THE SUN ALMANAC

THE BLUE BOOK OF MARYLAND FOR 1907

THE SUN presents to its subscribers the 32d number of this standard reference book, which, as usual, is devoted largely to affairs of special interest to Baltimore City and Maryland. It is larger than ever and its scope has been broadened to include matter of particular interest to the farmer, records of sporting and athletic events, as well as matter of general interest. Its political statistics are in compact and concise form, and as heretofore, are full and complete. In no other publication can they be had in such comprehensive shape. A number of pages have been set apart for advertisers, whose announcements will be found of much interest. These pages, however, do not reduce the number devoted to almanac purposes proper.

The controlling idea in the preparation of the volume has been to compress within its pages as much information as possible about the year's affairs of the city, the State, the nation and the world, and to maintain its position as a valuable book of reference for everybody.

THE SUN ALMANAC is not sold, but as stated above, is given to all subscribers of THE SUN.

How Cremation Started in America.

Col. Henry Laurens, one of the Revolutionary patriots, was the first person to be cremated in the United States. He was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1724 and died on his plantation near there on December 8, 1792. He left directions in his will for his cremation, as follows: "I solemnly enjoin it upon my son as an indispensable duty, that as soon as he conveniently can after my decease he cause my body to be wrapped in twelve yards of tow cloth and burned until it be entirely consumed." His request was obeyed to the letter, and was the beginning of cremation in America.

Marriages at the Church Door.

Not until the time of the Reformation was marriage sanctioned as a rite to be fittingly performed within a church. The customary place, prior to this, was at the church door. This rule, however, appears to have been transgressed, but until the first prayer book of Edward VI. (1549) the rubric of the Sarum Manual was in use, which directed that the man and the woman about to be married should be placed before the door of the church. It was considered indecent to unite in wedlock within the church itself. Chaucer, in his Canterbury Tales (1383) alludes to this custom in his "Wife of Bath": "She was a worthy woman all her live, Husbands at the church door had she five."

As late as 1559 Elizabeth, daughter of Henry II. of France, was married to Philip II. of Spain by the Bishop of Paris at the church door of Notre Dame; while Mary Stuart had been married the year before to the Dauphin on the same spot.

The lunar year is the time required for the moon to travel around the earth twelve times. This is 354 days 8 hours 48 minutes long, and is the year of the Jews. It is 11 days shorter than the solar year. To make good this defect the Hebrews add a thirteenth month of 30 days every third year, but even then they are still three days behind solar time.

The solar year is the time in which the earth completes one journey around the sun. This is 365 days 5 hours 48 minutes 49 seconds long.

First Use of Rubber Erasers.

One of the earliest references to the use of rubber for the removal of pencil marks from paper is in a note to the introduction of a treatise on perspective by Dr. Priestley, published in 1770. He writes: "Since this work was printed off I have seen a substance excellently adapted to the purpose of wiping from paper the marks of a black lead pencil. It must, therefore, be of singular use to those who practice drawing. It is sold by Mr. Navine, mathematical instrument maker, opposite the Royal Exchange. He sells a cubical piece of about half an inch for 3s. and says it will last several years."

TWILIGHT.

Twilight is produced when light from the sun, while still below the horizon, strikes on the upper atmosphere too obliquely for refraction to bend the rays down to the surface; then the illuminated dust motes of the upper air light up the sky for hours with a soft shimmer. On lofty mountains where the atmosphere contains little water-vapor and few dust motes, the air is heated so slightly by the sun's rays passing through, that it remains bitterly cold, although the sun's direct heat blisters the traveler's face and hand. The length of time required by the sun after setting to reach the depth of 18° below the horizon, at which depth twilight ceases, varies with the season and with the observer's latitude. In the latitude of Baltimore it is about 1 hour 30 minutes on March 1st and October 12th, but more than two hours at the summer solstice.

First New England Duel.

The first duel in New England and probably in the country occurred at Plymouth June 18, 1621. It was between Edward Dotey and Edward Leister. Swords and daggers were used. Both men were wounded, one in the hand, the other in the thigh. As punishment they were sentenced to have "their heads and feet tied together and to lie for 24 hours without meat or drink." After being punished thus for an hour, their suffering became intense and they were released by the governor upon the request of their master, Mr. Hopkins.

EVENING AND MORNING STARS.

Although Venus has ever been considered the morning or the evening star par excellence, every one of the planets acts in the capacity of a morning and an evening star. The inferior planets Mercury and Venus are evening stars from superior to inferior conjunction, and the superior planets Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune from opposition to conjunction. It follows from this that the duration of an evening star depends upon the synodical period of the respective planet, being one-half of it. Consequently Mercury shines as an evening star (or a morning star) about 2 months, Venus about 9½ months, Mars 13 months (the longest period of all), Jupiter 6½ months, Saturn 6¼ months, and Uranus 6 months.

SCINTILLATION.

The twinkling of the fixed stars is due to interference of light. The air, being unequally dense, warm and moist in its various strata, transmits very irregularly the different colors of which white light is composed. Now one color prevails over the rest, and now another, so that the star appears to alter its hue incessantly. White stars, as Sirius, twinkle most at a given altitude, and red stars, as Betelgeuse and Antares, least. As the purity and density of the air vary, the twinkling of the stars also changes and, therefore, it is always greatest near the horizon. It should be noticed that interference occurs only when the light emanates from a point. A body that subtends a visual angle, i. e., has a sensible disk, like a planet, cannot twinkle.

First Declaration of Independence.

The original manuscript of the Declaration of Independence drawn up and signed by Revolutionary patriots of Harford county, Md., at Harford Town on March 22, 1775, is still in existence. This declaration antedates that of Mecklenburg, N. C., which was made in May of the same year, and is more than a year older than the Declaration of Independence, by the Continental Congress, July 4, 1776. Harford Town is now known as Bush, and ruins of the old tavern in which the meeting was held are yet to be seen at Bush.

THE ZODIAC.

The apparent path of the sun in the heavens is along an ecliptic, which is inclined 23° 27' to the celestial equator. A belt 16° wide, 8° on each side of the ecliptic, within which are comprised the path of the moon and all of the planets known to the ancients, is known as the zodiac. This belt is divided into the twelve signs of the zodiac, each 30° in length. The first of these signs begins at the point when the sun's path crosses the equator (when moving north in the spring) and is known as the sign of Aries, and the point of crossing is known as the vernal or spring equinox. The point when the sun's path crosses the equator when returning south in the fall is known as the autumnal equinox, and is the beginning of the sign Libra.

The zodiacal signs and the times when the sun enters each are as follows:

♈ Aries, the Ram.	Mar. 21, 2 P.M.	♏ Scorpio, the Scorpion.	Oct. 23, 10 P.M.

The Age of Niagara Falls.

The last word on the subject of the age of Niagara, which is of great geologic importance because the falls have been made to serve as a sort of standard by which all geologic time is measured, comes from J. W. Spencer, who concludes from the measured rate of recession during 48 years, together with other geologic data not usually taken into account, that the falls are 31,000 years old, and the river 32,000; also that the Huron drainage was turned into Lake Erie less than 8,000 years ago. He thinks the lake epoch began 50,000 or 60,000 years ago and that the falls have about 5,000 more years to live, at the end of which time the lake waters will discharge into the Mississippi.

Antiquity of Bank Notes.

The oldest bank note probably in existence in Europe is in the Asiatic Museum at St. Petersburg. It dates from the year 1399 B. C. and was issued by the Chinese government. It can be proved by Chinese chronicles that as early as 2697 B. C. bank notes were current in China under the name of flying money. The note preserved at St. Petersburg bears the name of the Imperial Bank, date and number of issue, signature of a mandarin, and contains even a list of punishments for forgery of notes.

STATUE OF SEVERN TEACKLE WALLIS.

A heroic bronze statue of Severn Teackle Wallis, by Marquestre, the French sculptor, was unveiled in Washington Square, Baltimore, January 9, 1906.

The cord was drawn by Severn Teackle Wallis 2d, of Washington, D. C., his grandnephew, aged 8 years.

Mr. Arthur George Brown delivered an oration, calling Mr. Wallis a typical and, in many of the most important aspects of his life and character, an ideal Baltimorean.

Mayor E. Clay Timanus accepted the statue on behalf of the city.

S. Davies Warfield was chairman of the committee which raised the fund for the statue.

The parked and ornamental places radiating in four directions from the Washington monument contain heroic bronze statues of Gen. John Eager Howard, the hero of the battle of Cowpens (equestrian), Roger Brooke Taney, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States (sitting), George Peabody, the philanthropist (sitting), Severn Teackle Wallis, author, orator, lawyer. One of the places to the westward of the Washington monument is adorned by groups of Barye bronzes and a magnificent lion in bronze. The monument itself is capped by a heroic statue in marble of Washington.

Severn Teackle Wallis was born in Baltimore, on Charles' street, within a block or two of where his statue stands, September 8, 1816. He died April 11, 1894, and was buried in Greenmount Cemetery, Baltimore. His father was Philip Wallis, who was of Kent county, Md.; his maternal grandfather, Severn Teackle, was an officer in the Revolutionary Army. Mr. Wallis graduated from St. Mary's College, in Baltimore. He was a bachelor of arts at the age of 16, and two years later was a master of arts, and at 25 was a doctor of laws. He studied law under William Wirt, and later under Judge John Glenn, and was admitted to the bar in 1837 at the age of 21.

He was a powerful influence in Maryland reform movements and employed his brilliant oratory effectively in political campaigns.

He was a prose author, poet and linguist. He became proficient in the history and literature of Spain and in 1843 was elected corresponding member of the Royal Academy of History, at Madrid. Two years later he was elected fellow of the Royal Society of Northern Antiquaries of Copenhagen. He spoke French fluently and was familiar with the Latin classics. He was the author of "Glimpses of Spain," and "Spain, Her Institutions, Politics and Public Men."

As chairman of the art committee of citizens appointed by the Legislature, he delivered the address at the unveiling at Annapolis in 1872 of the statue of Chief Justice Taney, a replica of which is one of the bronzes about the Washington monument as stated above.

In 1859 he was active in breaking up the Know-Nothing power in Maryland; he was a brilliant editorial writer of the Baltimore Exchange, which was suppressed during the Civil War for its Southern sympathies. At the session of the Legislature of Maryland, in Frederick, in 1861, when the General Assembly was broken up, Mr. Wallis was one of the members of the body arrested and imprisoned in Forts McHenry, Baltimore, and Warren, Boston. No charge was ever preferred against him and he was released in 1862, after 14 months' detention.

Upon the death of John P. Kennedy, in 1870, Mr. Wallis was made provost of the University of Maryland. He was for years a trustee of the Peabody Institute and succeeded the late C. J. M. Eaton as president of its board. He was also president of the Maryland Historical Society.

In 1875 he was a candidate for Attorney-General of Maryland, but not returned elected. He was never married.

What "Honeymoon" Means.

The word "honeymoon" is derived from the ancient Teutons and means drinking for 30 days after marriage of metheglin, mead or hydromel, a kind of wine made from honey. Attila, king of the Huns, who was called "The Scourge of God," is said to have died on his nuptial night from an uncommon effusion of blood, brought on by indulging too freely in hydromel at his wedding feast. The term "honeymoon" now signifies the first month after marriage or so much of it as is spent from home.

First Umbrella Raised in Baltimore.

Baltimore was foremost in introducing things now of universal use, but it is not generally known that a Baltimorean displayed the first umbrella seen in the United States. It was in 1772 when he appeared on the streets walking under an umbrella which he had purchased from a Baltimore ship that had come from India. It is related that at the sight of the man with his strange weather shield women were frightened, horses became unmanageable, children stoned the man and the watchman was called out. News of the umbrella episode reached Philadelphia, and had the effect of begetting the article an enthusiastic adoption. New York later took up the innovation, and it was not long before the umbrella was generally adopted.

First Postage Stamps.

The postage stamp made its first appearance in 1839, having been invented by James Chalmers, a printer of Dundee. England adopted the adhesive stamp according to a decree of December 21, 1839, and issued the first stamps for public use on May 6, 1840. A year later they were introduced into the United States and Switzerland, and soon after in Bavaria, Belgium and France.

RAILROAD RATE LAW.

The Railroad Rate bill which occupied much of the time of the last session of Congress went into effect on August 28, 1906. Some sections of the law did not become effective until January 1, 1907, the rule against the issuance of free passes, for instance, while the rule against common carriers taking their own mined or manufactured products across the borders of the State in which they were produced, unless they are designed for the use of the common carrier concerned, does not become law until May 1, 1907.

The Rate bill is practically a series of amendments to the Interstate Commerce law. It applies to every common carrier engaged in interstate commerce, including railroads, private car lines, express companies, steamboats, sleeping car companies and pipe lines other than those transporting water and gas. Under its provisions the definition of railroads is broadened to include railroad bridges and ferries, switches, spurs, tracks, terminal facilities, freight depots, grounds and yards.

The broadening of this definition will enable the commission to regulate switching and terminal charges, which have always been a prolific source of discrimination.

Transportation is defined by the bill to include all cars, irrespective of ownership and contract, and all services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation, transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage and handling of property transported.

It is provided by the law that every transportation company must file with the commission and keep two copies displayed in each of its depots for public inspection schedules showing all its rates and charges not only to all points on its own lines, but to all points reached by connecting lines. These schedules must state separately the charges for the services covered in the definition of "transportation." No changes will be permitted in the schedules without 30 days' notice, which will shut the door against the injustices of "midnight" schedules. The published rates are the only ones that can lawfully be charged to anyone.

According to the section dealing with the handling of manufactured or mined products, all railroads owning coal and iron mines must dispose of their properties of this character or ship their products out of the State over a competing line.

In the event of a complaint against any rate as unjust the commission will fix a time for a hearing, and if the complaint is found to be well founded it will promulgate a rate which it deems equitable, and this rate becomes the maximum charge which the carrier may levy. Such rate becomes effective in 30 days and remains in effect two years, unless modified or set aside by the courts. The commission is also entitled to compel detailed reports from all common carriers as to their capitalization, franchise values, investment values, salaries, earnings and profits.

Violations of the Rate law are held to be misdemeanors for the corporation as well as for its officials. For refusing to obey orders as to rates the fine is $5,000, and every violation is a separate offense and every day a separate offense. For giving or receiving an illegal pass there is a sliding scale of fines from $100 to $2,000. For failing to file and publish tariffs the fines range from $1,000 to $20,000. The railroad official responsible for a rebate is liable to two years' imprisonment, in addition to a fine, which may be $1,000 or $20,000, and the man who accepts the rebate is liable for three times the value of the rebate received. There is a fine of from $1,000 to $5,000 for the keeping of incorrect records.

The commission is entitled to award a shipper damages for a carrier's failure to observe the law. In case the carrier appeals and the shipper wins before the United States Circuit Court the shipper is entitled not only to damages and costs, but to a reasonable attorney's fee.

Suits to reverse or review or enforce the decisions of the commission must be brought before the United States Circuit Court of the district where the carrier has its principal offices. Appeals may be made by either side from the Circuit Court to the Supreme Court of the United States. Such appeals have priority over all other cases save criminal cases. Appeals must be made within 30 days.

OLDEST BUILDINGS IN AMERICA.

The oldest building in America is said to be an adobe structure in Santa Fe, New Mexico, which is said to have sheltered Coronado in 1540. The United States barracks at St. Augustine, Fla., are composed in part of an ancient Franciscan monastery which was completed in the latter part of the sixteenth century.

SECRETARY ROOT'S SOUTH AMERICAN TOUR.

Secretary of State Root ended with his return to Washington on September 30, 1906, the most remarkable foreign tour ever made by an American diplomat. He was the first American Foreign Minister to circumnavigate South America. He was the guest of six republics, and he made them all understand American policy as they never understood it before. Since his speeches, the Monroe Doctrine is no longer regarded by the South Americans as a cloak for piracy. He made it clear, too, that the United States is in sympathy with South America in the matter of its pet Drago doctrine.

His trip was in connection with the Third Pan-American Conference held at Rio de Janeiro. It began on the 4th of July, when Mr. Root sailed from New York on the cruiser Charleston, and went first to Porto Rico, where he met Governor Beekman Winthrop and other members of the government of the island, with whom he discussed the political conditions of the Porto Ricans. From Porto Rico he sailed to Para, a Brazilian port on the northern coast of that country near the mouth of the Amazon river, then down the Brazilian coast to Pernambuco and Bahia.

He went thence to Rio de Janeiro, where he attended the Pan-American Congress. He had a remarkable reception at Rio. He was rowed ashore by sixty black boatmen in a royal barge which had been used only twice in a century, lodged in a palace, and besieged by cheering crowds.

He spent ten days in the Brazilian capital, and after visiting the interior of Brazil sailed on the Charleston for Montevideo, the capital of Uruguay. Several days were spent there, and then he crossed the river Plata to Buenos Ayres, the capital of Argentina. Seven days were spent in Argentina, and there he was accorded magnificent receptions.

From Buenos Ayres his party went overland by rail to the port of Bahia Blanca, where they rejoined the Charleston for the continuation of their tour around the southernmost end of South America through the Straits of Magellan. While going around the cape Secretary Root was informed of the earthquake at Valparaiso, at which place unusual arrangements for his reception had been planned. On account of the calamity he decided to make only a short visit of condolence to Chile. The Chileans desired him to stay longer and sent a Chilean cruiser to the Straits of Magellan to meet the Charleston and act as a convoy as far as Lota, a port on the southern coast of Chile.

There Mr. Root and members of his party left the American vessel, which proceeded up the coast to Valparaiso, and went by rail to Santiago, the capital of Chile. Although the Chileans had not recovered from the shock of the Valparaiso calamity, their reception of Mr. Root was extremely cordial. After five days' stay in their country Mr. Root rejoined the Charleston at Valparaiso and sailed northward along the west coast of South America to Peru, visiting Callao, the port of Lima. Nearly a week was spent in Peru. While there Mr. Root and members of his party traveled over the Arroya railroad up the Andes Mountains to a point 15,000 feet above the level of the sea.

It had been the intention of Mr. Root to stop at Guayaquil, the port of Ecuador, but on account of the quarantine in Panama against Guayaquil he went direct on the Charleston to Panama. Mr. Root spent two days on the Isthmus of Panama, and half of this time was spent on the canal route. At Colon Mr. Root, members of his party and Minister John Barrett, who had been ordered to join him at Panama, boarded the cruiser Columbia and sailed direct for Cartagena, one of the most important ports of Colombia.

At the time of Mr. Root's arrival at Cartagena it was stated that he met President Rafael Reyes, who is considered by many the "Diaz of South America." This statement was erroneous. President Reyes was at Bogota, the capital of the country, 700 miles inland, and could not have reached the coast inside of a month. Instead he sent Gen. Vasquez Cobo, the Minister of Foreign Affairs. He met Mr. Root and Minister Barrett in an important conference relative to the development of friendly relations between the United States and Colombia, which country has been estranged ever since the United States backed up the Panama revolutionists and thereby made it impossible for Colombian troops to prevent the secession of Panama.

From Cartagena the Columbia brought Mr. Root, Mr. Barrett and the other members of the party direct to the mouth of the Potomac river.

Proved Switzerland in Error.

The stone in the Washington Monument at the National Capital, contributed by the government of Switzerland, bears this inscription: "This block is from the original chapel built to William Tell in 1338 on Lake Lucerne, Switzerland, at the spot where he escaped from Gessler." Since it was sent to America the Historical Society of Switzerland has demonstrated that no such persons as Tell and Gessler ever existed.

THE FIRST RIDDLE.

The first, recorded riddle was that propounded by Samson to 30 companions who came to the marriage feast of his wife, afterwards burned to death with her father by the Philistines, and for the answer to which he promised to give them 30 sheets and 30 changes of garments. "Out of the eater came forth meat and out of the strong came forth sweetness." For the outcome see Judges xiv, 12-20.

THE NEW HOME OF THE SUN.

The Sun, which had been established at its emergency building, corner of Saratoga and Calvert streets, since the big fire of February, 1904, moved into its new building at the corners of Baltimore, Charles and German streets in time to get out the issue of November 17, 1906. The issue of November 16 was prepared and printed in the old building. As soon as the first edition went to press, the moving began. Heavy machinery was taken down and moved around to the new building, each piece going to the spot marked for it, and there erected. By daylight all the machinery that had to be moved was in its place and by noon the regular preparations for getting out the paper in the new building was taken up as usual. There was not the slightest hitch, and the paper came out on time.

As the old Sun Iron Building at Baltimore and South streets—the first iron building in the world—was a model of its kind in its day, so the new home of The Sun is the best for its purpose that could be devised. As a newspaper building it has no equal in the United States, and probably not in the world. The City Council passed an ordinance on December 12, which was approved by Mayor Timanus, designating the square on Charles street, between Baltimore and German, as Sun Square.

The building, which is of the French Renaissance style of architecture, fronts 52 feet 9 inches on Baltimore street, 201 feet 9 inches on Charles street and 52 feet 7½ inches on German street, with entrances from three sides.

It is 90 feet high on Charles street, with a sloping roof extending above and back of the parapet wall. The height of the different stories are: basement 18 feet, first floor 20 feet, second story 16 feet, third story 17 feet and fourth story 14 feet from floor to ceiling.

The type of the building is known as semi-skeleton construction in which the roof, floors and partition walls are carried on the steel columns and girders, and the outside stone walls carry themselves. The columns consist of steel angles and plates supporting the heavy steel plate girders which extend from east to west walls, thereby making a clear span of 48 feet on all the floors. The amount of structural steel in the building is 1,352,639 pounds, much of which is buried in the ground in the way of steel grillage beams for the footings.

In addition 1,386,050 bricks and 4,902,150 pounds of cut limestone were used in the construction of the building.

The design of the building is simple, dignified and bold. It is distinctively original and particularly adapted to the object for which it is intended. The architectural scheme consists principally of a plain heavy base, which is the first story, surmounted by a massive Ionic colonnade, which in turn is crowned by a bold and dignified entablature and parapet wall. The main colonnade on Charles street is flanked at each end by a pavilion, which is crowned by a clock dial on top, and contains an important entrance in the centre at the bottom.

The plain subbase below the first story window sills is of light gray Maryland granite, all above this being best quality selected Bedford Indiana limestone.

The massive Ionic columns, which form the feature of the building, are 32 feet high and 3 feet 8 inches in diameter, there being twenty-four of these columns in all. Between these columns are handsome plate glass windows in one large metal frame, averaging 12 feet in width and 32 feet in height. At the line of the third floor these frames are covered with an ornamental balustrade of wrought iron.

The principal entrances are on the northeast corner of the building, and each crowned with a bold stone hood supported on ornamental brackets, and the cove around the main opening is enriched with a garland of fruits and flowers. At the crown of the keystone over each opening on the first floor is carved a sunflower about 18 inches in diameter.

The basement, which is 20 feet below the bed of Baltimore street, contains the engine room, the dynamo room, the boiler room, the stereotype room and the press room, the latter being second to none in this country.

The Baltimore street front of the first floor is given up to the counting room, which contains a large circular counter, the offices of the business manager and cashier, the bookkeeping department, public telephones, etc. This room being devoted to the public is the most ornate and spacious in the building, being 48 feet square with a 16-foot gallery extending across the rear and overlooking the main room. The floors are of Vermont white marble, with a border of gray Tennessee marble laid in an original pattern. The walls are wainscoted to the tops of the window sills, and the large circular counter in the centre of the room is constructed entirely of selected Pavanazzo marble, supported on a base of Verde Antique marble. A seven-foot wide stairway of the same marble leads to the wide gallery and to the second floor. In the rear of the counting room are the two other large apartments, one the mailing room, the other the carriers' room, occupying a space 48 feet by 84 feet, and back of these are smaller rooms for the use of the job office, together with the elevator, stairway, toilet rooms, etc.

The mezzanine floor, between the first and second floors, contains large rooms devoted to storage, files, etc.

Upon the second floor facing Baltimore street are the private offices of the president, treasurer and secretary of the A. S. Abell Company. Back of these and separated by a corridor are the rooms for the managing editor and the city editor, and the large reporters' room, 48 feet wide by 82 feet long, off from which are smaller individual offices for the use of the department editors. The large room at the rear of the building on the corner of German and Charles streets, 30 feet by 44 feet, is the library and editorial room. All of these rooms are accessible both by the marble stairway at the front and the iron stairway and elevator in the rear.

The third floor contains one large room nearly the entire length and width of the building, in which is established the composing room. The fourth floor consists of one large room for the job printing department. This is connected with the job office business department in the rear of the first floor, and which, having an entrance on Charles street, is independent of the newspaper end of the business.

The building is fireproof throughout, all the floors and roof being of terra cotta, and the stairways, with the exception of the marble one leading from first to the second floor, are of iron with slate treads.

The building is heated by steam and lighted by electricity, both of which are generated by the plant in the basement.

All of the electric light fixtures throughout the building have been made from the architects' designs, especially those in connection with the counting room, which is lighted by nine handsome cut-glass globes, suspending from the ceiling, and five ornamental torches supported against the pilasters. On each side of the outside of each street entrance to this room is a large massive lamp, made sufficiently bold to harmonize with the bold detail of the exterior, and at the same time to add to the attractiveness of the design of the main entrances. All of these fixtures are of solid statuary bronze.

The plumbing includes all modern conveniences on each and every floor, consisting of white porcelain sanitary ware in rooms lined with marble floors and walls.

Messrs. Baldwin & Pennington, architects of this city, designed and superintended the construction of the building.

Messrs. Edward Brady & Son, of this city, were the general contractors. Others who had a part in building the new home for The Sun were:

American Bridge Company, Pittsburg, steel structural work.

John K. How Company, electrical equipment.

Ruhlmas & Wilson, Indiana limestone. Maryland Granite Company, granite base.

Enterprise Steam and Hot-Water Heating Company, steamfitting.

George W. Walther & Co., plumbing and electric fixtures and furnishings.

Bartlett & Hayward, elevators.

E. Howard & Co., Boston, clocks.

Crocker-Wheeler Company, generators.

Wallace Stebbins & Sons, for Harrisburg Foundry and Machine Works, engines and boilers.

Charles L. Reeder, consulting engineer.

RACE RIOTS IN ATLANTA.

A race riot, surpassing anything of the kind in recent years, broke out in Atlanta, Ga., on Saturday, September 22, having grown out of a number of assaults upon white women by negroes. New assaults on Saturday afternoon precipitated the riots. Negroes were dragged from their work and killed. The mob which swept through the streets stopped trolley cars and attacked the negro passengers within them, and porters in Pullman cars in the railway station were beaten into unconsciousness. Twenty or more negroes are known to have been killed and three white men were slain. The wounded numbered about 100. The Mayor ordered out the fire department, who turned the hose on the crowd, this method of dealing with the situation proving very efficacious. Governor Terrell was not informed of the trouble until it was well under way and he promptly ordered out the militia. Although soldiers were on duty on Sunday, September 23, two negroes were killed. The negroes fled from the city in great numbers, hotels and homes being left without servants. On Monday a pitched battle occurred in South Atlanta, in which two white policemen were killed and four were wounded. Two negroes were lynched in the heart of the city. On September 25 a raid was made on the Brownsville and Clark negro college, in which 257 negroes were arrested and a wagon load of arms captured. Two more negroes were lynched.

The mob spirit waned, a heavy rain helping to quiet the passions of the people. A law-and-order mass-meeting was held, $3,600 was raised for the benefit of the mob victims and a committee appointed for relief work. Resolutions were adopted demanding observance of law and order, and that the city care for the wounded and bury the dead of both races.

This useful table shows at a glance the character of the country in the different sections of the State: the highlands of the western counties; the elevated plateau of central Maryland with its beautiful rolling country and wooded ridges and fertile valleys; the level lands of the Eastern Shore, together with the somewhat higher elevations of southern Maryland on the western side of the bay.

The highest elevation—3,700 feet—is on the Backbone Mountain of Garrett county. Next in order are the altitudes of Allegany and Washington counties; then Frederick and Montgomery. Carroll, Harford, Howard and Baltimore are in a section of rolling country, well elevated, with some localities ranging from 400 to 1,000 feet in altitude. In southern Maryland there are fairly good elevations in Anne Arundel, Prince George's, Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's. In the nine counties of the Eastern Shore there is a gradual falling off in the elevations from Cecil to Worcester.

THERMOMETRIC SCALES.

Taking Fahrenheit's scale the boiling point of water is 212° whereas in the Centigrade scale it is 100°.

The freezing point of water is 32° Fahr. and 0° centigrade.

Consequently 180° plus 32° Fahr. is equal to 100° Centigrade.

So, to convert Fahrenheit to Centigrade, subtract 32, multiply by 5 and divide by 9.

To convert Centigrade to Fahrenheit

multiply by 9, divide by 5 and add 32. This does away with the recurrence of decimals.

Similarly, according to Reaumur's scale, the boiling point of water is 80° and the freezing point 0°.

To convert Fahrenheit to Reaumur subtract 32, multiply by 4, and divide by 9.

To convert Reaumur to Fahrenheit multiply by 9, divide by 4 and add 32.

STATE TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM.

One of the most important pieces of constructive legislation accomplished in Maryland in late years was the law establishing the Tuberculosis Sanatorium, which was enacted at the session of 1906. This law will begin the care of consumptives by the State, and as the disease has been proved curable in its early stages, the good which can and probably will be accomplished is enormous. Under this law Governor Warfield has appointed a commission of which his predecessor, Ex-Gov. John Walter Smith, is a member, whose duties are set forth in the act.

It is directed that this commission shall establish an institution to be known as the Maryland Tuberculosis Sanatorium, accessible by railroad or water transportation. The sum of $115,000 was appropriated by the Legislature for the establishment of the sanatorium and maintaining it during 1907 and 1908. And it is the design that consumptive patients shall be cared for free of charge. In the Blue Ridge Mountains, in the Alleghanies and in other parts of Maryland the climate is especially favorable to the cure of consumption, and not only will cures be effected, but by removing patients from their families the spread of the disease will be diminished.

In addition to this provision an appropriation of $15,000 for the year 1907 was given by the Legislature to the "Hospital for Consumptives of Maryland," an institution already established and doing a good work. Of this sum $10,000 is to be used in the erection of buildings in the mountain regions of the State and $5,000 for maintenance.

For the year 1908 the appropriation is $20,000, $15,000 of which is for buildings and $5,000 for maintenance. Thus it will be seen that the Legislature appropriated in 1906 no less than $150,000 to begin the work of fighting and eradicating the most deadly malady with which people of Maryland are afflicted.

The Governor appoints four members of this board, one annually for four years from the first Monday in May.

The State Lunacy Commission has supervision over all institutions, public, corporate, or private, in which insane persons are detained.

The Secretary of the Commission, or one member thereof, is required at least once every six months to visit all institutions in the State, including ~~and~~ almshouses where the insane are kept.

THERMOMETRIC SCALES.

Taking Fahrenheit's scale the boiling point of water is 212°, whereas in the Centigrade scale it is 100°.

The freezing point of water is 32° Fahr. and 0° centigrade.

Consequently 180° plus 32° Fahr. is equal to 100° Centigrade.

So, to convert Fahrenheit to Centigrade, subtract 32, multiply by 5 and divide by 9.

To convert Centigrade to Fahrenheit

multiply by 9, divide by 5 and add 32. This does away with the recurrence of decimals.

Similarly, according to Reaumur's scale, the boiling point of water is 80° and the freezing point 0°.

To convert Fahrenheit to Reaumur subtract 32, multiply by 4, and divide by 9.

To convert Reaumur to Fahrenheit multiply by 9, divide by 4 and add 32.

STATE TUBERCULOSIS SANATORIUM.

One of the most important pieces of constructive legislation accomplished in Maryland in late years was the law establishing the Tuberculosis Sanatorium, which was enacted at the session of 1906. This law will begin the care of consumptives by the State, and as the disease has been proved curable in its early stages, the good which can and probably will be accomplished is enormous. Under this law Governor Warfield has appointed a commission of which his predecessor, Ex-Gov. John Walter Smith, is a member, whose duties are set forth in the act.

It is directed that this commission shall establish an institution to be known as the Maryland Tuberculosis Sanatorium, accessible by railroad or water transportation. The sum of $115,000 was appropriated by the Legislature for the establishment of the sanatorium and maintaining it during 1907 and 1908. And it is the design that consumptive patients shall be cared for free of charge. In the Blue Ridge Mountains, in the Alleghanies and in other parts of Maryland the climate is especially favorable to the cure of consumption, and not only will cures be effected, but by removing patients from their families the spread of the disease will be diminished.

In addition to this provision an appropriation of $15,000 for the year 1907 was given by the Legislature to the "Hospital for Consumptives of Maryland," an institution already established and doing a good work. Of this sum $10,000 is to be used in the erection of buildings in the mountain regions of the State and $5,000 for maintenance.

For the year 1908 the appropriation is $20,000, $15,000 of which is for buildings and $5,000 for maintenance. Thus it will be seen that the Legislature appropriated in 1906 no less than $150,000 to begin the work of fighting and eradicating the most deadly malady with which people of Maryland are afflicted.

The Governor appoints four members of this board, one annually for four years from the first Monday in May.

The State Lunacy Commission has supervision over all institutions, public, corporate, or private, in which insane persons are detained.

The Secretary of the Commission, or one member thereof, is required at least once every six months to visit all institutions in the State, including jails and almshouses where the insane are kept. The Commission makes an annual report to the Governor in the month of December. The total number of the insane in Maryland, November 30, 1903, was 2,896.

McDONOGH SCHOOL.

McDonogh, Baltimore County, Western Maryland Railroad.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES.

President—German H. Hunt.

Vice-President and Secretary—Robert H. Smith.

Treasurer—Robert K. Waring.

Julian LeRoy White.

R. Brent Keyser.

E. Stanley Gary.

Dr. J. M. T. Finney.

Principal of the School—S. T. Moreland.

The qualifications of candidates for admission into this free school for boys, founded by John McDonogh, born in Baltimore, December 29, 1779, and died in New Orleans, October 26, 1850, are as follows:

1. They must be poor boys, of good character, of respectable associations in life, residents of the City of Baltimore.

2. They must be sound and healthy in mind and body.

3. They must be between 10 and 14 years of age.

4. They must pass a competitive examination.

Applications for admission should be made to German H. Hunt, President of the Board of Trustees, or to Robert H. Smith, Vice-President, 624 Equitable Building, at any time of the year. Applications, however, are so numerous that admission is determined by competitive examinations held early in June at some convenient place in Baltimore, of which candidates are notified. The examinations are in simple arithmetic, reading, writing and elementary geography. The regular term at the school ends when the boy is 16 years of age, but the earning of a scholarship may enable him to continue there one year longer.

The property of the foundation consists of 835 acres of land in a beautiful and healthy region, 12 miles northwest of Baltimore City, with commodious buildings; an endowment fund of $725,600 from John McDonogh invested in Baltimore City bonds; bequest of Dr. Zenus Barnum of $80,000 to promote mechanical instruction and manual training; bequest of Samuel H. Tagart of $175,000.

Chief Justices.

The list of Chief Justices of the Court of Appeals of Maryland since the date of its organization, in 1778, is as follows:

Benjamin Rumsey.....	1778—1806	John Carroll Le Grand.....	1851—1861
Jeremiah Townley Chase...	1806—1824	Richard Johns Bowie.....	1861—1867

The Court of Appeals as at first organized, in 1778, was composed of five judges, who did no circuit duty. In 1806 it was reorganized upon the plan which now prevails. This system was changed to an independent court in 1851, but it was found to be unsatisfactory, and the old method of the judges doing circuit duty was resumed in 1867.

The State Geological and Economic survey is established for the purpose of examining the geological formations and mineral resources of the State of Maryland with special reference to their economic products and for the preparation of reports and maps illustrating the character and distribution of the same. The Survey maintains a Highway Division, under special Acts of the General Assembly. It likewise carries on work in hydrography, forestry, terrestrial magnetism, and the mapping of the agricultural soils in co-operation with the National Government. One of the most interesting features of its work is the preparation and publication by counties of a topographic map of the State on the scale of 1 mile to 1 inch. The greatest work that it has in hand is the construction of macadamized county roads under a State Aid Highway Law passed by the General Assembly in 1904.

SUGGESTIONS TO FARMERS.

Prepared for THE SUN ALMANAC by members of the Maryland Experiment Station staff.

Diseases of Crops.

The most important communicable diseases of cultivated plants in Maryland are: Apple—scab, bitter-rot, black-rot and canker, blight, leaf-spot, rust. Pear—blight, leaf-spot, scab. Quince—black-rot, leaf-spot, blight. Cherry—black-knot, brown-rot, leaf-spot. Peach—brown-rot, leaf-curl, scab, yellows. Plum—black-knot, brown-rot.

Blackberry and raspberry—anthracnose, rust, crown-gall. Currant and gooseberry—leaf-spot, mildew. Grape—black-rot, downy mildew. Strawberry—leaf-spot.

Asparagus—rust. Bean—anthracnose, bacteriosis, downy mildew. Cabbage—black-rot, club-root, wilt. Cantaloupe—leaf-blight, wilt. Celery—leaf-blight. Cucumber—anthracnose, wilt, downy mildew. Potato—brown-rot, dry-rot, early blight, scab. Sweet potato—black-rot. Tomato—blight, fruit-rot, leaf-spot. Watermelon—anthracnose. Corn—leaf-blight, smut. Oats and wheat—rust, smut, scab. Alfalfa—leaf-spot. Clover—anthracnose, leaf-spot, rust.

Carnation—stem-rot, leaf-spot, rust. Chrysanthemum—rust, leaf-spot. Rose—powdery mildew, black-spot.

Most of these are caused by very minute parasites (fungi or bacteria) which grow in the diseased tissue. Their development can often be prevented and a great deal of loss saved by the application of certain chemicals (usually in the form of sprays). Different diseases require quite different treatment and full discussion cannot be given here, but instructions regarding treatment of any particular disease can be obtained from the State Experiment Station or the United States Department of Agriculture.

The following are formulas for some of the principal fungicides now in use.

Bordeaux Mixture—For most leaf and fruit diseases, to kill spores that may be on the outside of the plants, 5 pounds of copper sulphate dissolved in 25 gallons of water, 5 pounds fresh stone lime slacked in 25 gallons of water. When cool pour both at same time through strainer into sprayer and use while fresh, keeping well stirred. Paris green can be added to kill insects. Do not use iron vessels.

For peach, some plums, and other things liable to injury by strong Bordeaux mixture, use 3 pounds of copper sulphate to 9 pounds of lime, to 50 gallons of water.

Ammoniacal copper carbonate is used to spray fruit or foliage where discoloration of Bordeaux mixture is undesirable, but is not so effective as the latter.

Dissolve 5 ounces copper carbonate in 2 to 3 pints of ammonia diluted with 2 gallons of water. (Use only enough ammonia to dissolve carbonate) and add water to make 50 gallons.

Dibasic copper acetate can be used, 6 ounces to 50 gallons of water without the ammonia.

Sulphur dusted on plants affected with mildew or many other diseases, e. g. asparagus rust, is an effective fungicide. Burning sulphur is destructive to vegetable life.

Corrosive sublimate, 1 part to 1,000 parts of water, is one of the best disinfectants. It is used 2 ounces to 15 gallons of water for potato scab. (Soak seed potatoes in this 2 hours before cutting); use wooden vessels.

Formalin, 1 pint to 30 gallons of water, is used for same purpose.

Potassium sulphide, 1 ounce to 4 gallons of water, is used for gooseberry mildew.

Whenever practicable, all diseased material should be burned to prevent further infection. Such sanitary measures are especially necessary with peach yellows, pear blight, black-knot of plum and cherry, and is very desirable in case of various rots, as brown-rot of peach and plum, black-rot of sweet potato, bitter-rot of apple.

Some Important Insecticides.

The fundamental facts of insect control are: First, to be able to distinguish the manner in which the pest does its injury; second, to be thoroughly familiar with its life history; and third, to apply the proper remedies, if such are known, in a thorough manner. In general, one of three methods are employed in combating all common pests. First, the application of an arsenite or stomach poison for those insects who do their injury by eating the foliage and other parts of plants; second, treating with a contact insecticide those insects that suck the juices of plants, and thirdly, the employment of either mechanical means or culture methods for those insects that cannot be attacked in a practical manner by the preceding methods.

ARSENITES.

This class of poisons are usually applied in the form of a spray or dusted on the plants. When adding a dry arsenite to water for spraying, first mix it in a small quantity of water, so as to form a paste; then dilute to proper strength. When used dry, the arsenite is usually mixed with land plaster or flour, and is applied with a bellows, perforated sack, or powder gun.

PARIS GREEN.

Paris green.....1 pound.
Lump lime (freshly slacked).....2 pounds.
Water150 gallons.

This well-known arsenite is commonly used in combating biting insects. On very sensitive foliage, like that of peach, apricot, etc., it might be safer to use 200 gallons of water to a pound of poison. Applied dry, the poison should be diluted to twenty times its own weight of flour or plaster.

It is often combined with Bordeaux mixture, a fungicide, with same proportions as above, substituting Bordeaux mixture for the water.

ARSENATE OF LEAD.

Arsenate of lead.....2 to 4 pounds.
Water50 gallons.

This arsenite is used by many in preference to Paris green, for it is the least caustic in its effect upon foliage, remains in suspension, and adheres to foliage for a longer period. To prepare arsenate of lead, dissolve in water three pounds of arsenate of soda, and seven pounds of acetate of lead (white sugar of lead).

Contact Insecticides.

SOAP.

The ordinary soft soaps and laundry soaps have long been used for killing insects with soft bodies like plant lice. There are a great many makes of soap, and most all have some insecticidal value.

WHALE OIL SOAP.

This is a well-known brand of soap, and is very effective when applied properly. For treating plant lice or similar insects, when plants are in foliage, one pound of soap to six or eight gallons of water will suffice. For scale insects, like the San Jose scale, it should be used as strong as a pound and a half to two pounds to one gallon of water. The stronger applications can only be used in the winter or early spring, when the trees are dormant.

KEROSENE EMULSION.

This no doubt is the best general purpose contact insecticide. It is easy to prepare, and the materials composing it are always at hand. The emulsion can be made using the ingredients in the following proportions:

Kerosene2 gallons.
Common soap $\frac{1}{2}$ pound.
Water1 gallon.

Dissolve the soap in hot water, add the kerosene, and emulsify by violent churning. Dilute to the strength required. If Ta-Ka-Nap soap is used, it

A mixture called Disparene is practically the same as arsenate of lead, and is said to be somewhat more adhesive than the regular arsenate. Double the strength stated above can be used if desired, without danger of injuring the foliage.

SCHEEL'S GREEN (GREEN ARSENOID).

Scheele's green (green arsenoid) 1 pound.
Lump lime (freshly slacked).....2 pounds.
Water150 gallons.

This arsenite is very similar to Paris green, and has an advantage over it, in that it remains in suspension in water for a much longer time. It is also cheaper in price.

LONDON PURPLE.

London purple.....1 pound.
Lump lime (freshly slacked).....2 pounds.
Water150 gallons.

This poison is finely divided, and remains in suspension in water longer than Paris green, and it usually sells at almost two-thirds the price of that poison. It seems to be going into disfavor because of its variable composition, and the danger of its burning foliage. It is also considered somewhat less effectual in killing insects than is Paris green or Scheele's green.

is not necessary to add hot water. Twelve to 15 per cent. emulsion is strong enough for killing plant lice and the like.

LIME SULPHUR WASH.

This wash seems to be the most satisfactory solution for the control of the San Jose scale. It should be applied either in the fall or early spring, while the trees are dormant.

Fresh stone lime.....20 pounds.
Flowers or flour sulphur....15 pounds.
Water50 gallons.

Boil 20 gallons of water in an iron pot or hog scald; now add the 20 pounds of lime and 15 pounds of sulphur, which should have been previously mixed with a little hot water to form a paste. Boil the mixture, stirring occasionally, from 30 minutes to one hour, or until the sulphur is thoroughly dissolved, and produces a clear, amber-colored solution. Then dilute by adding sufficient hot or cold water to make 50 gallons. Strain into the spray barrel, and apply warm.

TOBACCO.

Old tobacco stems are often steeped in hot water, a pound of the stems to a gallon or two of water. It is used as a spray or dip against plant lice. Also burning old tobacco stems in a greenhouse is helpful in destroying insect pests.

HYDROCYANIC ACID GAS.

This gas has come into use of late years as an important insecticide. Its use in fumigating nursery trees to protect against the San Jose scale has become quite general. It is made by combining the following:

Cyanide of potassium, 98%...1 ounce.
Sulphuric acid (commercial)...2 ounces.
Water4 ounces.

This formula will fumigate an enclosure containing 100 cubic feet. Place acid in an earthen jar, then add water and cyanide. Be sure to have the room or enclosure air-tight, or nearly so. Keep everything closed for at least 30 minutes, or longer. It is a very deadly gas, and much care should be exercised with its use.

BI-SULPHIDE OF CARBON.

This liquid is used in destroying stored grain insects and the like. The liquid evaporates very rapidly, the gas being very deadly to animal life, when confined in it for any length of time. In fumigating grain, or other similar material, use two or three pounds of the liquid to 100 bushels of grain. Place the liquid in shallow pans above the material to be fumigated. Have the enclosure air-tight, or nearly so, and fumigate from 12 to 24 hours. The gas is exceedingly explosive, therefore do not allow any light, cigar or pipe in the building when fumigating.

FERTILIZER FORMULAE.

A good mixture for fall seed grains and grasses and truck crops:

	Pounds.
Dissolved phosphate rock.....	1200
Tankage (10%).....	400
Nitrate of soda.....	200
Muriate of potash.....	200
Total.....	2000

This mixture would analyze approximately as follows:

Phosphoric acid.....	9 to 10%
Nitrogen.....	3%
Potash.....	5%

A phosphate and potash mixture:

	Pounds.
Dissolved phosphate rock.....	1800
Muriate of potash.....	200
Total.....	2000

Contains approximately 12% available phosphoric acid and 5% potash.

For top-dressing grass and hay fields and wheat that look weak and backward in the spring, also good for spring top-dressing of strawberries. Apply per acre as soon as active growth in the spring commences:

	Pounds.
Dissolved phosphate rock.....	200
Nitrate of soda.....	100
Total.....	300

For top-dressing lawns:

Use 1000 lbs. per acre of dried fish or good bone tankage, applied in November or December. This gives better results than stable manure and will not introduce objectionable weed seeds.

OYSTER CULTURE LAW IN FORCE.

Following the passage of the Haman Oyster Culture Law by the Legislature of 1906 the Board of Public Works, in which was vested the appointing power, created the Maryland Shell Fish Commission on May 7th by the appointment of the following gentlemen:

Mr. Walter J. Mitchell (Dem.) of La Plata, Charles County, representing the tidewater counties of the Western Shore, was designated chairman; Mr. Benjamin K. Green (Dem.) of Westover, Somerset County, representing the tidewater counties of the Eastern Shore; Dr. Caswell Grave (Rep.), representing the City of Baltimore. The Board completed its organization by the election of Mr. Green treasurer and Dr. Grave secretary.

On May 17th, the Commission selected Mr. Swepson Earle, of Centerville, Queen Anne's County, Md., formerly connected with the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and at that time employed in the Bureau of the Lighthouse Board as chief hydrographic engineer of its surveying corps.

Before beginning the actual survey of the natural oyster beds and bars, Dr. Grave and Mr. Earle visited the oyster producing sections of Connecticut, to inspect the workings of the oyster laws of that State.

In compliance with an Act of Congress, approved May 26, 1906, the Secretary of Commerce and Labor designated Capt. C. C. Yates, from the Coast and Geodetic Survey, and Dr. H. F. Moore, from the Bureau of Fisheries, to co-operate with the Maryland Shell Fish Commission in making surveys of the natural oyster beds. Until the arrival of Captain Yates and his assistants on August 10, the engineers of the Shell Fish Commission took up the work of erecting and cutting in such shore signals as were necessary for the first survey work.

The actual survey of the oyster bottoms was started in Anne Arundel County on July 19, 1906, by Mr. Earle and his corps, and the same day Dr. Grave began a systematic examination of the oyster bars.

The first hydrographic work was carried on in the waters of the Severn river. It was thence carried to Holland Point, the southerly limit of Anne Arundel County, and thence northward to the boundary line of Baltimore County. The work, after leaving the immediate neighborhood of Annapolis, was conducted from the houseboat "Oyster," purchased and fitted up as living quarters for the commission, engineers and crew.

On December 10, the survey of Anne Arundel County waters having been completed, field work was discontinued for the winter.

The following tabulated statement of the work of the season shows results which, to those who are familiar with hydrographic work, are gratifying:

Number of miles of sounding lines run.....	387
Number of angles observed.....	9,352
Number of positions taken.....	4,676
Number of soundings taken.....	37,049
Number of oyster bars surveyed (varying in size from 1/2 to over 3,000 acres).....	118

Total area surveyed during the season, not including the, "lumps," is 22,573 acres.

The "lumps" include about 9,000 acres of muddy bottoms to the eastward of Craighill channel, northerly of Magothy river, and Seven-Foot Knoll Lighthouse, over which patches of oysters of various sizes are irregularly distributed. It is a liberal estimate to state that one-tenth of the area is oyster producing.

In making the survey of each oyster bar it is necessary to carry the lines of soundings beyond the bar limits; the above figures therefore include the entire area surveyed. The exact area of the natural bars cannot be determined until after they are plotted on the Coast Survey finished sheets.

Dividing the total area surveyed during the season of 1906 (July 19-December 10) by 74, the number of days in which hydrography was carried on, 426 49-74 acres is found the average area surveyed per day.

The winter was devoted to completing the records of the field work. This consists of plotting the outlines of the natural bars on the Coast Survey published sheets, which will form the final record of the work. The buoying of the outlines of the beds surveyed, in the waters of Anne Arundel County, in preparation of the opening of that county for leasing, was also carried on satisfactorily.

There were received, up to the close of the year, more than 800 applications for the retention of lots held under the old leasing laws. Practically every section of the tidewater localities were represented in these applications. This office work and the actual leasing of lands will, through the provisions of the new law, increase as the various counties are surveyed and their barren areas thrown open.

Field work will be resumed about the first of April, for the season of 1907, and will be begun in the waters of Somerset County. With the progress made during the initial year of the work, the indications are that even greater results will be accomplished next year.

CLOSED SEASON FOR GAME—TABLE OF THE NON-SHOOTING PERIODS IN MARYLAND.

The following table shows the close seasons for game in detail in Maryland. The close seasons of Maryland have been compiled by the State Game Warden, Mr. Oregon Milton Dennis, in conjunction with Dr. T. S. Palmer, assistant in charge of game protection of the United States Biological Survey. The two experts have gone over the complex laws of Maryland which came to the State after the session of the General Assembly of 1906. Special attention is called to the restrictions on shipment under the Federal and State laws:

by reversing the dates. If the close season is December 1-September 1, the open season will be September 1-December 1.

Penalty, fine not exceeding $200. Carrier and consignee may also be liable.

The Federal law also prohibits shipment of game from the State at any time in packages not marked so that name and address of shipper and nature of contents may be readily ascertained by inspection of the outside of the package. Penalty, fine not exceeding $200. Carrier and consignee may also be liable.

The State law prohibits shipment under certain conditions, as show in each case below the close season table. Details in regard to shipment, sale and licenses are contained in farmers' bulletin No. 265, Game laws for 1906.

ROWING.

Yale vs. Harvard—University Eights.

Yale and Harvard eights have rowed forty races, beginning in 1852 on Lake Winnipiseogee at two miles. In 1855 the course was changed to Springfield and lengthened to three miles. Lake Quinsigamond was the scene for nine years, and Lake Saltonstall for 1869. After an interval of seven years the crews in 1876-77 went to Springfield, Mass., when the four-mile course was inaugurated. In 1878 the crews changed again to New London, Conn. No races were held in 1896 and 1898. In 1897 the two crews were beaten at Poughkeepsie by Cornell. The records of all races, with times of winners and losers, are as follows:

HARNESS RACING.

World's records established in 1906 were Dan Patch's paced mile in 1.55, Manager H.'s yearling mile of 2.20 (pace) and Ed. Bryan's two and three miles trotting records to wagon. At two miles the previous record was held by General Butler and Dexter, made in 1863 and 1865, and the three miles record by Prince, made in 1857.

During the season Dan Patch paced ten miles in 19 minutes 54 1/2 seconds, or an average of a mile every minute and 59 45-100 seconds. The full list of miles, the month in which they were made, the track, time and manner of rig drawn by Dan Patch during the season follow:

Month.	Track.	Time.	Rig.
August	Galesburg	1.57 1/4	Sulky.

BICYCLE RECORDS.

In America all the record breaking has been done at Salt Lake City, and the major portion of it by Iver Lawson. Four new professional handicap records have been set up, the four mile in 53 4-5 seconds by A. J. Clarke, and the three-quarter mile (54.9) by Lawson.

In professional competition, unpaced, the one-half, three-quarter and two miles were broken in the handicap events mentioned above, and in a three-mile open race Lawson reduced the time to 5.33 3-5.

The five-mile record was also broken by Ernest A. Pye, in 9.48 1-5. In a quarter-mile unpaced trial against time Lawson lowered the figure to 23 4-5 seconds.

Three amateur records were broken at Salt Lake City by Jack Hume. He rode a three-quarter mile, one-mile and five-mile handicap in 1.25 3-5, 1.55 3-5 and 10.36, respectively.

The five-mile unpaced ride of Charles Shlee, at Yalishburg, on August 3, in 10.48 2-5, and the six-mile unpaced ride of W. M. Samuelson, at Salt Lake City, on August 3, in 12.30 2-5, while they cannot be classed as records, because there is no provision in the official book for pursuit records, were notable performances.

THE OLYMPIC GAMES AT ATHENS IN 1906.

American athletes won great glory in the Olympic games at Athens in April and May, 1906, and if it had not been for a sea that came aboard their liner on the way over and put several crack men of the team out of commission they would have won more. As it was the Americans won the international championship, having 75 points to 28 for Sweden, the second nation in point of winners. The Greeks pinned their faith on the Marathon race, willing to meet defeat cheerfully in all else if only this classic trophy might stay with them.

Two hundred thousand Greeks lined the course that billowed over the Attic hills for twenty-six miles. Long before the finish of the heart-breaking course, the six strongest native heroes had been picked up exhausted by the relief wagons, while far ahead of the panting, sweating throng of contestants trotted a little Canadian, Sherring, with the race so well in hand that he walked up the hills as he neared Athens. When he loped into the vast marble Stadium, seventy thousand Greeks felt as if the honor of their land had been trampled on.

This young Canadian, who ran twenty-six miles in less than three hours over the most punishing course in the world, and won the most spectacular of modern athletic fixtures against the picked men of a dozen nations, is five and a half feet high, and weighed one hundred and twelve pounds the day he ran from Marathon to Athens. He trained at home.

The Americans were not interested in rowing, shooting, gymnastics, javelin-throwing, and tennis. They were the picked runners, jumpers, and weight-tossers of a nation, and they went in for the events for which they had been trained with a scientific thoroughness unknown in England or on the Continent.

Of all the races won in this meeting, that which most thrilled the American onlookers was the four-hundred-metre run. The American champion, Harry Hillman, had been disabled, and could do no more than make a plucky start, and drop out half-way down the course. Against him were Captain Haswell, British champion, and Nigel Barker, the fastest runner in Australia. The race seemed to be between these two, when there forged to the front a young American, Paul Pilgrim, who had been taken on the team only a day before sailing. He had made no sensational records at home, and was looked at as a "second string." But when the honor of America was suddenly dumped on his shoulders, he met the crisis and ran faster than he knew, wearing down his rivals in the last hundred yards, and snatching unlooked-for laurels for his team. Then Pilgrim showed that he had blossomed into championship form by winning the eight-hundred-metre race from his team-mate, Lightbody, who is rated the faster man at home.

In the discus-hurling, the American and the classic styles clashed. Martin Sheridan, who has tossed this missile farther than any other living man, was rebuked by the Greek experts because he did not assume the classically statuesque pose.

The American was ruled out of the event and put in a class by himself, known as the "free style," which he won with ease. It was a gigantic Finnlander, and not a Greek at all, who won the discus-throwing in the classic style.

The results of the games were as follows:

BOWLING.

During the last year bowling has developed wonderfully in Baltimore and abroad and the results show that the players have become more scientific. During the year the best scores made were as follows:

Tenpins.

High Team Score—Brooklyns (Eastern League), 1,069.

High Team Average—Brooklyns (Eastern League), 995.

High Individual Score—Mr. Marshall, Frisby's (Dey's League), 288.

High Individual Average—Mr. Brauer, James Bailly & Son (Drug League), 249.

Duckpins.

High Team Score—Broadways (Monumental League), 594.

High Team Average—Pilgrims (Maryland State League), 546 1-3.

High Individual Score—Mr. Coonan, Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company (Monumental League), 160.

High Individual Average—Mr. Kadden, Pilgrims (Maryland State League), 131.

All of the above scores and averages are State records, except the high team score at tenpins and the high team average at duckpins. The State record for high team score at tenpins is 1,075, made by the Phoenix team of the old Maryland State League on the Diamond alleys against the Maryland team, November 30, 1903.

The high team average at duckpins is 552 2-3, bowled on the Monumental alleys by the Monumental team, December 11, 1905. All of the above scores and records were made in regular contest games.

William Sweiger made at tenpins on the Monarch alleys, in the tournament now being run there, on Wednesday, December 19, 1906, the third perfect score of 300. John Kreh and Scotty Leutbecker bowled the other two. Kreh made his on the German Cafe alleys on May 29, 1901, and Leutbecker his on the Diamond alleys, November 24, 1905.

John Kreh also made the score of 183 at duckpins on the Criterion alleys on Friday, December 14, 1906. This is the highest individual score at this game made on the local alleys outside of regular league contests.

The best bowling at tenpins was that of Voorheis, of the Brooklyns, Eastern League. In 13 out of 14 games in a contest against the Baltimore team he bowled 13 scores of 200 and over. His high score was 277. Nelson, of the same team, in the same contest, bowled 275. Another good score was that of Frank Myers, 299, made on December 4, 1906, at tenpins, on the Monarch alleys.

Charles C. Bradley, on December 4, 1906, at duckpins, averaged 149 2-3 in three consecutive games on the Criterion alleys. His scores were 174, 139 and 136.

WEST VIRGINIA LEGISLATURE, 1907.

Following is a list of the members of the West Virginia Legislature, which will assemble at the Capitol, in Charleston, on the second Wednesday (the 9th day) of January, 1907, with the politics and postoffice addresses indicated.

There are 30 Senators and 86 Delegates, a total of 116 in both Houses. In the following list, the first named Senator in each district is the newly-elected member, and holds his office for four years; the second named is the hold-over Senator. In the Eighth district, however, there was this year an election for two Senators, one to fill the vacancy made by the death of Senator Browning. To this position Mr. Leftwich was elected; but there is a doubt as to whether Mr. Colcord or Mr. Littlepage was elected for the long term, and recounts of votes are being made to ascertain the result.

MEMORABLE VOYAGE OF THE DRYDOCK DEWEY.

The floating steel drydock Dewey, built by the Maryland Steel Company, which left Solomons Island in the Chesapeake on December 28, 1905, after severe tests, was towed to the Philippines, arriving at Olongapo on July 10, 1906. Her safe arrival at the destination marked the close of one of the most remarkable mechanical and marine engineering triumphs of the world's history. This mass of steel, weighing 11,000 gross tons, designed and constructed by Maryland enterprise, after a tempestuous and heretofore unheard-of voyage of 12,000 miles, arrived at the new naval base in the Philippine Islands in almost perfect condition, without the necessity of having to make any but such minor repairs as any sea voyage would call for.

The trip occupied just 193 days. The drydock was conveyed by the collers Brutus, Caesar, Glacier and the navy tug Potomac. The expedition being in charge of Commander H. H. Hosley, of the Bureau of Navigation. The difficulties in the way of this undertaking were deplored as impracticable by many naval officers.

The towing feat was the greatest ever attempted in transoceanic navigation. The towing by collers was sharply criticised by many authorities, several contending that two battleships should have been sent.

The Dewey is 500 feet long and 130 feet wide. She is made up of three pontoons joined by two side walls. The center pontoon is 320 feet in length and has 24 water-tight compartments. Each end pontoon is 90 feet long, with 18 water-tight compartments. The depth of the pontoons is 13½ feet, and the draft of the dock with a battleship afloat inside is 35 feet. Her extreme depth, submerged, with a battleship, is 62 feet.

The time made on the trip is shown in the following table:

Started from Solomons Is.	Dec. 28, 1905
Passed Cape Henry	Dec. 29, 1905
Arrived off Bermudas	Jan. 5, 1906
Off the Canary Islands	Feb. 20, 1906
Reached Las Palmas	Feb. 23, 1906
Sailed from Las Palmas	March 9, 1906
Sighted off Gibraltar	March 25, 1906
Passed Malta	April 4, 1906
Arrived Port Said	April 13, 1906
Entered Suez Canal	April 27, 1906
Sailed from Suez	May 3, 1906
Passed Colombo	June 5, 1906
Arrived off Sumatra	June 15, 1906
In Straits of Malacca	June 20, 1906
Arrived at Singapore	June 21, 1906
Left Singapore	June 28, 1906
Arrived at Olongapo	July 10, 1906

At the time the dock was contracted for it was intended to use it at Manila, later at Cavite, but Olongapo was finally determined upon as the best place to establish a naval station.

SEA STRENGTH OF THE PRINCIPAL NAVAL POWERS.

The Bureau of Naval Intelligence of the Navy Department on November 1, 1906, issued a table showing the sea strength of the principal naval powers of the world, their relative order of warship tonnage at present and as would be the case were vessels building now completed. All of these tables place the United States third in rank as a naval power of the world, and it is now generally conceded that both as regards general fighting efficiency and numerical strength this country ranks next after Great Britain and France as a naval power. The table published by the Bureau of Naval Intelligence follows:

* Battleships, first class, are those of (about) 10,000 or more tons displacement.

† Includes smaller battleships and monitors.

‡ All unarmored warships of more than 1,000 tons are, in this table, classed according to displacement as cruisers. Scouts are considered as cruisers in which battery and protection have been sacrificed to secure extreme speed. The word "protected" has been omitted because all cruisers except the smallest and oldest now have protective decks.

METHODIST PROTESTANT CHURCH.

The General Council of the Congregational, United Brethren and Methodist Protestant denominations met in Dayton, Ohio, February 7, 1906, to determine what the relations of these three churches should be. The Council began its proceedings by adopting a paper presented by Rev. Dr. T. H. Lewis, of Maryland, declaring it to be the "first and chief business" of the body to "provide for the organic union" of the three denominations represented in the Council, and expressing the belief that "such a result is practicable."

General outlines were adopted by the Council on the three great divisions agreed upon, viz., "Doctrine," "Polity" and "Vested Interests," and sub-committees named to work out the details during the eighteen months until the next meeting of the Council.

Should the work of these sub-committees be adopted by the whole body of delegates composing the Council at its next meeting, then the completed plan of union will be submitted to the general bodies of the three churches and be by them referred to the Annual Conferences or Associations, and ultimately to the local churches for final ratification. Hence some years must elapse before a final decision is reached on the important subject.

The General Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church will meet the third Friday in May, 1908, the place of meeting to be determined by the President of the General Conference in connection with the Board of Publication of the denomination.

CHURCH AND STATE IN FRANCE.

By a concordat, or agreement, negotiated in 1801 by Napoleon, as First Consul, with Pius VII, the Roman Catholic Church, which had been disestablished during the Revolution, with loss of property, was re-established in France. Under this agreement the Consul nominated and the Pope appointed Bishops, who were required to swear allegiance to the Republic. Provision was made for the free exercise of Catholic worship, the salaries of its ministers, etc. The Pope reserved to himself the canonical institutions, but renounced claims to ecclesiastical property confiscated under the first Republic. In 1901, owing to the alleged activity of members of religious orders in the nationalist agitation, a law was passed requiring religious associations to be registered and authorized by the State, and dissolving such as were deemed detrimental to the Republic. There were in that year about 1,663 religious associations, having 19,514 establishments and 159,628 members. In 1904 disturbances in connection with the enforcement of the law against religious associations, together with other incidents, were made the ground of a demand for the separation of Church and State—the abolition of the concordat. This was effected by a law of December, 1905, which, severing the connection of Church and State, authorized adherents of all creeds to form "associations for public worship," to take over church buildings, after the making of an inventory of their contents. By this law of separation the State was relieved from the payment of the salaries of clergymen. In the last year of the old regime, Catholic ecclesiastics were receiving grants to the amount of $9,014,000. The number of Catholic ecclesiastics entitled to temporary pensions under the new law was estimated at 38,093; of Protestants, at 686; of Jews, at 54. The Vatican's refusal to acquiesce in the Government's arrangements for public worship led, in 1906, to the enactment of further drastic laws, widening the breach between the French government and the Vatican.

SAN FRANCISCO EARTHQUAKE AND FIRE.

On Wednesday, April 18, 1906, at 5.15 A. M., San Francisco was subjected to a series of earthquake shocks which were more violent than any in the experience of the United States since those that ruined Charleston, S. C. As a result of these shocks and of the fire that followed 452 persons lost their lives, according to a report made by the San Francisco board of health on August 31. Of the victims 266 were killed by falling walls, 177 perished by fire, 7 were shot and 2 died as the result of ptomaine poisoning due to eating "emergency" canned goods of poor quality; a total of 420 are believed to have been white, 18 Chinese and 4 Japanese; 11 were less than a year old.

These figures relate to deaths proved in San Francisco. In other places in California where the shocks were felt numerous other deaths occurred and it is estimated that fully 150 more lives were lost. In Santa Rosa 40 persons were killed and in San Jose 19. The property loss was tremendous.

The special committee of the Board of Trustees of the Chamber of Commerce which investigated the subject of insurance settlements reported in December that the losses footed up about $350,000,000, or nearly twice the amount of the losses at Chicago. Of this the insurance covered about $235,000,000. The final payments by insurance companies will reach 80 per cent. of the face of the policies, against 50 per cent. in Chicago and 90 per cent. in Baltimore. That makes $188,000,000 poured into San Francisco by the companies. The committee finds that the burned district covered about three thousand acres, or 4.7 square miles—a little over one-tenth of the total area of the city, but the greater part of its built-up portion. It included 520 blocks, with 25,000 buildings, of which half were residences.

According to the general testimony each earthquake shock of the series lasted less than a minute, the most severe being approximately 40 seconds in length. During that brief interval, however, the buildings were shaken so violently that it was impossible to stand upright on the floors of residences. Heavy articles of furniture were overthrown and enormous buildings ruined.

The disturbance seems to have followed a geological "fault," which is very marked in the vicinity of San Francisco, but was most violent on alluvial or made land. In San Francisco the buildings on the higher ground were comparatively little injured, while those on the lower levels were often completely destroyed. It was in the poor lodging houses on the lower levels that the most serious losses of life occurred. The influence of the geological formation is also to be seen in the comparative fates of Leland Stanford, Jr. University at Palo Alto and the University of California at Berkeley. Although only a few miles apart the former is upon alluvial formation and suffered the loss of some of its noblest buildings, including the chapel and the Memorial Arch. Probably the same explanation is to be found for the relative violence of the earthquake in Oakland and the lower portions of San Francisco. This area of greatest disturbance was approximately 150 miles long and 10 miles broad. In at least one locality it has been observed that the earthquake was due to the slipping of one stratum over another along the line of fault.

While the city was still feeling the tremors of the earth, fires broke out simultaneously in a score or more of places in the affected region doubtless because of the crossing of electric wires and other disturbances in the electric system. It has been asserted that Oakland across the bay might have been subject to the same misfortune had not some one with presence of mind cut off the current from the central powerhouse. The outbreak of fire would have been bad enough in itself, but the situation was rendered hopeless through the destruction by the earthquake of the water system. San Francisco's fire department has been counted on by insurance companies to offset the dangers arising from narrow streets and crowded wooden buildings. With the water supply cut off, however, the firemen could do nothing, and their difficulties were further increased by the fact that the fire chief was killed by the collapse of a wall. There was nothing left to do except to fight the fire by dynamiting buildings, and throughout Thursday herculean efforts were made by dynamite and gunpowder to limit the area of conflagration. It was all in vain. The fire broke completely from control and burned steadily for approximately three days. By a sort of miracle the Ferry House, the one means of communication and escape, was not destroyed, but beyond that there was little left of the entire city of San Francisco by April 22, except the ruins of homes, business blocks and public buildings.

Compared with other great fires in the United States this at San Francisco was almost inconceivably great. Three hundred thousand people were rendered not only homeless, but foodless and penniless and businessless. San Francisco as a city was wiped off the map.

SAN FRANCISCO EARTHQUAKE AND FIRE—Continued.

While the figures of the dead and of the losses given above are as accurate as can be made the general belief is that the actual loss in life and property will never be known. Far beyond the financial loss is that of churches, art collections, libraries and schools. Figures are incapable of stating what such misfortune means. And beyond even this irreparable loss, the picturesqueness born of the history of the city is gone forever.

While San Francisco was still burning the world rose to its assistance. The Federal Government by two successive votes appropriated $2,500,000 for immediate relief and sent a representative of the Red Cross Society to co-operate with local bodies. All over the country and all over the world provisions and money were contributed spontaneously and enthusiastically. It is impossible to know to how much these contributions amounted, but it was estimated that the total aid furnished the city did not fall much short of $15,000,000. Baltimore City and Maryland gave about $150,000. Five of the small insurance companies and one larger one were forced to ask for receivers. Foreign nations at once offered aid, but President Roosevelt declined all such aid with gratitude, and with the assurance that it was not needed. In a subsequent message upon the disaster, in giving a list of foreign governments and persons who contributed, he made a distinction between help offered directly to the sufferers and that offered to the Government as a medium. The latter he judged himself unwarranted in receiving. With the former he did not interfere.

Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz, while the fire was still burning, prevented the coming of chaos by drastic orders to soldiers to kill looters; the United States Government patrolled the ruins and for several days the entire region which had been destroyed was under martial law. In the meantime the citizens, though without shelter except tents, and without capital, set at work to plan for a nobler and earthquake-proof as well as fireproof city. The fact that the buildings of concrete and of steel construction withstood the earthquake shock was the one comfort in the situation. Their preservation showed that it was possible to build a city that would not be destroyed even by a recurrence of the violent shock which destroyed the city hall.

Aside from its troubles from earthquake and fire, San Francisco had its civic troubles. As is well known the labor unions have controlled the politics of San Francisco for a number of years, having succeeded in electing Mayor Schmitz for three successive terms. Immediately after the earthquake and fire in April the better element of the unions seemed to assert itself. Since that time, however, the city has been in a bad moral condition. It swarms with roughs and thieves, the police do not seem to be able to maintain order, and everybody is urged to go armed. A citizens' committee of 100 was formed to purge the municipal government. Evidences of corruption on the part of the municipality and of the police are said to be overwhelming, and this situation is interfering seriously with the rebuilding of the city. Mayor Schmitz went abroad in the fall, and in his absence he was, on November 16, indicted by the San Francisco grand jury on a charge of graft. He returned to answer the charges, and on November 29 was arrested when he entered the State. He and Abraham Reuf, the San Francisco "boss," were arraigned in court to answer the charges on December 7.

VESUVIUS IN AN ANGRY MOOD.

Mount Vesuvius in Italy was in a violent state of eruption in the spring of 1906, the situation becoming grave on April 6. Three days later several houses and the church at San Gluseppe. Vesuvians collapsed from the weight of ashes upon them and 30 bodies were taken from the ruins. At Bosco Trecase seven were killed and all trace of the town was obliterated. Torre Annunziata, on the shore of the Gulf of Naples, was almost surrounded by lava and was deserted by its 30,000 inhabitants, six of whom were killed. The Vesuvian railway and observatory were destroyed. Earthquake shocks rocked buildings in Naples and cracked walls.

On April 12 Vesuvius was shaken by terrific explosions. Naples was covered with ashes to a depth of four inches. People were in a panic, and troops were put in command of the place. For a while famine was feared because 200,000 refugees were housed there. The loss of life in the various towns was estimated at 300.

When the seismic disturbances ceased Professor Matteucci on April 24 reported that the cone of the volcano had been reduced in height 800 feet, and the diameter of the crater enlarged from its former size of 1,000 feet to 5,000 feet.

CHILE STRICKEN BY EARTHQUAKE.

After Vesuvius came San Francisco, and after San Francisco Valparaiso. At 7.52 in the evening of August 16, an earthquake, distinctly recorded at Honolulu, Washington, Baltimore and Albany, but by a curious chance not perceptible at the Lick Observatory in California, shook the central part of Chile with terrific force. The full impact of the shock fell upon Valparaiso and the neighboring towns. The scenes at San Francisco were repeated. The water mains were twisted and broken at the first strain, and the fires that broke out immediately could not be checked. It was not until nearly two-thirds of the city had been destroyed that the flames burnt themselves out. Eighty-two shocks of earthquake were felt the first night and three hundred more in the next three days, but the first was responsible for most of the damage. There had been tremblings of the earth before the catastrophe and predictions of more serious ones in the newspapers.

The other towns in the Aconcagua Valley suffered proportionately as severely as Valparaiso. Several of them were completely destroyed, and all were frightfully damaged. The earth opened in places in fissures fifty and a hundred feet deep. All communication by rail was cut off and the telegraphs, and at first the telephones, stopped working. Letters were carried to and from Santiago by horsemen.

As in San Francisco, the whole population of Valparaiso took to the parks and hills, but the sufferings from exposure were much greater than in California, for August in Chile corresponds to February in northern countries, and the weather was bleak and wet. The Chilean Government took immediate charge of the situation, proclaiming martial law, distributing rations, and shooting looters. Perfect order was maintained, and the dead and wounded were gathered up by the military ambulances. The squadron of cavalry forming the President's escort was sent from Santiago with instructions to seize all the cattle met on the way and drive them to Valparaiso to prevent a famine among the refugees.

It happened that the Chilean fleet had been ordered to Valparaiso to welcome

Secretary Root. It arrived just in time to land its sailors, save the water front, and suppress robbery while the troops were on the way.

A steamer brought the report to Calao that the island of Juan Fernandez, the so-called "Robinson Crusoe's Island," had been wiped out. This report, it was said some months later, was unfounded. The unfortunate town of Arica, in the north, where the great tidal wave of 1868 washed the United States warship Waterree three miles inland, was destroyed for the fourth time in forty years. Vina del Mar, Quillota, Ligua, Quilpe, Los Andes and Casa Blanca, all near Valparaiso, were reduced to ruins, and the considerable city of Quirihue, two hundred and fifty miles to the southward, was wrecked.

Although there have been many catastrophes more destructive to life, there have been no convulsions of nature in modern times that have caused such ruin to property as the 1906 earthquakes of California and Chile. In each case the shock happened to strike a populous city, and in each it started fires which completed the destruction it began. The direct damage by earthquake appears to have been far greater in Chile than in California. The loss from both causes in Valparaiso and the neighboring towns, according to estimates, was something like $250,000,000. Some of the foreign insurance companies that were hard hit at San Francisco suffered a new blow at Valparaiso.

President Roosevelt sent two messages of sympathy to the President of Chile, and grateful replies were promptly returned. Other messages of condolence were sent by European rulers. The American Red Cross Society prepared a general appeal for aid. The Argentine Government despatched a cruiser loaded with provisions, and the Pan-American Congress held a special memorial session. The magnitude of the disaster annihilated distance and drew the sympathy of the whole civilized world.

It was estimated that 2,000 lives had been lost in Valparaiso and about 300 in other Chilean cities and towns.

THE GREGORIAN CALENDAR.

The Gregorian Calendar was accepted immediately or shortly after its promulgation by all Roman Catholic countries. The Protestant states of Germany and the Kingdom of Denmark adhered to the Julian Calendar till 1750. It was in 1752 that the British Parliament abolished the Julian Calendar, or old style, as it was called. The act of Parliament decreed that the day following September 2, 1752, should be called the 14th of that month.

When the alteration was made by Gregory it was only necessary to drop ten days; the year 1700 having intervened, which was a common year in the Gregorian, but a leap year in the Julian Calendar, it was now necessary to drop eleven days.

The "old style" is still adhered to in Russia.

THANKSGIVING DAY WRECK ON THE SOUTHERN.

President Samuel Spencer of the Southern Railway, Charles D. Fisher, a prominent grain merchant and capitalist of Baltimore, Francis T. Redwood, of the firm of Lowndes & Redwood, stock brokers of Baltimore, Philip Schuyler, capitalist, of New York, Mr. Spencer's guests, and D. Watt Davis, of Washington, private telegraph operator to Mr. Spencer, were killed in a wreck on the Southern Railway at daybreak of Thanksgiving Day, November 29, 1906. The wreck occurred near Lawyers depot, 10 miles south of Lynchburg. Locomotive Engineer C. Terry and two negro porters were also killed and about a dozen persons were injured.

Mr. Spencer's private car was attached to the Jacksonville express, the party being on the way to "Friendship," a hunting preserve near Greensboro, N. C., owned by Messrs. Spencer and Fisher, and William Johnson, of Liverpool. They intended to have a few days' shooting there. The Jacksonville train was closely followed by the Atlanta express. The Jacksonville, or the Spencer train, broke down on the crest of a steep grade. The flagman ran back to protect his train, and it was officially stated he had gone back 300 yards when the Atlanta train came dashing along. Engineer McKinney saw the signal and put on his emergency brakes, but he did not have time to leave his seat before his train plowed into the private car of Mr. Spencer, in which he and his guests were sleeping. So terrific was the impact that the forward train was sent at least 150 feet ahead, the locomotive going over and upon the body of Mr. Spencer. The splintered private car took fire almost immediately and was consumed. Every particle of woodwork on the locomotive was also burned. The bodies of the victims, except that of Mr. Schuyler, were burned so as to be unrecognizable. Mr. Davis, President Spencer's operator, was still alive when taken from the wreck. He was crushed about the stomach and the lower portion of his body, but he was conscious until the end. His last request was that his wife in Alexandria, Va., be notified at once of his death. He pleaded with a passenger who took him from the wreck to hold his finger on his mouth, telling him that it felt cool and eased his pain. He begged this gentleman not to leave him until the end came, which he knew could not be long. He died 20 minutes after.

E. A. Merrill, of New York, private secretary to Mr. Spencer, was the only member of the party in the president's car to escape with his life, except one porter. He was found beside the track and did not know how he got there. It is believed that the side of the coach near where he was was split open by the impact and he was thrown out far enough to escape with his life.

The bodies of the wreck victims were put in caskets and taken to Washington. Later those of Messrs. Fisher and Redwood were brought to Baltimore and that of Mr. Schuyler sent to New York for burial.

¶ The responsibility for the disaster was placed by the railroad company and by the Virginia corporation commission, which made an independent investigation, upon Operator G. D. Mattox, telegraph operator at Rangoon station, the station north of Lawyers. It is charged that he let the Spencer train into the block between Rangoon and Lawyers, but did not notify the operator at Lawyers that he had done so. When the first section of the Atlanta train, or as it was officially known, the Washington and Southwestern limited, approached Rangoon, Operator Mattox asked the operator at Lawyers for the block on it. This was given by the operator at Lawyers, who did not know that No. 33, the Jacksonville train, had gone in upon the block. If Mattox had reported train No. 33 on the block to Lawyers, there would have been no accident, officials say, because the operator at Lawyers would have held the Southwestern limited at Rangoon until the Jacksonville train had cleared the block at Lawyers. Operator Mattox disappeared after the wreck and was not seen for several days. He afterwards appeared and testified before the officials and the corporation commission. Mattox claimed that he was acting in accordance with the instructions and signals of the system.

The action of the corporation commission in calling the investigation was for the purpose of officially arriving at certain lax methods said to be in vogue on the Southern and to correct by suggestion or orders these abuses. It was shown during the hearing that the block system of the Southern is absolutely in charge in many instances of mere youths; that the night and day operators change and exchange at will; that the operators are allowed visitors during working hours, and that the operators have modified and abbreviated the signal system to suit their own convenience.

SUSQUEHANNA RIVER.

BIG BALTIMORE AND OHIO WRECK NEAR WASHINGTON.

The worst railroad wreck that ever occurred in the District of Columbia happened at 6.30 P. M. of December 30 on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad at Terra Cotta on the Metropolitan Branch, seven miles from the Capital. Between 38 and 40 persons were killed outright and about 75 were injured, of whom a number died in the Washington hospitals in the following few days, bringing the number of dead up to 44 or more. Among the dead were four Baltimoreans. These were Miss Mary Alice Bohrer, 48 years old, 811 North Arlington avenue; Larue McCaghey, 14 years old, 1937 West Lafayette avenue, son of Mr. Joseph A. McCaghey, chief clerk to General Superintendent Bent of the Baltimore and Ohio, John Wright, colored, 55 years old, 850 Stockton street, and his four-year-old child.

The wreck was the result of a rear-end collision between an accommodation train from Frederick and an extra train of empty coaches. The accommodation had the right of way and had stopped at Terra Cotta to take on some passengers. It was just pulling out when the extra came along. The night was foggy and the engineer of the extra did not see the tail lights of the accommodation. His train was running at 40 miles an hour when it struck with a crash that could be heard for miles.

One of the three crowded coaches, the rear one, was ground into splinters by the terrific impact of the monster engine. The middle coach was torn wide open and tossed aside as kindling wood. The forward car was badly smashed and turned on one end.

The terrific crash did not stop the rear train, which pushed its dead and dying victims a quarter mile down the track. All along the line these were strewn and the work of the rescuers, who were slow in coming on the scene, was greatly hampered by the extent of territory they had to cover. In the blackness of the foggy night rescue work was tedious; some who might have been saved by prompt assistance died out there on the railroad right of way, unattended and alone.

An extraordinary feature of the accident is that Engineer Hildebrand and Fireman McClelland of the extra train were not injured in the least by the collision. They did not have time to jump, but escaped unscathed. Their engine was badly damaged.

All the five members of the equipment train crew are Baltimoreans:

Harry H. Hildebrand, 43 years old, 107 West Ostend street, engineer.

Ira C. McClelland, 26 years old, 1516 William street, fireman.

Ralph Rutter, 21 years old, 35 East Fourth avenue.

Frank F. Hoffmeier, 40 years old, 1731 Wilkens avenue, conductor.

William A. Norris, 35 years old, 1707 South Charles street, baggage-master.

STEAMSHIP CHEROKEE STRANDED ON BRIGANTINE SHOALS.

The steamship Cherokee of the Clyde line, from Santo Domingo to New York, went ashore on the Brigantine Shoals, off Atlantic City, New Jersey, January 12, 1906, in a northeastern gale which continued several days and drove the steamship a mile and three-quarters on the shoals, hard and fast into the sands. Two boats were sent out by the life-saving service of the coast guard; one boat was crushed by the waves, but the crews of both made the Cherokee in exhausted condition. The next day Capt. Mark Casto, of Atlantic City, with his fishing smack Alberta and a picked crew of young sailors rescued nine passengers and 42 of the crew of the Cherokee, numbering 51 individuals, including one woman and two children. The rescuing smack was handled with great skill and daring seamanship in the full view of thousands of people gathered on the boardwalk of Atlantic City ocean front.

Captain Casto was presented with a gold medal studded with diamonds by the Clover Club of Philadelphia, A. K. McClure, president, receiving it from the hands of Gen. Nelson A. Miles.

On January 31, 1906, at Pittsburg, Pa., Captain Casto and his crew were made beneficiaries of the Carnegie Hero Fund. Besides medals to the captain and crew, a sum aggregating $9,500 was awarded.

Captain Casto, besides receiving a gold medal, was awarded $1,500, so much of it as may be necessary to be used for the purpose of liquidating a mortgage on his property at Pleasantville, N. J. A fund of $5,000 was set aside from which the executive committee shall pay such amounts as it approves from time to time for the education of Mark Jacob Casto, the 9-year-old son of Captain Casto. In case any of this money shall not be used for this purpose, for any reason whatever, any remainder shall be subject to the disposition of the commission.

WRECK OF THE STEAMSHIP VALENCIA.

At about 11.45 P. M., January 22, the steamship Valencia of the Pacific Coast line, from San Francisco to Puget Sound, struck on the rocks on the coast of Vancouver Island, about half way between Carmenah Head and Cape Beale. She was immediately backed off, but on finding the ship to be rapidly filling, Capt. O. M. Johnson ran her again on the rocks to prevent her sinking in deep water. All the officers of the ship except the second officer and the first assistant engineer were drowned.

The Valencia had on board 65 officers and crew, 91 adult passengers and three small children. Of these 14 passengers and 24 members of the crew were the only survivors. The total loss of life was 121 persons and of the saved 38. Capt. O. M. Johnson, master of the vessel, made no effort to save his own life; he was heartbroken over the disaster.

Few places in the world have such a record of marine catastrophes as the deadly "West Coast," as it is known, of Vancouver Island, which has occasioned the destruction of 56 vessels and cost 711 lives within the last 40 years.

Within the month past the West Coast wrecked the Valencia and the ships King David and Pass of Melfort, 7 lives having been lost on the King David and 26 on the Pass of Melfort.

ANOTHER DISASTER TO A SUBMARINE.

The French submarine boat Lutin, which went out from Beserta, Tunis, on October 26, 1906, for plunging experiments, went down with its crew of 14 men, under command of Lieut. Phoeppen, all of whom lost their lives. A number of days elapsed before the boat was recovered, with its cargo of dead men.

The Lutin was a single-screw steel submarine boat, built in Rochefort in 1901. She was 135 feet long, and had a displacement of 185 tons.

The loss of the Lutin recalls the catastrophe to the French submarine boat Farfadet on July 6, 1905, at the entrance to the port of Sidi Abdallah, Tunis. Commandant Rotier, of the Farfadet, noticed at the moment of plunging that one of the doors was not closed properly, and rushed to try to adjust it. He was too late, however, and the boat sank. Fourteen men perished.

On March 18, 1904, the British submarine A-1 was run down by a steamer while submerged near Portsmouth. All her crew were lost.

On February 5, 1905, the British submarine A-5 sank off Queenstown, only one of her crew being saved.

A third British submarine sank off Plymouth on June 8, 1905, after an explosion on board. Fourteen of her crew were killed.

A WET SUMMER.

The summer of 1906 was remarkable for the quantity of rain which fell in the three months from June 1 until August 31. The early spring was rather dry in Maryland, but with the beginning of June the rains were unusually frequent and heavy, not only interfering with farming operations, but causing a great deal of damage. Crops of almost all kinds were affected. In Baltimore, where accurate records are kept. Director Von Herrmann, of the Weather Bureau, said it was the wettest summer since 1870, thirty-six years.

The amount of precipitation during the three months was 19.10 inches. In 1870, during the same period, there was 22.58 inches. The great rainfall last summer was due to the remarkably low barometric pressures and the constant southerly breeze, which brought an abundance of moisture from the Atlantic Ocean.

GULF HURRICANE OF SEPTEMBER 27.

On September 27, 1906, a hurricane swept the Gulf coast, greater in severity than any that had visited the South since the destruction of Galveston in September, 1900. Pensacola, Fla., and Mobile, Ala., were seriously damaged by the fury of the storm, which drove up the bay at a velocity of 90 miles an hour. In Mobile and vicinity fully 75 lives were lost and the property loss is estimated at $3,000,000. Huge trees fell and roofs of buildings were crushed in, 5,000 buildings being wrecked. For seven hours the wholesale business district was under water. It was necessary to put the city under martial law, for lights were out and there was disorder everywhere. Shipping suffered severely. Among the steamers sunk were the J. P. Schuh, the Mary E. Staples, the Mary S. Blees, Cama, Overton, Hattie B. Moore, City of Camden, the United States revenue cutter Alert and many smaller craft.

Every church in Mobile was damaged, Christ Church Cathedral and the St. Francis Street Baptist Church suffering more than the others. The damage to the first named was estimated at $40,000 and to the second $10,000. Transportation facilities were annihilated for a time, the tracks of all the roads running into the city being greatly damaged.

In Pensacola the damage was estimated at from $3,000,000 to $5,000,000. Big vessels were driven inland by the force of the tide and left stranded on the shore, some of them even being driven through houses a block from the water front. The Louisville and Nashville grain elevator was destroyed, the railroad wharf wrecked and the trackage to Escambia bay washed out. Thirty-nine carloads of coal were washed into the bay. For miles around the city wharves were washed away or damaged beyond repair. At least four little towns on the shore of the Gulf were washed away, the total loss of life reaching 125. Several lighthouses were swept away, the keeper, his wife and daughter perishing in one of them, having refused rescue because they would not desert their post of duty. At the quarantine station at Santa Rosa Island, near Pensacola, the hospital was carried out to sea with ten persons, five of whom were saved.

New Orleans suffered about $70,000 by the storm, interior towns along the coast were probably damaged to the extent of $500,000, and at Natchez the fleet of the Pittsburg Coal Company sank in deep water two miles below the city, with an estimated loss of $60,000. There were 19 barges in the fleet.

WORLD'S RICHEST WOMAN WEDDED.

In the presence of Emperor William of Germany and 140 guests Fraulein Bertha Krupp, daughter of the great gun maker, and the richest woman in Europe, was married at Essen, Prussia, on October 15, 1906, to Lieut. Gustav von Bohlen und Halbach. The wedding took place in a little improvised chapel adjoining the bride's birthplace, the Villa Huegel. The ceremony was performed by the pastor of the neighboring village church, where the Krupp family has long worshipped.

The Emperor sat with the family while the simple Lutheran marriage service was performed, and then stepped forward and congratulated the bride and bridegroom.

The former wore a princess robe of heavy, ivory-tinted crepe de chine, with panels of point de venise, and had a four-yard train. The veil was of Brussels lace and tulle. The bride wore myrtle blossoms on her head, and had a few sprays of these flowers at her waist. Arthur Krupp, father of a cousin, gave away the bride, who was attended by her sister Barbara. Lieutenant von Bohlen's brother acted as his best man.

The bride's traveling dress was a severely simple gray cloth costume.

The wedding guests included six foremen and 14 men from the Krupp works, but the workmen generally were not given a holiday in honor of the wedding.

Bertha Krupp and Lieutenant von Bohlen, before the wedding, announced their joint gift of $250,000 to the Workmen's Invalid Fund, and Mrs. Krupp gave notice that she had donated another $250,000 to the same fund and 125 acres of land on which to build economical model dwellings for the workmen.

The bridegroom accompanied his portion of the gifts by the assurance that he would perpetuate the personal relations with the working people maintained by Alfred and Frederick Krupp.

The Emperor conferred upon the bridegroom the right to use the name "Krupp von Bohlen und Halbach."

FIRST MARRIAGE IN THE COLONIES.

The first Christian marriage ceremony in the American colonies according to English rites was performed at Jamestown, Va., in 1609, when Anne Burras became the bride of John Leyden. This was eleven years before Mary Chilton, as Mr. Winthrop relates, was the first person to set foot on Plymouth Rock.

TYPHOON AT HONG-KONG.

A typhoon swept over Hong-Kong, China, on September 18, and in two hours blotted out 10,000 lives, wrecked or badly damaged 17 steamers and sailing vessels, swamped, turned over or battered to pieces against the stone walls of the praya 1,000 Chinese junks, destroyed 80 per cent. of the lighters, launches, yachts, houseboats, and small native craft, and wrecked many wharves and damaged many others. Kowloon sustained the heaviest loss, but all sections of Hong-Kong and the hinterland suffered. There were 24 Europeans among those killed; others were Chinese, mostly of the boat and junk population. They usually run for shelter when the warning gun is fired, but on the morning of the storm the signal was fired at 8.10 o'clock, and at 8.30 the typhoon was at its height.

The junkmen skurried for refuge, colliding with each other, cutting down yachts, houseboats, etc., striving through the driving rain to reach Causeway bay. Thousands were soon thrown into the sea, which ran with waves 20 and 30 feet high. The wind blew the junks around and sent them swirling and twisting against the praya, where hundreds of junks and sampans were dashed to pieces and the mangled bodies of the crews were battered against the stone walls within sight of those on shore, powerless to lend aid.

The storm ceased as quickly as it began. This typhoon exceeded all others experienced there in severity.

Hundreds of bodies were swept ashore, and the work of carrying them away by cartloads to impromptu morgues began at once, corpses being photographed in groups of three and tagged for identification.

It was evident soon after the storm began that the shipping would not ride it out, and vessel after vessel dragged, swerved and was driven on shore, some being piled right among the stately buildings which line Hong-Kong's sea front.

The Canadian Pacific steamer Mont Eagle, which drove ashore at Kowloon, broke the French gunboats Fronde and Francisque adrift, and both were driven ashore, the latter being a total wreck, and five of her officers being drowned. The steamers Kwong Chow and Albatross both foundered with all hands, each vessel having only a white master and engineer. The loss of life on the larger craft, however, was not as great, the junkmen contributing the larger bulk of the dead.

Among the dead was Bishop J. C. Hofer, Bishop of Hong-Kong, whose junk capsized when he was bound on a preaching voyage to a fishing village.

A list of the steamers sunk, ashore or damaged is as follows:

Sunk—Steamers Sancheong, Ayentede, Sorsogan, Kwong Chow, Albatross and Perseverance.

Ashore—Steamers Mont Eagle (afterward refloated), Heungsham, Kinshana, Changsa, Fatshan, Wingsai, Takhing, Kong Moon, Sunono, his Majesty's ship Phoenix, his Majesty's ship Rosario, French gunboats Fronde and Francisque, Joanne, Sexta, Single, Petrarch, Enma, Luiken, and American ship Hotchkiss, this vessel being right upon the sea wall near the torpedo depot.

Damaged—Steamers Prinz Waldemar, Devagongse, Quinta, Strathmore, Coptic, Redbershire and Poona.

The damage at Hong-Kong and Kowloon and vicinity is estimated at more than $20,000,000. The damage in the city was not enormous, being confined to uplifted roofs, broken windows, etc.

The bulk of the loss was in the harbor and on the water front.

MR. W. J. BRYAN'S RETURN FROM ABROAD.

Mr. William Jennings Bryan arrived in New York from a trip around the world on August 30, and was given a reception said to have been the greatest ever accorded a private citizen in America. Thousands stood on the Battery sea wall to greet him and his landing was hailed with cheers and the shrieking of steam whistles. Governor Folk, of Missouri, gave him an address of welcome and tens of thousands lined the streets shouting "Hello, Bill!"

Mr. Bryan delivered a notable address in Madison Square Garden to more than 20,000 persons, in which he advocated the election of United States Senators by the people, regulation of the trusts by the government, a universal eight-hour day, an income tax, international arbitration, a revision of the tariff and the control of trunk lines of railroad by the Government and the ownership of other railways by the States.

This last proposition caused a great amount of discussion over the country and was regarded as far too radical a proposition for the Democratic party. Mr. Bryan explicitly stated that he voiced only his own personal views in the matter, and doubted if the country was ready to make the government ownership of railroads an issue. However, he felt it must come sooner or later. His utterances, notwithstanding this explanation, were regarded as an effort to force the government ownership proposition upon the Democratic party as a campaign issue, and was severely condemned by many of the more conservative party leaders all over the country, among the most notable being Mr. John Sharp Williams, leader of the Democratic minority in the National House of Representatives.

ROYAL WEDDING IN MADRID.

The marriage of the King of Spain, Alfonso XIII, to a granddaughter of the late Queen Victoria of England, the Princess Ena of Battenberg, was celebrated with great magnificence in Madrid on May 31, 1906. The wedding procession started from the royal palace at 9.30 in the morning for the Church of San Jeronimo. The buildings, decorated in the Spanish colors, red and yellow, the arches of roses from which hung baskets of flowers and trailing vines, the gay uniforms of the troops and the festive attire of the spectators combined to produce a dazzling effect. A striking feature of the procession was the royal coaches, each drawn by eight white horses with gold and silver harness. Some of the coaches were of tortoise shell, others of mahogany set with panels painted by famous artists. As the royal couple entered the church 200 choristers intoned a processional hymn.

Cardinal Sancha, Archbishop of Toledo, officiated at the ceremony, a special nuncio of the Pope invoking a blessing upon the bride and groom at its conclusion. The Queen, who has taken the name of Victoria, has been received with great enthusiasm by the people of Spain. Fetes to last a week were prepared in celebration of the wedding, after which the King and Queen went to the Spanish Versailles, La Granja.

These joyous proceedings were sadly marred by the attempted assassination of the King. As the procession passed the governor's house in the Calle Mayor, on the return from the church, a bomb, wrapped in a bouquet of roses, was thrown from a balcony of the opposite house. It fell directly in front of the royal carriage and exploded, killing 24 persons and injuring many others. The King and Queen were not harmed, although the rear wheels and the windows of their carriage were shattered, and one of the horses was killed. It is believed that the course of the missile was somewhat deflected by coming in contact with an electric wire. A fragment of the bomb struck the King on the breast, but only broke the chain of the Portuguese Order of Santiago which he was wearing. King Alfonso and his bride immediately entered another carriage and were rapidly driven to the palace. The assassin was Manuel Morales, son of a rich manufacturer near Barcelona, who had disowned him. He became infected with anarchistic ideas while studying in Germany. He escaped from Madrid during the confusion incident upon the bomb throwing, but was recognized in a village a few miles distant. Finding he could not escape he shot himself through the heart. The bravery of the King and Queen was notable at the time of the tragedy and later, when they rode out in public without an escort.

ELECTION OF PRESIDENT OF FRANCE.

M. Clement Armand Fallieres, elected January 17, 1906, by the National Assembly as President of the Republic of France, was born November 6, 1841, at Mezin, Department of Lot-Et-Garonne. He studied law and was called to the bar at Merac, of which town he became Mayor, retaining that office until 1875. In the following year he was elected to the Chamber of Deputies as a Republican, and affiliated himself with the Republican left group in the Chamber. He distinguished himself as an orator and was re-elected in 1877 and 1878.

In 1880 M. Fallieres was named as Under Secretary to the Minister of the Interior. He was again re-elected to the Assembly in 1881. He retired from the Ministry at the time of the fall of Jules Ferry's Cabinet, but returned to power the following year, and was made President of the Council and Minister ad interim of Foreign Affairs.

Subsequently M. Fallieres was successively Minister of Public Instruction, Minister of the Interior and Minister of Justice. He was elected Senator in 1890, and was elected to the Presidency of the Senate in 1899. He was re-elected in 1900 and was again re-elected on January 11, 1906.

M. Fallieres is a man of the people, the son of a peasant and the grandson of a blacksmith, and throughout his long and active career he has maintained a character and a reputation unsullied by even so much as a suspicion of scandal.

Mme. Fallieres is a pleasant, kind-hearted lady of sound common sense. They have two children, young Mlle. Anne, and a son, Andre, who is a talented lawyer, 30 years of age.

For the election of President of the Republic the National Assembly met in the Congress Hall of the Royal Palace, at Versailles. Only one ballot was taken. M. Fallieres received 446 votes and M. Doumer, President of the Chamber of Deputies, 371. There were 28 scattering votes.

The National Assembly consists nominally of 591 Deputies and 300 Senators, but owing to deaths, illness and the passage of some of the Deputies to the Senate, leaving their seats vacant, the number present was decreased to about 860, making 430 votes necessary to elect a President.

RUSSIA'S YEAR OF TERROR.

Nineteen hundred and six was a year of sore trial and trouble for Russia. In that one year she has seen her first Parliament elected, dissolved and outlawed, and her people subjected to the extremes of anarchical disorder and tyrannical repression. The elections for the first Duma were held in April and May, and the assembly met May 10 in the Tauride Palace at St. Petersburg. The Government, under M. Goremykin, who had succeeded Count Witte as Prime Minister, had overreached itself in its effort to control the elections. It had introduced a complicated system of double election, with the idea that the ignorant voters would be confused or overriden. But the actual working of the scheme was to suppress the conservative minority, which could not carry any of the electoral colleges, and so leave it almost totally without representation. The Duma from the first took up the position of stubborn hostility to the Government. It demanded a general amnesty for all political offenses, and the abolition of capital punishment in all cases before allowing anything else to be done. The ministers were hooted down when they made their appearance in the tribune. It was the hope of the Constitutional Democrats, who controlled the assembly, to force the dismissal of the Cabinet and the substitution of one responsible to Parliament. They seemed at one time to be on the verge of succeeding, but the reactionary elements at Court succeeded in gaining possession of the Czar's will long enough to bring him to the point of making a stand against the transformation of the Government. The Duma was suddenly dissolved on July 23, and at the same time an attempt was made to conciliate public sentiment by replacing Premier Goremykin with the more liberal Stolypin. About a third of the members of the Duma met in the woods at Viborg, in Finland, and issued a manifesto urging the Russian people to refuse to pay taxes or furnish recruits for the Army until a new Duma should be assembled. They also warned foreign financiers that no debts incurred by the autocratic Government would be recognized. This manifesto, secretly circulated throughout Russia, had some effect on the minds of the people, but not enough to cripple the Government, and a reign of terror ensued. Liberal leaders were imprisoned by hundreds, and frightful massacres, nominally directed against the Jews, but really organized by the officials to divert attention from reforms, broke out in the various cities. The activity of the fighting revolutionists, which had been suspended during the sessions of the Duma, was resumed, and a peculiarly atrocious attempt was directed against the Prime Minister himself. A bomb was thrown into his house during a reception, on August 25, killing and wounding a number of people, and frightfully injuring M. Stolypin's daughter. Disaffection spread in the army and navy, and serious mutinies occurred at Sveaborg, Kronstadt and other places. The Government maintained its position, however, and the liberal system promised by the proclamation of October 30, 1905, still nominally remained in force. A new Duma is to be elected under precautions which the authorities hope will insure a larger proportion of conservative members, and its meeting is promised for March.

VINDICATION OF DREYFUS.

After many years, France did justice to Captain Dreyfus, the victim of one of the most monstrous conspiracies in the history of that nation. On July 13, the Chamber of Deputies, by a vote of 473 to 42, restored Dreyfus to his position in the army, and promoted him to the rank of major. Colonel Picquart was promoted to be brigadier, with priority over others as a recognition of his loyal and courageous efforts for the triumph of truth at the risk of definitely breaking his career. The Chamber also voted to transfer the remains of Emil Zola, who championed the cause of Dreyfus, to the Pantheon.

The debate on the bills was accompanied by personal violence and abuse, culminating in a duel after the session between Under Secretary Savrant and Deputy Pugliesi-Conti. The Senate passed the bills by votes of 180 to 30 and 185 to 26. The Municipal Council of Paris decided to name one of the principal streets of Paris in honor of Zola in recognition of his defense of Dreyfus, and on July 20 the Council of the Legion of Honor accepted unanimously the recommendation that Dreyfus be decorated.

Dreyfus had personally been vindicated by the highest court in France, the Court of Cassation, which on July 12 quashed the verdict of the court-martial without retrial. Announcement of his entire innocence was ordered published in fifty newspapers.

Of the men who brought about all the trouble Sandherr, chief of the general staff, who first accused Dreyfus, has been dismissed from the army in disgrace. The same is true of Du Paty de Clam. Colonel Henry, who forged the document used as proof against Dreyfus, committed suicide in prison. General De Boisdeffre and General Mercier, who were very prominent in his prosecution, the latter as Minister of War, were retired from the army in disgrace, while General Picquart, the champion of Dreyfus, has become Minister of War in the Clemenceau cabinet.

"DISCHARGED WITHOUT HONOR."

The most sensational event of the year in United States military matters was the discharge "without honor" by President Roosevelt of three companies of colored troops—B, C and D, of the Twenty-fifth Infantry—for shielding members of the battalion who "shot up the town" of Brownsville, Texas, on August 13 and 14, 1906.

The official reports of Major Blockson, Lieutenant-Colonel Lovering and Inspector-General Garlington, made a strong prima-facie case against the men. According to these statements, the people of Brownsville had been strongly opposed to the presence of the colored troops there, and their opposition, shown in various ways, had been resented by the soldiers. One grievance was the fact that the negroes were not allowed to drink with white people at the principal bars, although in some saloons separate bars were put up for them. Another was the action of the local inspector of customs in knocking down a colored soldier with his revolver for jostling his wife on the sidewalk. On the day before the riot the wife of a white citizen was seized by the hair and thrown to the ground by a negro of the Twenty-fifth, who ran away. This caused so much uproar that the men were confined to barracks, which heightened their feeling against the townspeople.

On the night of August 13, according to Major Blockson's report, the first shots were fired from the barracks, and "the soldiers, nine to fifteen, possibly more, then jumped the wall and started through town." They fired about ten shots through a house containing two women and five children. Lieutenant of Police Dominguez, a man "universally respected," rode toward the shooting. Although he did not even draw his revolver, the raiders, whom he estimated to be about fifteen in number, fired upon him, killed his horse, and shot him in the right arm, which afterward had to be amputated below the elbow. Then they fired seven or eight shots into a hotel, killed the bartender of a saloon, slightly wounded a Mexican, fired five or six shots into another private house, two of which went through the mosquito bar over a bed in which a woman and two children were sleeping, and then apparently ran back to the barracks. The officers at first thought that the firing had come from the town side, and the men had no trouble in getting back and cleaning their rifles. When the soldiers were questioned, not one would admit any knowledge of any trouble.

Brigadier-General Gorlington, Inspector-General of the Army, was sent to Fort Reno to investigate. He said it soon became apparent that he could get no information from the troops that would assist him in locating the men actually guilty of the firing. It was clearly indicated that a general understanding existed among the enlisted men as to their position when questioned relative to the riot, and they uniformly declined to admit they knew anything about the matter.

For these reasons, on October 27, he recommended the discharge of the battalion without honor, and on November 5 President Roosevelt issued his order carrying into effect the recommendation.

Protests against this action came from many sections, but Mr. Roosevelt stood firm in his determination that if the innocent soldiers shielded the guilty, the innocent must suffer with the guilty. He was attacked on the floor of the Senate by Senator Foraker and others, and in reply sent, on December 19, a special message to Congress, defending his course, and taking his stand more firmly than ever against the negro troops, saying he ordered the discharge in the exercise of his constitutional power as commander-in-chief of the Army.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TRIP TO PANAMA.

Another precedent was broken by President Roosevelt, when he visited Panama, in November, to see how the work on the canal was progressing. It was the first time in the history of the Republic that the President during his term of office left its shores on a visit to another country. On November 9, 1906, Mr. Roosevelt sailed on the battleship Louisiana for Colon, Panama, escorted by the battleships Washington and Tennessee. He reached Colon at 4 P. M. on November 14, 16 hours ahead of the schedule. He spent three days ashore, in which time he was welcomed to the Republic of Panama by President Amador, returned President Amador's call, and went from one end of the canal to the other and back again, inspected everything and saw all there was to be seen. He sailed from Colon for Porto Rico on November 17, at 10 P. M., and arrived at Ponce on the morning of November 21. The Porto Ricans welcomed him enthusiastically, and in a speech to them he said he would use his every effort to secure citizenship for the islanders, which he was sure would come in the end. He made a trip over the famous military road in an automobile. He returned to Washington on November 27, reaching the White House late at night.

AMERICAN INTERVENTION IN CUBA.

Disorders in Cuba, growing out of the elections of 1905 by which President Palma was re-elected and a congress chosen with the Moderates in a majority, grew so pronounced in the summer that President Roosevelt decided that it was necessary for the United States to intervene. Secretary of War Taft and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon were sent to Havana, arriving there on September 19. They spent a week endeavoring to settle the differences at issue, but found this an impossible task. The insurgents, who had taken to the field early in the summer, insisted that they would consider no settlement not based on the annulment of some of the elections which they charged were grossly fraudulent. Rather than yield to this demand President Palma determined to resign. All the members of his cabinet and the heads of departments did likewise. Moderate leaders opposed this move, and when the special session of congress met on September 28, in pursuance of a call issued by President Palma, a committee was appointed to ask him to reconsider. This he refused to do, whereupon the Moderates refused to attend the night session of congress, which, failing a quorum, dissolved, leaving the resignation unaccepted and Cuba without a government. It was then that the United States stepped in and took charge. About a dozen powerful warships with a large force of marines had been sent to Cuba in anticipation of this step, and it was the action most desired by many of the Cubans. The landing of the marines on September 29 and the proclamation by Secretary Taft of a provisional government were received with signs of satisfaction. The proclamation was diplomatically worded and disclaimed "any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty over the island except for the pacification thereof." Six thousand United States troops, which had been in readiness, were ordered to Cuba by President Roosevelt, under command of Gen.

Frederick Funston, who had been sent in advance. He was later recalled out of consideration for the feelings of the Cubans, who expressed disapproval of his appointment, and on October 3, Brig.-Gen. J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff of the Army, was ordered to Havana to take charge of the troops. Gov. Charles E. Magoon, of the Panama Canal Zone, was selected by Mr. Roosevelt on October 2 to act as provisional governor of Cuba, relieving Mr. Taft. The American officials reported that they found a shockingly bad condition of affairs on the island and that the American occupation is likely to last a number of months. A situation which for a time threatened trouble was the disarming of the two contending forces. This, however, was accomplished without great difficulty. The issuing of a proclamation of general amnesty on October 10 gave general satisfaction, although it was severely criticised in some quarters. Governor Magoon arrived in Havana on October 9, and at once took up his work of establishing peace and quiet in the country until new elections could be held, and the republic again set on its feet.

Orders were issued late in November relieving Gen. J. Franklin Bell from command of the American troops in Cuba, and ordering him back to his duties as chief of staff at headquarters in Washington. Brig.-Gen. Theodore J. Wirt, commanding the Department of the Missouri, was designated to succeed him, the change to take place January 1, 1907.

It was explained at the War Department that it had always been the intention to relieve General Bell from duty in Cuba as soon as he had established the army there on a basis satisfactory to the department and had carried out the military policies of the President and Secretary Taft. General Wirt is an officer in whom Secretary Taft has great confidence. He was in command of the "Camp of Embarkation" at Newport News, Va., when all of the troops left for duty in Cuba.

CONSTELLATION OF THE LION.

The constellation of Leo or the Lion has been celebrated from the most remote antiquity; it is suggested that its name may have arisen from the fact that when the sun enters the constellation in midsummer the lions abandon the desert and appear on the banks of the Nile. The Egyptians worshiped the stars of this group because at this time the rise of the great river occurred. As might be expected, the sign was astrologically considered most fortunate, yet ancient physicians thought that when the sun was in this group all medicine became poisonous, possibly not without reason, when we consider the medicines which they administered, and hearing thunder at this time was supposed to presage the deaths of great men.

EXTENT OF THE UNIVERSE.

Prof. Simon Newcomb advises one who wishes to appreciate the vast extent of the universe to lie on his back on a bench some clear moonless night and contemplate the vault of heaven. He will see the stupendous arch of the Milky Way near the zenith, with thousands of stars on either side. At first sight the points of light will appear to be scattered at irregular intervals, as if by chance, but closer observation shows orderly arrangement and symmetry. There is unity of the whole structure. The Milky Way is seen to be a ring which girdles the whole of creation and seems to be the foundation upon which the whole stellar universe is built. As respects their proper motions also the stars manifest a certain unity. Their speeds vary from little up to over 100 miles per second, but the speeds are similar in opposite parts of the universe. The "Orion stars"—scattered along the whole course of the Milky Way—have slower motions than the rest. Such correspondences suggest unity and organization—as if the whole stellar universe were originally formed under the impulse of one force which determined the places and motions of its several parts.

As respects distances, the stars seem to be scattered equally in those regions not embraced in the Milky Way. Their distances from each other and from us are less obvious. The parallax of about 100 stars has been more or less certainly obtained, and from it we may estimate the distance of certain stars from the earth. Alpha Centauri is found to be nearest to us, but so remote is Alpha Centauri that its light takes seven years to reach us, while that of our sun reaches us in eight and one-third minutes. This nearest star is 400,000 times the distance of the sun from us. Within a distance twice as great we find eight more stars. All the stars are supposed to be contained within a region whose boundary is 200,000,000 times the distance of the sun from us, the light of the most remote requiring about 3,300 years to reach us. Their number is supposed to exceed 125,000,000, but this estimate is little more than a mere guess. It is possible that the outer bounds are twice as far as has been estimated, and that light from the outer limit would require over 6,000 years to reach us. The stars of the Milky Way, Professor Newcomb thinks, are between 100,000,000 and 200,000,000 times the distance of the sun from us. At distances less than this the stars are distributed through space, it is thought, with some approach to uniformity.

The general conclusion remains: "The universe, so far as we can see it, is a bounded whole. It is surrounded by an immense girdle of stars, which, to our vision, appears as the Milky Way. While we cannot set exact limits to its distance, we may yet confidently say that it is bounded. It has uniformities running through its vast extent. Could we fly out to distances equal to that of the Milky Way, we should find comparatively few stars beyond the limits of that girdle."

THE MILKY WAY.

In the month of February this magnificent arch of light may be seen stretching up from the ground in the southeast and spanning the entire vault of the heavens. Even without a telescope it is seen to be made up of countless stars, which in many places are crowded together in such immense numbers that the eye cannot distinguish them. And this inconceivably great host not of worlds, but of enormous suns, is irregular in form. Here it stretches away in long streamers, there it is compacted into bright groups, while in other positions it covers the face of the sky with an almost uniform silvery radiance.

It is probable that our sun and all of the naked-eye stars are but members of this great aggregation. We are a part of this Milky Way cluster, and can therefore only view it from the inside. Probably we are nearest to that bright portion of it which is now below the ground, but what its true shape is we do not know. There are some parts of it so crowded with faint stars that no telescope can separate them; they fill the whole field with a soft, uniform light. Whether these are great suns which appear so faint and close together because they are almost infinitely far away, or whether they are small stars near to each other, we do not know. Equally unknown to us is the nature of the great forces which in some parts have grouped the stars into dense bright swarms, and have in others so scattered them that there appear great rents or holes in the Milky Way, so barren of stars that even in a large telescope they appear almost entirely black. A careful examination of the details of the Milky Way with an opera glass or small telescope will well repay the observer for his trouble.

EX-GOVERNOR WHYTE APPOINTED SENATOR.

Ex-Senator and ex-Governor William Pinkney Whyte was appointed by Governor Warfield on June 8, 1906, to fill out the unexpired term of United States Senator Arthur Pue Gorman, who died on June 4. The appointment met with general and instantaneous approval not only in Maryland, but wherever Senator Whyte was known. For some years he has been affectionately referred to by his friends as the "Grand Old Man" of Maryland. While recently he has not been active in public life, his interest in politics and in public questions has never flagged. Among those who were apprised of the appointment the conviction was freely expressed that the Governor had fully measured up to the responsibility placed upon him by the death of Senator Gorman, and that both Maryland and himself were to be congratulated.

The appointment of Mr. Whyte will recall to hundreds of Democrats throughout the State the long and bitter feud that existed between him and the late Senator Gorman. It was in 1880 that Senator Gorman succeeded in defeating Mr. Whyte for re-election to the Senate and first procured the place for himself. From that time until his death both the personal and political relations between the two men were unfriendly, and in the memorable campaigns of 1895 and 1897, when the Gorman organization was overthrown and Mr. Gorman himself was defeated, ex-Governor Whyte took an active part in the fight against him.

Prior to his defeat by Mr. Gorman for re-election to the Senate, it is said, Mr. Whyte was in control of the party organization almost as completely as Mr. Gorman was later. His defeat and the success of Mr. Gorman not only gave to the latter the seat in the United States Senate, but likewise placed in his hands the leadership of the Democratic party in the State. That 26 years after Mr. Gorman succeeded him in the Senate ex-Governor Whyte, who in all those years has been politically opposed to Senator Gorman, should succeed him in turn, is said to be an incident practically unprecedented in the political history of the country.

Ex-Governor Whyte's life has been filled with honors. The salient points of his notable career are as follows:

Born in Baltimore August 9, 1824.

At the age of 18 entered the counting house of Peabody, Riggs & Co., founded by George Peabody, and remained there about two years.

In the winter of 1843 entered the law office of Brown & Brune, and in 1844 went to Harvard Law School.

Admitted to the bar in 1846 and was elected to the Legislature in 1847; elected comptroller of the treasury in 1853.

Represented the Maryland Democracy in the National Democratic Convention of 1868.

Appointed to succeed United States Senator Reverdy Johnson in 1868.

Elected Governor of Maryland in 1871 and served till 1874, when he was elected United States Senator for the full term.

Retired from the Senate in 1881 and was elected Mayor of Baltimore in the fall of the same year.

Became Attorney-General of Maryland in 1887, serving four years.

Appointed delegate to the Congress of American Nations by President Harrison in 1889, but declined because of the pressure of his duties as Attorney-General.

Became chairman of the City Charter Commission in 1898, and in 1900 accepted the office of city solicitor under Mayor Hayes, the last public office held by him until called upon to succeed Mr. Gorman in the United States Senate.

GUATEMALA, HONDURAS AND SALVADOR AT WAR.

Revolutionary demonstrations in Guatemala and Salvador led to conflict between these republics in July. Each charged the other with secretly abetting revolutionists seeking to overthrow the existing governments. Armies invaded each other's territory and two or three serious battles were fought, in one of which, at El Jicaro on July 13, General Regalado, a former president of Salvador, was killed. The next day, at a fight at Palanor, 2,000 Guatemalans were killed. The republic of Honduras, as an ally of Salvador, was also involved in the trouble. President Roosevelt, with the co-operation of President Diaz of Mexico, offered the services of the United States as mediator, and the contending parties acceded very willingly. The terms of an agreement were arranged July 20, on the United States cruiser Marblehead, on the high seas by commissioners from each country, in the presence of American and Mexican ministers as counselors. The agreement provided for the withdrawal of armies within three days, an exchange of prisoners and the negotiation within two months of a treaty of friendship, commerce and navigation. All future differences between the contending parties are to be referred to the Presidents of the United States and Mexico for arbitration.

On September 16 envoys from Guatemala, Honduras and Salvador met at San Jose, Costa Rica, to draw up a treaty of peace.

BURNT DISTRICT COMMISSION'S WORK.

In the year 1906 the Burnt District Commission almost completed the great work put upon it by the municipality after the great fire. The last big job before the Commission was that of securing the property needed for the widening of Light street between Pratt and Lee streets. This has been accomplished, and most of the property needed has been paid for. Approximately, the gross cost of all the work done by the Commission was $7,229,695; the amount of benefits assessed, $1,125,596, making the net cost $6,104,099. Deducting the gross cost from the appropriation of $7,400,500, leaves a balance of $170,804, and deducting the net cost leaves a balance of $1,296,400.

Actual expenditures made by the Commission for street improvements, wharves and docks and other expenses, were as follows:

Hanover Street.....	$166,400 12
Hopkins Place.....	288,332 82

From this is to be deducted a credit for the sale of debris, etc., and from other sources, $65,621.90, making the net expenditures to September 11 last, $6,131,995.01.

KING CHRISTIAN IX OF DENMARK.

King Christian IX of Denmark died suddenly in his palace, at Copenhagen, January 29, 1906, at 2.30 p. m. He gave an audience in the morning, lasting three hours, and at lunch showed signs of great fatigue. He almost collapsed and was removed to his bed-chamber, where he died.

His age was 87 years.

He reigned 42 years.

His appointment to the succession was due to the fact that the House of Oldenburg, which had occupied the Danish throne from 1448, was nearing extinction. The great Powers of Europe, at a conference in London in 1852, chose Christian.

Soon after his accession to the throne his hereditary duchies, Schleswig and Holstein, were relinquished by Denmark to Austria and Prussia.

He won in a conflict with the democratic parties in 1894 over the powers of the ministry.

He granted new constitution to Iceland in 1874.

His daughter Alexandra is present Queen of England.

His daughter Dagmar is Empress Dowager of Russia.

His son George is present King of Greece.

Prince Frederick, 62 years of age, succeeded him to the crown of Denmark, and formally ascended the throne January 30, 1906, as King Frederick VIII.

Christian IX of Denmark was called "The Father in Law of Europe." The rulers of Russia, Great Britain, Greece, Sweden and Norway were directly related to him, either personally, or by marriage.

He was born April 8, 1818, and was the fourth son of the late Duke Wilhelm of Schleswig-Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, and of Princess Louise of Hesse-Cassel. He was appointed to the succession of the crown of Denmark by the Treaty of London of May 8, 1852, and by the Danish law of succession of July 31, 1853.

Christian succeeded to the throne on the death of King Frederick VII, November 15, 1863. He had married on May 26, 1842, Louise, daughter of Landgrave Wilhelm of Hesse-Cassel. Queen Louise died on September 29, 1898.

There were born to Christian and Louise six children. Frederick, his successor, was born June 6, 1843. He was married on July 28, 1869, to Princess Louise, daughter of King Karl XV, of Sweden and Norway.

Princess Alexandra, who became the wife of Edward, Prince of Wales, on March 10, 1863, and who is now Queen of England, was born December 1, 1844.

Prince Wilhelm, born on December 24, 1845, was elected King of Greece, under the title of Georgios I, on March 31, 1863, by the Greek National Assembly. He was married on October 27, 1867, to Olga Constantinovna, Grand Duchess of Russia.

Princess Marie Dagmar (Empress Maria-Feodorovna) was born on November 26, 1847, and was married to Alexander III, Emperor of Russia, on November 9, 1866. She was widowed on November 1, 1894.

Princess Thyra, born on September 29, 1853, married on Dec. 21, 1878, Prince Ernest August, Duke of Cumberland.

Prince Waldemar, born on October 27, 1858, was married on October 22, 1885, to Princess Marie d'Orleans, eldest daughter of the Duc de Chartres.

Of the King's grandchildren, Prince Charles, son of Frederick, the successor to the throne of Denmark, was married on July 22, 1896, to Princess Maud Alexandra of Great Britain, and is now King of Norway. Princess Ingeborg, daughter of Prince Frederick, was married on August 2, 1878, to Prince Charles of Sweden.

A brother of Christian, the late King—Prince Hans, is a general in the Danish army.

PEARY'S FARTHEST NORTH.

Commander Robert E. Peary did not reach the North Pole in his attempt in 1906, but he got nearer to it than any other Arctic explorer. His ship, the Roosevelt, was taken 300 miles north of Greeley's base at Cape Sabine. She was locked in the ice for the winter on September 5, 1905, and for nearly five months, from October 12 to March 6, the explorers had not a glimpse of the sun. Peary's cured whale meat turned bad, poisoning his dogs, and several tons of it had to be thrown away, leaving the dogs and Eskimos to live on the country through an Arctic winter. Peary reached 87° 6'—30 miles beyond the farthest reached by any other explorer.

Leaving his flags flying from the highest pinnacle, with a bottle near containing a record of his journey, Peary started on his return course. It was made with the greatest difficulty. He reached Sydney, C. B., on the return trip on November 23, and went direct to New York, leaving the Roosevelt there. The ship reached New York on December 24.

DEATH OF GEN. JOSEPH WHEELER.

Gen. Joseph Wheeler, the former Confederate cavalry leader and brigadier-general of the United States Army since the war with Spain, died of pneumonia at 5.35 o'clock January 26, 1906, at the home of his sister, Mrs. Sterling Smith, in Brooklyn, New York, aged 69 years.

Joseph Wheeler was born in Augusta, Ga., September 10, 1836. On his graduation from West Point in 1859 he was assigned to the Fifth Dragoons with the rank of second lieutenant, and served in New Mexico. On April 22, 1861, he resigned his commission and was made colonel of the Nineteenth Alabama Infantry in the Confederate Army. After the battle of Shiloh, in which he commanded a brigade, he was transferred to the cavalry, and had command of that part of General Bragg's army in the Kentucky campaign. In 1862 he was commissioned a brigadier-general, and a year later a major-general. As a cavalry commander his movements were remarkable for their brilliancy and success. He made raids in western Tennessee, fought at Grand River and Perryville and commanded the cavalry at Mariettaboro.

His command was conspicuous at Chickamauga, and after the battle did great damage to General Rosecrans' supply trains. It is said that the damage effected by General Wheeler at this time amounted to $3,000,000. His charges at Knoxville, Missionary Ridge and Lookout Mountain were largely effective in making possible orderly retreats on the part of the Confederates. His most famous work probably was his continued attacks on General Sherman's army in the advance to Atlanta. He commanded the cavalry corps of the Western Confederate Army until the close of the war. At that time he was senior cavalry officer in the Confederate Army, although only 29 years old.

Up to 1880 General Wheeler was a lawyer and cotton planter. In that year he was elected to Congress from the Eighth Alabama district. His election was, however, contested, and he failed to secure the seat. He was elected in 1884, took his seat and was chosen from his district at every succeeding election, up to and including that of 1898.

When the Spanish War broke out nothing would satisfy "Fighting Joe," or "Little Joe," as he was affectionately called, but that he should go to the front. And so, in spite of his 62 years, he was sent. He was made a major-general of volunteers, and in the Santiago campaign commanded the dismounted cavalry in General Kent's division. He occupied one of the most perilous positions at the front and contributed so much to the victories of that campaign. When, later on, his cavalry brigade engaged in numerous engagements in the Philippines, he again came prominently before the public. He was made a brigadier-general in the Regular Army of the United States in June, 1900, and on September 10 of that year was retired with that rank.

As a writer General Wheeler gained more or less notice, particularly in military circles. In the Civil War he published "A Revised System of Cavalry Tactics for the Use of the Cavalry and Mounted Infantry, Confederate States of America." Since the Spanish War he had published a work entitled "The Santiago Campaign." At its commencement, on June 22, Georgetown University conferred on him the honorary degree of LL. D.

The influence of General Wheeler's personality is regarded as having had great influence in blotting out the last lingering traces of bitterness between the North and the South.

General Wheeler married Miss Danfella Jones, daughter of Col. Richard Jones, February 8, 1866. She died in 1897. They had five daughters and two sons. The eldest child was Joseph Wheeler, Jr., third of the name, who graduated from West Point in 1895 and is an officer of the army. He was on his father's staff in Cuba. Thomas Harrison Wheeler, the other son, entered the Naval Academy, but was drowned at Montauk Point while General Wheeler was in command there. Miss Anna Early Wheeler, one of the daughters, became prominent as an army nurse. Ella, another daughter, died in childhood.

The remains of General Wheeler were transferred, with full military honors, to Washington City, from Brooklyn, N. Y., Sunday, January 28, and the next day deposited in the National Cemetery, at Arlington. President Roosevelt attended the funeral.

DEATH OF MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS.

Mrs. Varina Howell Davis, widow of Mr. Jefferson Davis, president of the Southern Confederacy, died on October 16, 1906, at the Hotel Majestic, New York City, after a week's illness of pneumonia, induced by a severe cold which she contracted upon her return from the Adirondacks, where she spent the summer.

At the bedside when death came were Mrs. J. Addison Hayes, of Newark, N. J., the only surviving daughter of Mrs. Davis; Jefferson Davis Hayes, a grandson, who is a student at Princeton University; Mrs. Charles E. Bateson, a niece; Doctor and Mrs. Gustave Webb, the latter a granddaughter, and Dr. Robert H. Wylie, who, with Dr. Webb, had cared for Mrs. Davis throughout her illness. Mrs. Davis has for some years made her home in New York, where she had a wide circle of friends.

She was the second wife of Mr. Jefferson Davis, his first wife having been Sallie Knox Taylor, daughter of Gen. Zachary Taylor, afterward President of the United States.

This, it has been generally understood, was a runaway match, the bride dying within a year while still estranged from her father, but such was not the case. Mrs. Philip P. Dandridge, of Winchester, Va., the only surviving sister of the first Mrs. Davis, says that General Taylor at first opposed the engagement of his daughter and Mr. Davis, then a Lieutenant in the United States Army, because he did not wish his daughter to marry in the army and meet the hardships then inevitable on the frontier. But after an engagement of two years General Taylor withdrew all opposition and his daughter was married to the young lieutenant at "Beechland," near Louisville, Ky., the home of General Taylor's oldest daughter Elizabeth, who married her cousin, John Gibson Taylor. The wedding took place in the presence of many members of the Taylor family and a large assemblage of guests. There was never any estrangement between General Taylor and his daughter. Mrs. Davis died three months after her marriage of malarial fever, at Locust Grove plantation, in Louisiana. Ten years after the death of his first wife, on February 25, 1845, Mr. Davis married Miss Varina Howell, who had been born on May 7, 1826, and was then only 18 years old. Mr. Davis was 37.

Miss Howell was born in Natchez, Miss., but was of Northern ancestry, her father, William Burr Howell, having been a son of Gov. Richard Howell, of New Jersey. She had also received part of her education in the North, at the school of Mme. Greland, in Philadelphia.

In the November after his marriage Jefferson Davis was elected to Congress, and his bride had her first taste of Washington life, but after serving one winter Mr. Davis resigned to participate in the Mexican War, from which he returned severely wounded. They lived at his Brierfield plantation, in Warren county, Mississippi, but in 1847 Mr. Davis was elected to the United States Senate from Mississippi, and from that time for 14 years Mrs. Davis was conspicuous in Washington life. Her husband continued in the Senate five years, then served four years as Secretary of War in the Cabinet of President Pierce, and then, during Buchanan's Administration, was again in the Senate, from which he resigned when his State seceded.

During his service as President of the Confederacy his wife was with him in Richmond. After his capture, in 1865, she was not permitted to be with him and spent an anxious year, but finally was granted leave to share the second and final year of his imprisonment at Fortress Monroe. When he was released they went abroad and lived in England until 1870, then at Memphis until 1878, and finally at his Beauvoir estate, on the Mississippi Gulf coast, until his death, December 6, 1889. Beauvoir is now a Confederate home, and Mrs. Davis resided in recent years at the Hotel Gerard, in New York. She also had a home in Richmond.

When Mr. Davis was writing his "Decline and Fall of the Confederate Government" she was his scribe, and after his death she wrote "Jefferson Davis; A Memoir by His Wife" and many criticisms and articles for newspapers and magazines.

The only survivor of her six children is Mrs. Margaret Howell Davis Hayes, wife of Mr. I. A. Hayes, of Colorado Springs. In addition to Winnie Davis there were four sons, who died young.

Mrs. Davis' body was taken to Richmond and buried in Hollywood Cemetery, where the bodies of her husband and her daughter, Miss Winnie Davis, are buried. Her body was escorted to the railroad station in New York by a detachment of United States troops, this, it is said, being the only instance on record where such an honor was accorded to a woman. The funeral in Richmond took place in the afternoon of October 19, from St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal Church, the services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Robert W. Forsythe, the rector, assisted by Rev. Dr. J. W. Jones, Rev. Dr. James P. Smith, Rev. Dr. E. N. Galisch, Rev. Landon R. Mason, Bishop Granberry and Rev. Dr. N. A. Seagle.

Mrs. Davis left an estate estimated to be worth $40,000. It was all left to her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Howell Davis Hayes, with the exception of $10,000 life insurance, which is divided into numerous small bequests.

DEATH OF SENATOR ARTHUR PUE GORMAN.

United States Senator Arthur Pue Gorman, of Maryland, died suddenly at his Washington residence, 1432 K street, at 9.17 A. M. of June 4, 1906, of heart trouble after an illness of almost six months. The Senator was surrounded by Mrs. Gorman and all of the members of his immediate family, including his son, State Senator Arthur P. Gorman, Jr., and his five daughters.

Nine days before his death Mr. Gorman experienced a serious attack of "heart hurry" and throughout that day his condition greatly alarmed the family. He rallied in response to restoratives and continued gradually to improve. The night before he died, although he was not able to leave the bed, to which he had been closely confined nearly four weeks, he was cheerful and chatted with the members of his family. He went to sleep shortly before 11 P. M. and slept more soundly than usual. In the morning he awoke about 8 o'clock and a little later requested some nourishment. After partaking of a light breakfast, which was served in his bedchamber, the fatal attack came.

In the absence of Senator Rayner, the news was announced to the Senate by Senator Bailey, of Texas. Congressman Talbott announced it in the House. After the adoption of suitable resolutions and the appointment of committees to attend the funeral both houses adjourned.

Arthur Pue Gorman was born at Woodstock, Howard county, Md., March 11, 1839. His father was Peter Gorman and his mother Elizabeth A. Brown.

The name of the Senator came from Dr. Arthur Pue, a prominent physician of Howard county, who was a friend and relative of Mrs. Peter Gorman. At the age of 6 years Mr. Gorman went with his parents from Woodstock to live near Laurel, which was his home until his death. At the age of 13 years, in 1852, his father, aided by General Hammond, the Congressman from his district, and William T. Hamilton, who was then in Congress, secured him a position in the House of Representatives as a page. It was here that he attracted the attention of Stephen A. Douglas, who became very much attached to him and obtained for him an appointment as page in the United States Senate. He soon became a close and intimate friend of Mr. Douglas, his private secretary and a member of his household. From the position of page Mr. Gorman was advanced to that of messenger, then successively to those of assistant doorkeeper, assistant postmaster and postmaster.

Mr. Gorman retained his position of postmaster of the Senate during the war. He was employed by the Government in many important missions where tact and skill were required. As the differences began to widen between President Johnson and the Senate Mr. Gorman was in sympathy with the former, and lost his position as postmaster in consequence. But the President appointed him Collector of Internal Revenue in the Fifth collection district of Maryland. It was during the incumbency of this office that Mr. Gorman first became interested in State politics, in which he occupied so conspicuous a position for the remainder of his life.

Mr. Gorman's first office under the Government of Maryland was that of director in the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company, to which he was appointed in 1869. He was elected to the House of Delegates from Howard county, and served during the sessions of 1870, 1872 and 1874. At the session of 1874 he was elected Speaker. At the close of the session, with the influence of Governor Whyte, he was appointed president of the Chesapeake and Ohio canal, and held that position for about 10 years. But in the meantime he was elected in 1875 to succeed Mr. John Lee Carroll as Senator from Howard county, a position to which he was re-elected in 1877.

In 1880 he was elected to succeed Hon. William Pinkney Whyte as Senator of the United States. He took his seat March 4, 1881. He was at that time 41 years old and the youngest man in the Senate. Six years later he was re-elected without opposition. He was re-elected in 1886.

In 1891 the Democratic State Convention nominated Mr. Gorman for reelection to the Senate for his third term in recognition of his fight against the Force bill. At the session of 1892 he was re-elected by the unanimous vote of his party, his election being accomplished in the separate vote in each house on Tuesday, January 19.

During Mr. Cleveland's second term there was an open rupture between him and Mr. Gorman which culminated in a bitter personal attack upon the President by the Senator from Maryland, who was at the time the leader of the Presidential party in the Senate. This attack grew out of the tariff question. Mr. Cleveland was an earnest advocate of a "revenue tariff," while Mr. Gorman believed in a certain degree of protection. Mr. Gorman joined in the Senate revision of the Wilson Tariff bill; in fact, led it. The revision was carried so far that Mr. Cleveland denounced bitterly those Democratic Senators who had done this thing and refused to affix his signature to the bill after its enactment, but permitted it to become a law without his approval.

This historic incident gave to Mr. Gorman's enemies the opportunity to encompass his overthrow. In the campaign, of 1895 there were several candidates for the nomination of Governor. At the last minute all these were rejected and the name of a gentleman who had not been before the people or considered at all was sprung upon the convention and he was nominated. The fact that this gentleman, Mr. John E. Hurst, was one of the foremost and most highly respected citizens of Maryland did not avail. Mr. Gorman and his political dictatorship was the issue of the campaign. This dissatisfaction of years broke out and swept everything before it, electing Lloyd Lowndes, Republican, Governor, Republican State officers, a Republican House of Delegates, a Republican Mayor and Council in Baltimore, and the city and almost every county in the State went Republican. This was distinctly a defeat for Mr. Gorman, and it was the first in his career. The Legislature that year elected George L. Wellington, Republican, to succeed Senator Gibson.

In the next State campaign a Legislature which would elect Mr. Gorman's successor in the Senate was to be elected, and Mr. Gorman met his second defeat. That Legislature was Republican in both houses, and Louis E. McComas, Republican, was elected to succeed Mr. Gorman in the Senate.

In 1899 the Democrats elected John Walter Smith Governor and a Democratic Legislature. In 1901 the Legislature was called in extraordinary session and the Election law revised so as to abolish emblem voting. It is believed that in consequence of this law a Democratic Legislature was elected in the fall of 1901, and that Legislature elected Mr. Gorman for a fourth term, to succeed Mr. G. L. Wellington. Thus he went back to the Senate at the age of 64 years after an absence of four years, this being the only period of Mr. Gorman's life from the time he was 14 years old to his death that he did not hold office, and during most of that time he was State director in the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, having been elected by the Board of Public Works in 1901.

Until the last few years of his life the political career of Mr. Gorman was a continued warfare. No man in public life in Maryland ever had more devoted friends or more implacable enemies. His hold upon the Democratic party in the State began in 1867, and became almost predominant upon his appointment to the presidency of the canal.

Mrs. Gorman, who survives her husband, is a daughter of Dr. James Donagan, of Reading, Pa., a prominent and wealthy physician of that city. Senator and Mrs. Gorman had five daughters and one son, State Senator Arthur Pue Gorman.

Mr. Gorman's funeral was held in Washington on June 8, services being conducted by Rev. Dr. Wallace Radcliffe, pastor of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church. The interment was in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Gorman, by his will, which was filed at Elliecott City, Md., on September 12, 1906, left practically all of his estate to members of his family. An inventory of his estate, filed October 2, also at Elliecott City, showed him to have been possessed of property worth $612,406.

DEATH OF CARL SCHURZ.

The notable career of Carl Schurz was ended on May 14, 1906, when he died at his home in New York. He was born at Leblar, Germany, March 2, 1829, and was 77 years old at the time of his death. He came to the United States in 1852. His political career in this country began with that of the Republican party. He was making German speeches for Fremont, the first Republican Presidential candidate in 1856, and he made his first English speech in 1858, the year of President Roosevelt's birth. His political services were so distinguished that in 1861 the young German exile, less than nine years a resident and four-years a citizen of the United States, was appointed by Lincoln Minister to Spain at the age of thirty-two, and upon resigning that office was made a Brigadier-General and then a Major-General.

Had Schurz possessed any amenability to party discipline, he would, it is believed, have become one of the greatest political figures of the next 40 years. Barred by his birth from the Presidency, he reached the Senate and the Cabinet. He did what he thought right, not what a party machine thought expedient. Sometimes he acted with one party, sometimes with another, and sometimes with none.

When the Republicans held their brief control of Missouri after the war, Schurz became Senator from that State. During his term of office he became estranged from his party, favoring the candidacy of Greeley against Grant in 1872. At the same time Missouri was swinging over from Republicanism to Democracy and Schurz retired to private life until Hayes took him out of it to add character to his Cabinet. As Secretary of the Interior he put his department on a civil service reform basis six years before the reform law was written on the statute books. When the Republicans nominated a doubtful candidate for President he stood with the Democrats; when the Democrats advocated free silver he stood with the Republicans.

GEN. L. VICTOR BAUGHMAN'S DEATH.

Gen. L. Victor Baughman died suddenly and unexpectedly at his home, Poplar Terrace, near Frederick, at 2.10 A. M. of November 30, 1906.

Nephritis, or inflammation of the kidneys, contracted while he was exposed in superintending the examination of cattle to be sent for exhibition at the Hagerstown Fair, was the immediate cause of death.

General Baughman had been in bad health for about one year.

Those at his bedside when he died included his wife, formerly Miss Helen Abell, a daughter of the late A. S. Abell; his son, Col. E. Austin Baughman, and his daughter, Mrs. Charles H. Conley, and her husband, Dr. Conley.

General Baughman was one of the most popular men in Maryland. In appearance he was ever well groomed and jovial. He was known throughout the State as one of the leaders of the Democratic party, but while often in Baltimore attending conferences of party leaders it was in Frederick county that he was particularly active.

There he was variously known as the "Little General," "Colonel Vic" and the "Father of the Valleys."

Among his more recent novelties in political campaign work was the great barbecue he gave at his own expense on Braddock Heights prior to the election in which the disfranchisement of the negro was the leading issue. The occasion was a revival of the old Democratic barbecue and was a popular movement, which netted General Baughman numerous personal supporters and the proposed amendment many votes.

General Baughman was a national committeeman from Maryland, and in that capacity was authorized by Mr. Norman E. Mack, chairman of the executive committee of the recent reception in New York in honor of Hon. William J. Bryan, when he returned from Europe, to name ten Marylanders to serve on the reception committee. He was a notable figure on the occasion.

Gen. L. Victor Baughman was born at Frederick, Md., 63 years ago. He was the son of Mr. John H. B. Baughman and obtained his education at Rock Hill and Mount St. Mary's Colleges. When the war between the States broke out he left college to run the blockade and joined the Maryland infantry, but later he was transferred to Company D, First Maryland Cavalry, Confederate States Army. He was captured at Moorfield and held a prisoner nine months at Camp Chase, Ohio, being exchanged in March, 1865, when the conflict was practically over.

He married Miss Helen Abell, daughter of the late A. S. Abell, founder of THE SUN, of Baltimore, and went to work on the Frederick Citizen, which his father had established. Later he studied law and subsequently he was connected with the Narragansett Steamship Company in New York.

On the death of his father, in 1872, General Baughman assumed, with his brother, the ownership of the Citizen. He early took a prominent part in politics, being a staunch Democrat, and served at different times as a member of the Democratic county committee of Frederick county, and on the State Democratic Committee, and as a member of the National Democratic Committee. He was State comptroller for four years, and president of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal for a term, inspector on the staff of Governor Smith and one of the commissioners of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Commission in St. Louis.

ANNA GOULD-COUNTESS CASTELLANE-GETS DIVORCE.

The Tribunal of First Instance of the Seine, Judge Ditte, presiding, on November 14 granted a divorce to the Countess de Castellane (formerly Anna Gould, of New York), and gave her the custody of her children, who, however, will not be allowed to be taken from France without the consent of their father, Count Boni de Castellane.

The decision was a sweeping victory for the Countess, who sued for divorce on the grounds of cruelty and infidelity. In granting her petition for divorce the court gave the Countess the custody of her children, the Count being allowed only the usual rights to see them and share in the control of their education, which was not contested.

Anna Gould, the eldest daughter of the late Jay Gould, was married to Count Ernest Boniface de Castellane at her brother's home, in New York, on March 4, 1895. Her dowry was understood to be $18,000,000, and her income $600,000 a year.

In five years the couple were reported to be financially embarrassed, the Count having spent about $7,000,000 of his wife's money.

The Gould family intervened, affairs were adjusted, and the Countess' income was cut down to $200,000 a year.

The Countess entered suit for divorce on February 5 last, charging unfaithfulness, and at the trial it was testified that the Count frequently struck the Countess.

The children of the Castellanes are George, Boni and Jay.

PATENTS—INSURANCE

PATENTS ON NEW INVENTIONS

are procured by

MANN & CO., - ATTORNEYSFranklin Building, Cor. Baltimore and North Sts.*BALTIMORE, MD.

All of our business with the Patent Office in Washington is done direct—one of our firm personally goes to the Patent Office two or three days every week. We first ascertain if a device is new by making a search at the Patent Office among the classified patents.

We have in our office the official records of all patents since the year 1849.

Legal advice and business counsel will be furnished inventors, or persons interested in patents, who may be involved in difficulties. Over thirty years' experience has acquainted us with the methods employed by the best patent lawyers.

We are familiar with the law of trade-marks and procure the registration of trade-marks and labels for all kinds of goods.

Our responsibility can be ascertained through the mercantile agencies of The Bradstreet Co., or R. G. Dun & Co.

We advise inventors to beware of accepting "free opinions," that are advertised.
