"The safeguarding to every citizen in every place under the government of the people of the United States of all the rights guaranteed by the laws and the Constitution.

"International arbitration and we declare that our nation should contribute in every manner consistent with national dignity to the permanent establishment of peace between all nations.

"The reform of our divorce laws, the final extirpation of polygamy and the total overthrow of the present shameful system of illegal sanction of the social evil (with its unspeakable traffic in girls) by the municipal authorities of almost all our cities.

"We declare ourselves in favor of recognition of the fact that the right of suffrage should depend on the mental and moral qualifications of the citizens.

"We declare ourselves in favor of such changes in our laws as will place tariff schedules in the hands of an omnipartisan commission.

"We declare ourselves in favor of the application of uniform laws for all our country and dependencies.

"We declare ourselves in favor of the extension and honest administration of the civil-service law.

"We declare ourselves in favor of the election of United States Senators by vote of the people."

SOCIALIST PLATFORM.

The Socialist platform adopted by the National Convention of the Socialist party at Chicago, Ill., May 5, 1904, and endorsed by referendum of the party membership July 20, 1904, declares "Socialism means that all those things upon which the people in common depend shall by the people in common be owned and administered. It means that the tools of employment shall belong to their creators and users; that all production shall be for the direct use of the producers; that the making of goods for profit shall come to an end; that we shall all be workers together; and that all opportunities shall be open and equal to all men."

It is declared to be the aim of the Socialist party to "establish the co-operative commonwealth," and the objects sought are declared to be "for shortened days of labor and increases of wages; for the insurance of the workers against accident, sickness and lack of employment; for pensions for aged and exhausted workers; for the public ownership of the means of transportation, communication and exchange; for the graduated taxation of incomes, inheritances, franchises and land values, the proceeds to be applied to the public employment and improvement of the conditions of the workers; for the complete education of children, and their freedom from the workshop; for the prevention of the use of the military against labor in the settlement of strikes; for the free administration of justice; for popular government, including initiative, referendum, proportional representation, equal suffrage of men and women, municipal home rule, and the recall of officers by their constituents; and for every gain or advantage for the workers that may be wrested from the capitalist system, and that may relieve the suffering and strengthen the hands of labor."

SOCIALIST CONVENTION OF MARYLAND.

Held at Hagerstown, Md., July 3, 1904.

Secretary—J. L. Swerdfiger, Washington, D. C.

PEOPLE'S PARTY NATIONAL CONVENTION, 1904.

Held at Springfield, Ill., July 4-5, 1904.

Nominees—July 5.—For President—Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia; unanimously.

For Vice-President—Thomas H. Tribbles, of Nebraska.

PEOPLE'S PARTY PLATFORM.

The platform reaffirms adherence to the "basic truths of the Omaha platform of 1892 and of the subsequent platforms of 1896 and 1900." It then says:

"The issuing of money is a function of government and should never be delegated to corporations or individuals. The Constitution gives to Congress alone power to issue money and regulate its value. We, therefore, demand that all money shall be issued by the Government in such quantities as shall maintain stability in prices, every dollar to be a full legal tender, none of which shall be a debt redeemable in other money.

"We demand that postal savings banks be established by the Government for the safe deposit of the savings of the people.

"We believe in the right of labor to organize for the benefit and protection of those who toil and pledge the efforts of the People's party to preserve this right inviolate. Capital is organized and has no right to deny to labor the privilege which it claims for itself.

"We feel that intelligent organization of labor is essential; that it raises the standard of workmanship, promotes the efficiency, intelligence and character of the wage-earner. We believe, with Abraham Lincoln, that labor is prior to capital and not its slave, but its companion, and we plead for that broad spirit of toleration and justice which will promote industrial peace through the observance of the principles of voluntary arbitration.

"We favor the enactment of legislation looking to the improvement of conditions for wage earners, the abolition of child labor, the suppression of sweatshops and of convict labor in competition with free labor and the exclusion from American shores of foreign pauper labor.

"We favor the shorter workday and declare that if eight hours constitutes a day's labor in Government service that eight hours should constitute a day's labor in factories, workshops and mines.

"As a means of placing all public questions directly under the control of the people, we demand that the legal provisions be made under which the people may exercise the initiative and referendum and proportional representation and direct vote for all public officers, with the right of recall.

"Land, including all the natural sources of wealth, is a heritage of all the people, and should not be monopolized for speculative purposes. Alien ownership of lands should be prohibited.

"We demand a return to the original interpretation of the Constitution and a fair and impartial enforcement of laws under it, and denounce government by injunction and imprisonment without the right of trial by jury.

"To prevent unjust discrimination and monopoly the Government should own and control the railroads and those public utilities which in their nature are monopolized. To perfect the postal service, the Government should own and operate the general telegraphs and telephone system and provide a parcels post.

"As to those trusts and monopolies which are not public utilities or natural monopolies, we demand that the special privileges which they now enjoy and which alone enable them to exist should be immediately withdrawn.

Corporations being the creatures of government should be subjected to such governmental regulations and control as will adequately protect the public. We demand the taxation of monopoly privileges, while they remain in private hands, to the extent of the value of the privileges granted.

"We demand that Congress shall enact a general law uniformly regulating the power and duties of all incorporated companies doing interstate business."

The platform was adopted unanimously.

STATE AID ROAD LAW OF MARYLAND.

The purpose of the Maryland State aid road law, Act of Assembly, 1904, Chapter 225, is to encourage in a practical way the gradual building up of a system of good roads in all parts of the State. By its provisions, the State offers to pay one-half the cost of such roads by the annual appropriation of $200,000, to be allotted among the several counties in the direct proportion which the public road mileage of the county bears to the total public road mileage of the State.

Wherever a county does not take up its full allotment of State aid, the balance is to be reappointed among such remaining counties as are ready to take up a further allotment in proportion to their public road mileage. By this means some counties may secure a larger sum than given in the first general allotment.

A county may secure State aid in the following manner: The County Commissioners petition the State Commission for aid to build a certain piece of road. If it is found, upon examination by the State Commission, that the road in question is one of general public convenience and a proper one to construct, an estimate of the cost of the improvement is made, together with plans, specifications, etc., for doing the work. This is undertaken by the County Commissioners either by contract, or if the prices for doing it in this manner are considered too high, then in other ways that they may deem best.

After the work is done according to the specifications, and the State Commission has so certified to the Comptroller, then one-half of the cost of constructing the road will be paid by the State to the county building the road; but in no case is the amount paid by the State to exceed one-half of the cost, as shown by the estimate of the cost of the work as first made by the State Commission. It is also provided that the owners of two-thirds of the lands binding upon any public road or section of road, not less than a mile long, can compel the County Commissioners to petition for the construction of the piece of road, provided that the owners petitioning have paid or have pledged 10 per cent. of the cost. The work then proceeds as already described, except that the County Commissioners cannot be compelled by this payment of 10 per cent. by property-holders to contract for work to an amount greater than one-fourth of the road levy of the county. This ten per cent. subscription is optional with each holder of property binding upon the road which it is desired to improve, and in no instance can any property-holder be compelled to bear any part of the amount pledged.

Any expense due to the payment for land that may be necessary to secure a proper location for the road or any damages that may arise through the construction of the road will not be paid by the State, but must be met by the county.

The following table shows the allotment of the State road appropriation to the counties, according to their public road mileage as determined by the Maryland Geological Survey, as required by the law.

The constitutionality of the road law was sustained by Judge N. Charles Burke at Towson, Baltimore County, December 16, 1904. He decided that the ordinary public roads belong to the State and it was its business to maintain them, that duty being delegated to the counties from motives of convenience in the administration of road affairs, and that the section of the Constitution relating to works of internal improvement was intended to apply solely to State appropriations for railroads, canals and similar undertakings of a quasi-public nature; which were conducted for profit.

The question having been raised whether the clause in Section 34 Article 3 of the Constitution prohibiting the Legislature from making any appropriation for works of "Internal Improvement," does not stand in the way of the appropriation for public roads, the Legislature in 1904 proposed an amendment definitely giving the Legislature power to make such appropriation.

BALTIMORE MUNICIPAL IMPROVEMENTS.

When all the plans for dock improvements, street widenings and extensions, made necessary or desirable by the fire of February, 1904, were well under way through the active agency of the Burnt District Commission, Mayor E. Clay Timanus inaugurated a movement to still further improve the city of Baltimore with a modern sewerage system, repaved streets, Annex street improvements, additional school houses, more fire engine houses, increased water supply, union railroad terminal, etc.

This movement took definite shape December 5, 1904, when a permanent organization of progressive citizens was formed, with Mr. E. Stanley Gary as the executive. The plans included the ratification by the people at the polls of ordinances appropriating the following sums of money:

For sewers	$10,000,000
For paving	5,000,000
For the Annex	2,000,000
For public schools	1,000,000
For Fire Department	1,000,000
Total	$19,000,000

NATIONAL TICKETS OF 1904.

Nine national political conventions were held in the United States in 1904 and nine candidates for President and Vice-President of the United States were nominated, but only six electoral tickets were generally voted for. The parties making nominations were the Democratic, the Republican, People's, Prohibition, Socialist, Socialist-Labor, Continental (Labor), National Liberty (negro) and Lincoln (negro). The two negro parties, however, ended their work when the national conventions adjourned, as no electors were selected, or at least none appeared on any official ballot, and the Continental party seems to have been confined to Illinois and Chicago, the place of its origin.

FREDERICK MUNICIPAL ELECTION, JUNE 14, 1904.

This election was the first held under the Act of Assembly of 1904 by which voters in municipal elections were required to have a property qualification. Party emblems were restored, so that an X mark to the right of the emblem or party name insured a vote for the entire ticket.

HOW MARYLAND HAS VOTED FOR PRESIDENT.

The electoral vote of Maryland has been successively cast as follows:

1789—George Washington, of Virginia, and Robert Hanson Harrison, of Maryland, 6 votes.

1793—George Washington and John Adams, 8 votes.

1797—John Adams, 7; Thos. Pinckney, 4; Thomas Jefferson, 4; Aaron Burr, 3; John Henry, of Maryland, 2.

1801—John Adams, 5; C. C. Pinckney, 5; Thomas Jefferson, 5; Aaron Burr, 5.

The tie vote of the Electors for Jefferson and Burr in 1801 threw the election for President into the House of Representatives and caused a change in the electoral system. The twelfth amendment to the Constitution was adopted, requiring the electors to vote separately for President and Vice-President, but not altering the system otherwise. This constitutional recognition of the existence of parties fixed the future nullity of the electors, and their nullity gradually obscured the position of the President of the Senate. Before 1801 no one knew positively what the vote of any elector was until the certificate was opened; after that year the votes of the Electors were really known before they were cast, and for several months before they were formally counted by the President of the Senate.

1805—Thomas Jefferson for President and George Clinton for Vice-President, 9 votes each; C. C. Pinckney and Rufus King, Federalists, 2 votes each.

1809—James Madison and George Clinton, 9; C. C. Pinckney and Rufus King, 2.

1813—James Madison and Elbridge Gerry, 6; De Witt Clinton and Jared Ingersoll, Federalists, 5.

1817—James Monroe and Daniel D. Tompkins, Democrats, 8.

1821—James Monroe, President, 11; Daniel D. Tompkins, Vice-President, 10; Robert Goodloe Harper, of Maryland, 1.

1825—For President, Andrew Jackson, 7; John Q. Adams, 3; William H. Crawford, 1. For Vice-President, John C. Calhoun, 10, and Andrew Jackson, 1.

1829—President, Andrew Jackson, 5; John Q. Adams, 6. Vice-President, John C. Calhoun, 5; Richard Rush, 6.

1833—President, Andrew Jackson, 3; Henry Clay, 5. Vice-President, Martin Van Buren, 3; John Sergeant, 5.

1837—William Henry Harrison and John Tyler, 10.

1841—William Henry Harrison and John Tyler, 10.

1845—Henry Clay and Th. Frelinghuysen, 8.

1849—Zachary Taylor and Millard Fillmore, 8.

1853—Franklin Pierce and William R. King, 8.

1857—Millard Fillmore and A. J. Donelson, 8.

At the election in 1856 Maryland was carried by the Know-Nothings, and was the only State to cast its electoral vote for Fillmore and Donelson.

1861—John C. Breckenridge and Joseph Lane, 8.

1865—Abraham Lincoln and Andrew Johnson, 7.

1869—Horatio Seymour and Frank P. Blair, 7.

1873—Thomas A. Hendricks and B. Gratz Brown, 8.

Horace Greeley carried the State, but died before the Electoral College met.

1877—Samuel J. Tilden and Thomas A. Hendricks, 8.

1881—Winfield S. Hancock and William H. English, 8.

1885—Grover Cleveland and Thomas A. Hendricks, 8.

1889—Grover Cleveland and Allen G. Thurman, 8.

1893—Grover Cleveland and Adlai E. Stevenson, 8.

1897—William McKinley and Garrett A. Hobart, 8.

1901—William McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt, 8.

1905—Theodore Roosevelt and Chas. W. Fairbanks, 1; Alton B. Parker and Henry G. Davis, 7.

Explanation.

There is really no such thing as a popular vote for President and Vice-President of the United States. The vote of the people is for electors in the several States.

In some cases compilers average the vote cast for electors on the several tickets, but in most cases the vote of the highest elector is made the factor. In other cases, the lowest vote is taken, and hence the difference—sometimes very marked—in the different tabulations of the so-called "popular vote," each one of which may be entirely accurate on the basis upon which it is compiled.

PRESIDENTIAL SUCCESSION.

Succession to the Presidency of the United States in case of the death of both President and Vice-President is settled by law. This was provided for January 19, 1886, soon after the death of Vice-President Hendricks. Up to that time Congress would have been obliged to decide who should become Chief Executive should the President and Vice-President both become incapacitated. The main features of the law of the Presidential succession are as follows:

In case of removal, death, resignation or inability of both the President and Vice-President of the United States, Cabinet officers are in the line of succession in the following order:

1. Secretary of State.
2. Secretary of the Treasury.
3. Secretary of War.
4. Attorney-General.
5. Postmaster-General.
6. Secretary of the Navy.
7. Secretary of the Interior.

In this order they are to succeed and act as President until the disability of the President or Vice-President is removed, or a President shall be elected.

The law provides that, when one of the above Cabinet officers succeeds to the Presidency in the order named he shall call a special session of Congress. A proviso limits the succession to those who would be eligible to the Presidency under the terms of the Constitution and who have been appointed with the advice and consent of the Senate. The effect of the law is not to provide a succession to the Vice-Presidency, but merely to insure a succession to the Presidency.

MIDSHIPMEN IN THE NAVY.

The students of the Naval Academy are styled midshipmen.

Two midshipmen are allowed for each Senator, Representative and Delegate in Congress, two for the District of Columbia, and five each year from the United States at large. The appointments from the District of Columbia and five each year at large are made by the President.

One midshipman is allowed from Porto Rico, who must be a native of that island. The appointment is made by the President, on the recommendation of the Governor of Porto Rico.

The Congressional appointments are equitably distributed, so that in regular course each Senator, Representative and Delegate in Congress may appoint one midshipman during each Congress.

After June 30, 1913, each Senator, Representative and Delegate in Congress will be allowed to appoint but one midshipman.

The course for midshipmen is six years—four years at the Academy, when the succeeding appointment is made, and two years at sea, at the expiration of which time the examination for final graduation takes place.

Midshipmen who pass the examination for final graduation are appointed to fill vacancies in the lower grades of the line of the Navy and of the Marine Corps, in the order of merit as determined by the Academic Board of the Naval Academy.

All candidates must, at the time of their examination for admission, be between the ages of sixteen and twenty years. A candidate is eligible for appointment on the day he becomes sixteen and is ineligible on the day he becomes twenty years of age.

Examinations will be according to such regulations and at such stated times as the Secretary of the Navy may prescribe.

NAVAL APPRENTICES.

Boys between the ages of seventeen and eighteen years may, with the consent of their parents or guardians, be enlisted as apprentices to serve in the Navy of the United States until they shall arrive at the age of twenty-one years.

No minor under the age of seventeen years, no insane or intoxicated person, and no deserter from the naval or military service of the United States can be enlisted.

Only such boys should be accepted for enlistment as can reasonably be expected to remain in the service. Once enlisted they must fulfill their terms of apprenticeship and cannot be discharged, except for physical disability, for inaptitude or for misconduct.

Parents and guardians are advised not to enlist boys having hereditary physical defects or chronic complaints; their discharge for physical disability is sure to follow.

RUSSIAN-JAPANESE WAR.

The war which began February 6, 1904, between Russia and Japan for the possession of Manchuria was one of the bloodiest wars of modern times; it was not concluded at the end of the year. Both on land and on sea, all the modern agencies of destructive warfare were brought into action and from start to finish Japanese dash, directed by the highest skill in the scientific principles of war, was met at every point by stubborn resistance and all the defensive resources practicable, yet Japanese strategy, courage and persistency prevailed in every case, with the objective point, finally, of the capture of Port Arthur, esteemed to be one of the few impregnable fortresses of the world. Step by step every Japanese move led to the accomplishment of this great triumph. At the close of the year, so much had been accomplished that the fall of the fortress was imminent, and on the night of January 1, 1905, Gen. Stoessel offered to treat for surrender after 7 months siege.

Russia's failure to keep her promise to evacuate Manchuria, October 8, 1903, led Japan to fear that the Czar intended to retain that province permanently. His retention of Manchuria would open a way to the occupation of Korea also, and if Korea were Russian, the independence of Japan would be seriously endangered. Negotiations designed to induce Russia to abandon explicitly all pretensions to Korea having failed, on February 5, 1904, the Japanese Minister at St. Petersburg announced the rupture of diplomatic relations. War began on the afternoon of the 6th, when the Russian gunboat Korietz fired on the Japanese squadron. The Korietz and Variag were sunk. At Port Arthur on the 8th, Admiral Togo attacked the Russian fleet and seriously injured three battleships and four cruisers. The Japanese attempted to block the entrance of the harbor with sunken ships. On the 12th China proclaimed her neutrality and Japan reached an understanding with Korea. On the 21st Gen. Kuropatkin was appointed commander-in-chief in Manchuria. On April 6 the Japanese occupied Wiju, Korea, near the Yalu, and on May 1 occurred the battle of the Yalu, Kuroki defeating the Russians with great slaughter and capturing 28 guns. Both sides had ships destroyed by floating mines, and on May 15 a Japanese battleship and cruiser were thus sunk at Port Arthur. On the 27th Gen. Oku, with heavy loss, stormed Nanshan near Port Arthur and captured 78 guns. Beaten again in the battle of Telissu, June 14, the Russians retired northward to Kaiping, having lost 7,000 men and 8 guns. In July some of the outer works of Port Arthur on the land side were taken and the siege began. Marshal Oyama, the Japanese commander-in-chief, on July 6 left Tokio for the front. A week later great excitement was caused in England by the Smolensk's seizing a British steamer in the Red Sea. Such seizures were made also in the Far East by the Vladivostok squadron, but most of these seizures were afterward apologized for as being illegal. The sinking of the Knight Commander renewed the excitement in England, and Russia agreed to stop promiscuous interference with neutrals. On July 25 Gen. Oku, after hard fighting, drove the Russians from Tatchekiao and occupied Niuchwang. On August 10 the Russian fleet emerged from the harbor of Port Arthur with the intention of proceeding to Vladivostok, but was attacked and dispersed by Admiral Togo, five battleships being injured and others taking refuge at Shanghai, Chefu and Kiaochau. On the 14th the Vladivostok squadron, on its way to meet the Port Arthur fleet, was attacked by Admiral Kamimura, who sunk the Rurik and seriously injured her two consorts. On August 23 operations against Liaoyang began and after a series of bloody engagements the Japanese entered the town on September 4. The losses on both sides in these operations are said to have aggregated 40,000. To avert the fall of Port Arthur, Gen. Kuropatkin, having received large reinforcements, attacked the Japanese on the line of the Shakhe River between Liaoyang and Mukden on October 10, and heavy fighting continued without intermission for nine days, with the result that he was beaten back, losing, it is said, in killed and wounded 60,000 men, while the Japanese lost about half as many. Meanwhile at Port Arthur the siege had proceeded with vigor. Admiral Togo blockaded the fortress on the sea front, while Gen. Nogi assailed it by land. By August 28 the outer works had been taken by successive assaults, but the six days' struggle that gave the Japs Fort Banjusan cost them 14,000 men. After that date the siege proceeded in a quieter way. The spade came into use. Zigzag lines of approach were dug and large guns were mounted to throw shells into the Russian forts and into the town and harbor. On October 1, 11-inch howitzer batteries began to drop shells with destructive effect. By mines and saps a near approach was made to the Russian main works and there were frequent rushes and counter-attacks, fighting often taking place underground. Progress was slow, the numerous Russian forts being on high hills and supporting each other, but by November 28 the Japs had captured many minor forts and reached the moats of several of the principal works that dominate the rest. The Japanese losses were very great, but every effort was made to capture the place before the arrival of the Baltic fleet in the Far East. The unprovoked firing by this fleet upon fishing vessels off the coast of England caused much feeling in London, but war, which at one time seemed near at hand, was happily averted.

The positions gained by the Japanese enabled them to practically annihilate the Russian vessels of war in the harbor of Port Arthur before the end of the year, and on January 2, 1905, Gen. Stoessel surrendered the fortress to Gen. Nogi with honorable conditions.

The operations of the war were conducted by commanders as follows:

On the Japanese side—
Field Marshal—Oyama.
Generals—Oku, Nodzu, Nogi.
Vice-Admirals—Togo, Kamimura.
Rear Admiral—Uriu.
On the Russian side—

At the close of 1904, the indications were that after March 4, 1905, Whitelaw Reid, of New York, would succeed Joseph Choate as Ambassador to Great Britain; that Gen. Horace Porter would retire from the post of Ambassador to France; that Charlemagne Tower, Ambassador to Germany; Robert S. McCormick, Ambassador to Russia, and Bellamy Storer, Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, would remain at their posts.

The General Conference at Los Angeles, Cal., in May, 1904, elected eight superintendents and four missionary bishops, one of the latter being a colored man for Africa. Dr. James R. Day, chancellor of Syracuse University, New York, one of the eight superintendents elected, declined the office. At his request the General Conference annulled his election as a bishop by unanimous vote, and then voted to indefinitely postpone the election of a successor to Dr. Day on the Board of Superintending bishops. This action was taken to mean that the Episcopal Board would remain as it is, with seven newly elected superintendents and nine others. The retired superintendents were seven and the missionary bishops seven.

The General Conference May 28, 1904, decided, by a practically unanimous vote, to amend the church constitution so as to provide for the election of bishops of African descent to be assigned to the presidency of conferences consisting wholly or chiefly of ministers of African descent.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

In view of the proposed union between the Congregational, the United Brethren and the Methodist Protestant Churches, the time and place for the next General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church has not been fixed. The last General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church agreed to the terms of union as proposed by the preliminary committee. Later the General Council of the Congregational Church also agreed to the plan. If the United Brethren agree in May, 1905, at their General Conference, then a General Council of the three denominations will meet to consummate it. And that will make a General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church problematical if not unnecessary.

CENTRE MARKET COMMISSION.

Chairman—Felix Agnus.
Henry Clark. Mayor E. Clay Timanus.
Frank A. Furst. Comptroller Geo. R. Heffner.
Secretary—W. H. Sultzer.

This Commission was appointed December 5, 1904, by the Mayor to supervise the plans and the rebuilding of the Centre Market house and the Maryland Institute building, destroyed by the great fire in Baltimore of February 7-8, 1904. For the market improvements the Commission has $435,000 at its disposal.

The trustees of the Maryland Institute made an appeal for aid to Mr. Andrew Carnegie, who on December 8 wrote to Mr. Daniel C. Gilman to the effect that he would give $263,000 for a building, the city to furnish a site for the Institute, the assets being an equal amount, including insurance money $70,000, endowment $18,000 and State appropriation $175,000—total $263,000.
